THE EARTH UNLOADS ITS CARGO.

Why Ask to Stay in the Cellar, When Brilliant Halls Are Above?

TALMAGE'S LATEST SUNDAY SERMON

ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.] BROOKLYN, April 17 .- Being Easter morning the Brooklyn Tabernacle congregation had been invited to bring flowers the night before, and a bank of them was on the front of the pulpit and wreaths of them over the pulpit. The word "Resurrection" was spelled out in letters of white lilies. Text, I. Samuel, xv., 32, "Surely the bitterness of death is past."

So cried Agag, and the only objection have to this text is that a bad man uttered it. Nevertheless, it is true, and in a higher and better sense than that in which it was originally uttered. Years ago a legend some-thing like this was told me: In a but lived very poor woman by the name of Misery. In front of her door was a pear tree, which was her only resource for a living. Christ, the Lord, in poor garb, was walking through the earth and no one would enter-tain Him. In vain He knocked at the door of palaces and of humble dwellings. Cold and hungry and insufficiently clad, as He was, no one received Him. But coming one day to the hut of this woman, whose name was Misery, she received Him, and offered Him a few crusts and asked Him to warm himself at the handful of coals, and she sat up all night that the wayfarer might have a pillow to rest on. In the morning this divine being asked her as He departed what she would have Him do in the way of reward, and told her that He owned the universe and would rive her what she asked.

Grim Death Up in a Pear Tree,

All she asked was that her pear tree might er fruit, once climbing the tree, might not her fruit, once climbing the tree, might not be able to get down without her consent. So it was granted, and all who climbed the tree were compelled to stay there. After a while Death came along and told the poor woman she must go with him. But she did not want to go, for, however poor one's lot is, no one wants to go with Death. Then is, no one wants to go with Death. Then she said to Death:

"I will go with you if you will first climb up into my pear tree and bring me down a few pears before I start."

This he consented to do, but having climbed into the tree, he could not again some down. Then the troubles of the world legan, for Death did not come. The physicians had no patients, the undertakers no make the people who waited for inheritances could not get hem, the old men staid in all the professions and occupations so that there was no coun for the young that were coming on, and the earth got over-crowded and from all the earth the cry went up:

Then the people came to the poor woman not begged her to let Death descend from he tree. In sympathy for the world, she onsented to let Death come down on one indition, and that was that he should never or take her away, and on that condi-beath was allowed to come down, and opt his word and never removed her, or that reason we always have Misery

To Load, the Earth Must Unload, In that allegory someone has set forth the truth that I mean to present on this aster morning, which celebrates the resrection of Christ and our coming resur ection—that one of the grandest and nightest mercies of the earth is our divine mightest mercies of the earth is our divine permission to quit it. Sixty-four persons every minute step off this planet. Thirty million people every year board this planet. As a steamer must unload before it takes another cargo, and as the passengers of a rail train must leave it in order to have another company of passengers enter it, so with this world.

Now this world is only a ship, which was th this world.

Now, this world is only a ship, which was inched some 6,000 years ago. It is sailing the rate of many thrusand miles an hour, is freighted with mountains and cities, d has in its staterooms and steerage about 10,000,000 represents. Some of the state ird, it is necessary that a good many isembank.

Suppose that all the people that had lived not the days of Adam and Eve were still ive—what a cluttered up place this world ould be—no elbow room—no place to walk would be—no elbow room—no place to walk—no privacy—nothing to eat or wear, or if anything were left, the human race would, like a shipwrecked crew, have to be put on small rations, each of us having perhaps only a biscuit a day.

And what chance would there be for the rising generations? The men and women who started when the world started would keep the modern people back and down, saying: "We are 5.000 years old. Bow down, History is nothing, for we are older than history."

The Good of Life Soon Lived Up. What a mercy for the human race was death. Within a few years you can get from this world all there is in it. After you ave had 50 or 60 or 70 spring times, you ave seen enough blossoms. After 50 or 60 70 nuturens you have seen enough of orgeous folinge. After 50 or 60 or 70 winters, typeous foliage. After 30 or 60 or 70 winters, in have seen enough snowstorms and felt ough chills and wrapped yourself in ough blankets. In the ordinary length of man life you have carried enough burns, and shed enough tears, and been unded by enough doubts. We talk about a shortness of life, but if we exercised out sense we would realize that life is itselone enough.

we are here in one room of our Father's use, but there are rooms upstairs. They better pictured, better uphoistered, etter furnished. Why do we want to stay better furnished. Why do we want to stay in the anterown forever, when there are pulatial apartments waiting for our occupancy? What a mercy that there is a limitation to earthly environments?

