PULLMAN CRITICISED

By the Stockholders of the Central Transportation Company.

AN INVESTIGATION IS DEMANDED Regarding a Half Million Received By the

Palace Car Company. LATE NEWS FROM THE BUSINESS WORLD

PHILADELPHIA, April 18.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Central Transportation Company was held here today. Judge Isham and Hon. Wayne Mac-Veagh were present, representing the Pullman Palace Car Company, with which corporation the Transportation is engaged in extensive litigation. The annual report of the Treasurer showed the receipts for the year, with the cash balance on hand, amounted to $44,304 50. The expenses footed up $39,425 69, in which was included a loan on collateral aggregating $30,000. The liabilities of the company amounted to $1,784,447; of this amount $1,781,062 represents 46,949 shares of stock. The assets are given as $155,523 81, invested principally in Philadelphia and Reading general mort-gage bonds, and Baltimore and Ohio Car Trust Association certificates and loans on Collateral.

After hearing the report, George M. Pullman, President of the Car Company and a heavy stockholder in the Transportation Company, was subjected to severe criticism. Resolutions were passed authorizing the incoming directors to vigorously prosecute the pending equity suit against the Pullman Company, which is trustee of the Transportation Company, and "to require from said trustees a deposit of the large sum. of money now due this company, which has accumulated since January, 1823, and amounts now. Including interest, to nearly $2,225,000." The incoming President and Board of Directors were also requested to make inquiry as to how the sum of $455,000 received by the Pullman Palace Car Company for the property of the Transportation Company, destroyed by fire, collisions and otherwise, is now represented in the cars and other property of this company leased to the Pullman Palace Car Company.

The election of directors and a treasurer resulted as follows: B. P. Obdyke, Evan Morris, William H. Lucas, George K. Reed, Francis F. Milne, John S. Stevens, Matthew Brooks, Joseph D. Wilson, Thomas G. Hood. Secretary and Treasurer Frank Weckerly. collateral.

THE RICHMOND TERMINAL SCHEME

Occupied the Attention of the Wall Stree People Yesterday. NEW YORK, April 18.-The Richmond Terminal scheme occupied a good deal of atten-tion in Wall street to-day as a result of the statement by Mr. Tappen and Mr. Fahne-stock on Saturday. It was said by interests which have been prominent in the reorgan-ization plan that the resignation of those two members of the committee would be requested, but to-day it became known that another member of the committee had writ-ten to Mr. Fahnestock indorsing the action taken by him on Saturday. This would make any changes now almost impossible. In addition to the statement published on Saturday, Mr. Fahnestock said: "Thursday's advertisement was referred to the committee with the amount of deto the committee with the amount of de-posits left blank, and the deposits of the un-derlying securities were referred to as 'very large.' I signed this notice, and so did other members of the committee, but first insisted that the word 'very' should be eliminated. I wanted the figures of the underlying se-curities given with the same frankness that the figures of the terminal securities were

It Cost His Firm Between $40,000 an $50,000 and Great Trouble, SLEEPY EYE, MINN, April 18 .- The Marshall Roller Mills, formerly belonging to C. F. Johnson & Co., but for the last week the property of Larson & Erickson, massed into the hands of a new company son, massed into the hands of a new company to-day, Messrs, Gross, Von Bagen and Gieseke, of Sleepy Eye, and T. H. Dyckman, of New York. The trouble, it is asserted, originated from option deals by C. F. Johnson, manager of the mill. Johnson lost all he had, about $7,000, besides between $40,000 and $50,000 of Larson & Erickson's money.

The dissolution followed upon notification from Johnson that he was unable to pay the debts. The other partners were Larson, a railroad contractor of Winthrop, and Erickson, a retired farmer of St. Peters. They took the mill and now sell it to Sleepy Eye parties. They had had no experience in the business and placed the utmost confidence in Johnson, who dealt in options in the farm's name without the knowledge of his parties.

A STOCK COMPANY'S TROUBLE

A Receiver Appointed for the New Haven Cattle Company Yesterday. NEW HAVEN, CONN., April 18.-Judge Hall, of the Superior Court, has appointed Dana Bartholomew, of Ansonia, receiver of the New Haven Cattle Company. The capital stock of the company is $100,000, a large part of which was held by R. A. Neal, of Southof which was held by R. A. Neal, of South-ington, lately deceased.

Since Mr. Neal's death the company has not been managed in a manner satisfactory to the stockholders. The property of the company consists of lands, ranches and cattle in Texas. The largest stockholders in this city are of opinion that the company will meet its liabilities.

Their total liabilities were about $35,000, but by the above transfers the debts were reduced to $24,000, against which the nominal assets are about $12,000, or which $10,000 are in accounts the value of which is doubtful, Road Crossing Its Tracks A lively fight is expected between the Suburban Railway and the Pittsburg, Virginia and Charleston Railway on the Southside this morning. Yesterday morning workmen called at the South Eighteent street crossing and prepared to lay the tracks of the proposed Suburban road across the Pittsburg, Virginia and Charleston lines. But before they had time to commence an engine was driven up to the cross-ing and stationed there. Then the regula-tion scheme was put into practice by blowing off steam, so that operations were rendered impossible. The Suburban people made no fight, as it will be over a month before they will require their tracks over the crossing, and the effort to get across yesterday was abandoned.

It was stated last night, however, that one more attempt will be made to-day, and if the Pittsburg, Virginia and Charleston continues their opposition an injunction will be asked for to prevent them interfering.

ONE MAN WHO WASN'T HOODWINKED.

J. T. Gilbert Thought That Clothing Club Was a Straight Business Firm.

The name of J. T. Gilbert, head waiter of the Hotel Anderson, appears in the list of people who had paid $1 into the alleged clothing club, which was exposed by the police on Sunday. Mr. Gilbert experts the companies. Of the latter it is unnecessary to make any comment.

The Tenor of All in the Country and Signor Tagliapie-tra, whose fine baritone is so well known in this city, are to be found in comic opera companies. Of the latter it is unnecessary to make any comment.

to make any comment.

The Tenor of All in the Country.

Of Streitman it may be said that it is a long time since a finer singer than he has appeared in Pittsburg. He is at a slight disadvantage, owing to his being compelled to sing in English, a language with which he is but slightly acquainted. At times the enunciation of unfamiliar words seemed to affect his tones, but, again, his grand voice rose above all difficulties. The ever popular Louis Harrison is also in this company. Harrison is as funny as ever, if not funnter. The audience was in a continuous roar last night whenever Louis had the stage. It might be as well, however, if he left out some of the unnecessary "gags." They are ineffective and unnecessary "grace Golden, who was here but a short time ago with the Casino company, comes back again to us in "La Cirale," in which she has a better opportunity. Charles Mungan, as the Duke of Fugensburg, has not much of a singing part, but looked and acted very cleverly. Probably the best feature is the splendid chorus