Death also makes room for improved playsical machinery. Our bodies have wondrous powers, but they are very limited. There are beasts that can outrun us, outlift us, out carry us. The birds have both the earth and air for travel, yet we must stick to the one. In this world, which the human nee takes for its own, there are creatures of God that cap far surpass us in some things, beath removes this slower and less adroit machinery and makes room for something

Infinity Better Than Five Senses.

Then, we have only five senses, and to these we are shut up. Why only five senses? why not 50, why not 100, why not 1,000? We can have, and we will have them, but not until this present physical machinery is put out of the way. Do you think that this body is the best that God can do for us. God did not half try when he contrived your bodily unclimism. Is it possible for man to make improvement in almost anything and God not be able to make improvements in man's Beneficent Death comes in and makes the Beneficent Death comes in and makes the necessary removal to make way for these supernatural improvements. So also our slow process of getting information must have a substitute. Through prolonged study we learned the alphabet, and then we learned to read. Then the book is put before us, and the eye travels from word to word and from page to page, and we take whole days to read the book, and, if from that book of four or five hundred pages, we have gained one or two profitable ideas, we feel we have done well. There must be some swifter way and more satisfactory way of taking in God's universe of thoughts and facts and emotions and information. But this cannot be done with your brain in its present state, "Well," you say, "does not that destroy the idea of a resurrection of the present body?" Oh, no. It will be the old factory with new machinery.

Earthly Climate Is a Hindrance.

Then there are the climatological hin-

Then there are the climatological hindrances. We run against unpropituous weather of all sorts. Winter blizzard and summer scorch, and each season seems to hatch a brood of its own disorders. The r spreads its wings and hatches out fevers and sunstrokes, and spring and aut-fevers and sunstrokes, and spring and autumn spread their wings and hatch out a harias, and winter spreads its wings and hatches out pneumonias and Russian grips, and the climate of this world is a hindrance which every man and woman and child has felt. Death is to the good transference to superior weather; weather never fickle, and never too cold, and never too hot, and never too light, and never too dark.

How often we want to be in different places at the same time. How perpiexed we get being compelled to choose between invitations, between weddings, between triendly groups, between three or four places we would like to be in the same morning or the same noon or the same evening. While death may not open opportunity to be in many places at the same time, so easy and so quick and so instantaneous will be the transference that it will amount to about transference that it will amount to about the same thing.

"But," says some one, "I cannot see how God is going to reconstruct my body in the resurrection." Oh, that will be very easy as compared with your body four or six or ten times. All scientists tell us that the human body changes entirely once in seven years.

A Startling Theory in Annomy.

Surgeons and physiologists say there are parts of the human body the uses of which they cannot understand. They are searching what these parts were made for, but have not found out. I can tell them. They are the preliminary of the resurrection body. God does not make anything for nothing.

are the preliminary of the resurrection body. God does not make anything for nothing. The uses of those now surplus parts of the body will be demonstrated when the glorified form is constructed.

Now, if Death clears the way for all this, why paint him as a hobsoblin? Why cail him the King of Terrors? Why think of him as a great spook? Why sketch him with skeleton and arrows, and standing on a bank of dark waters? Why have children so frightened at his name that they dare not go to bed alone, and old men have their teeth chatter lest some shortness of breath hand them over to the monster? All the ages have been busy in maligning Death, hurling repulsive metaphors at Death, slandering Death.

If what I have been saying is true, how differently we ought to think of our friends departed. The body they have put off is only as when entering a hall lighted and resounding with musical bands, you leave your hat and cloak in the cloakroom.

I was told at Johnstown, after the flood, that many people who had been for months and years bereft, for the first time got comfort when the awful flood came, to think that their departed ones were not present to see the catastrophe. As the people were floating down on the housetops, they said: "Oh, how glad I am that father and mother is not here."

Evils Our Departed Friends Escape.

Evils Our Departed Friends Escape. Ought not we who are down here amid the pturnings of this life be glad that none of the troubles which submerge us can ever affright our friends ascended? Before this I warrant our departed ones have been in-troduced to all the celebrities of heaven. We, the shipwrecked, and on a raft in the

We, the shipwrecked, and on a raft in the hurricane, looking up at them sailing on over calm seas, under skies that never frowned with tempests; we hoppied with chains, they lifted by wings, "Surely the bitterness of death is past."

Further, if what I have been saying is true, we should trust the Lord and be thrilled with the fact that our own day of escape cometh. If our lives were going to end when our heart ceased to pulsate and our lungs to breathe, I would want to take 10,000,000 years of life here for the first instalment. But, my Christian friends, we can 10,000,000 years of life here for the first instalment. But, my Christian friends, we cannot afford always to stay down in the cellar of our Father's house. We cannot always be postponing the best things. We cannot always be tuning our violins for the celestial orchestra. We must get our wings out. We must mount. We cannot afford always to stand out here in the vestibule of the house of many mansions, while the windows are illuminated with the levee angelic, and we can hear the laughter of those forever free, and the ground quakes with the bounding feet of those who have entered upon eternal play. Ushers of heaven! Open the gates! Swing them clear back on their pearly hinges! Let the celestial music rain on us its cadences.

Thoughts Suggestive of Easter Morn. All these thoughts are suggested as we stand this Easter morn amid the broken rocks of the Saviour's tomb. The day that Christ rose and came forth the sepulchre was demolished forever, and no trowel of earthly masonry can ever rebuild it. And the rupture of those rocks, and the snap of that governmental scal, and the crash of those walls of limestone, and the step of the lacerated but triumphant foot of the risen Jesus we to-day celebrate with acclaim of worshiping thousands, while with all the nations of Christendom, and all the shin-ing hosts of heaven we chant, "Now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept." the rupture of those rocks, and the snap of

"And now may the God of peace, who brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant make you perfect in every good word and work." Hallelujah! Amen!

HOME SECURITIES AND CASH.

Fair Trading and Good Prices After the Holiday. The stock market was fairly active and strong Saturday, which was somewhat un-expected after one holiday and just before expected after one holiday and just before another. Final prices, as a general thing, were the best of the week.

Stocks closing higher for the week were Chartiers Gas, Pipeage, Philadelphia, Citizens' Traction, Airbrake, Wheeling Gas and Cable. Those closing down were Central Traction, Luster and Switch and Signal.

Sales Saturday were 30 Duquesne Traction at 26%, 60 Central at 29, 150 Chartiers at 12%, 300 Philadelphia Gas at 18%, 80 Luster at 9, 20 at 9%, 200 Manchester at 39%, 100 Wheeling at 21.

Sales for the five days were 3,862 shares and $7,000 bonds. Philadelphia Gas led with 760 shares, followed by Manchester Traction with 890 and Chartiers Gas with 350.

The financial situation underwent no material change during the week. The discount department was quiet, offerings of paper being light, but in routine lines a respectable volume of business was transacted. This is shown by the Clearing House statement for the five days, which follows:

TRADE REVIEW Poultry and Eggs in Large Supply

Because of High Prices.

PRICES LOWER THAN LAST WEEK. Hides Weak at the Old Prices, and Calf-

skins in Good Bequest. BOSTON VIEW OF THE SHOE TRADE

OFFICE OF THE DISPATCH, PITTSBURG, SATURDAY, April 16. In produce lines, the most marked features of the past week were the decline in prices of the past week were the decline in prices of poultry, eggs and butter. The time draws near when country butter will reach its lowest point. Supply is already in excess of demand, and creamery butter has declined in sympathy with the home-made article. A week ago eggs were up to 16c per dozen in this market, a higher price than was obtained at any other trade center East or West

West. High prices, naturally, drew large quantities to our market until prices de-clined fully 20 per dozen. The poultry market broke in the early part of the week by reason of large receipts from the lower objects of large receipts from the lower of the Valley. Within a couple of days from four to five thousand pairs were dumped on to our markets from Tennessee and the Big Sandy Valley, and prices at once declined about 20 per cent. The large receipts were due to high prices of Pittsburg markets in the early part of the month.

In Cereal Lines. It will be seen by reference to the home market column, that receipts of grain and hay are steadily declining. Receipts for the week ending April 1 were 340 carloads. Receipts the past week were 195 cars, showing a difference of 145 cars as compared with a difference of 145 cars as compared with two weeks ago.

With declining receipts the tone of markets is steadily gaining, and prices are higher than they were a week ago.

Shell corn and oats are the strong factors of careal markets. Export demand for wheat and flour has improved greatly in the past week or two and the result is seen in stronger prices. The fact that foreign demand has improved shows that as regards the taith of operators the lowest point has been reached and that future changes will be upward. Hay continues to come to our markets in liberal quantity, but in spite of this prices are well maintained.

Bides and Caifskins. Rides and Calfskins.

The situation in this line is practically the same as it waste week ago. Heavy steer hides are weak and slow, and buffs are by no means active. Calfskins are in good demand, notwithstanding the increasing recipts. Sheepskins are not so firm as they were a week ago, but the change is so slight that we good a prices as he fore. that we quote prices as before.

The Boston Herald has this to say of the tuation and outlook as to the last and shoe "There is still a good number of boot and shoe buyers in the market, but, perhaps, not quite as many as a few weeks ago. It is true that many of these buyers have completed their orders and have gone home, but others have come in to the extent that the jobtheir orders and have gone home, but others have come in to the extent that the jobbing trade of the country is pretty well represented yet. These buyers are, some of them, after assortments of spring and summer goods, and there is something of a trade in duplicate orders for the summer season. But the great bulk of the trade at the present time is in the way of samples for tall goods. It is the common remark of the trade that this sample trade has never been so great as at the present time, and this is looked upon as a very hopeful feature of the market. It must be that the jobbers are wanting more goods than ever, else they would not buy such an excess of samples. The samples cost them high, and they could not buy such an excess of samples. The samples cost them high, and they could not buy such an excess of samples. The samples cost them unless shey were ordered for the purpose of buying goods by them. It is the common remark that if the best houses sell as many goods relatively, on these samples, as in former seasons, there will be such a trade as manufacturers have had little idea of in former seasons."

COALERS ON THE JUMP.

The Safe Elements Also Make a Lively Bond Market-The General List Fine tuste Narrowly-Industrials and New England Are the Weak Points.

New York, April 16.—The stock market was comparatively active and strong, though the activity was principally in the Coal stocks and the strength confined to those shares and a few specialties, all of which scored substantial gains for the day, while the rest of the list fluctuated within narrow limits and the trading possessed little sig-nificance. Richmond and West Point se-curities were very strong throughout the session. Large buying orders in Heading from Philadelphia were executed, and the dealings in that stock foot up more than half of the business done; but, notwithstanding this fact, the whole list was given character by the trading in these few securities, and declines are a rarity this evening. and declines are a rarity this evening.

The weak points in the market were the Industrials, especially Sugar and New England, but neither of these were held down for any time, and the final losses are insignificant. The opening of the market was made on a moderate volume of business at small fractional gains over Thursday's final Heavy Receipts of Eggs and Demand Keeps Pace With Supply.

COUNTRY BUTTER DRIFTING LOWER Cereal Supplies Light of Late and Stronger Tone Apparent.

HOG PRODUCTS ARE IN PAIR DEMAND

OFFICE OF THE DISPATCH, } PITTEBURG, SATURDAY, April 16. COUNTRY PRODUCE—Jobbing prices—Choice creamery butter is scarce in this market but prices fail to advance owing to heavy receipts of country butter. The latter is a drug on the market at a decline of 6c per lb in the past week. Supply of eggs has caught up to demand. For a week or two past there has been a short supply in this market and prices have been higher here than at other trade centers. There is now no longer a scarcity, though the demand has greatly increased the past few days. The movement in general produce lines is fairly active and Saturday's volume of trade was larger than is usual for the last day of the week. Old vegetables of all kinds are quiet and are being gradually supplanted by new stuff from the far South.
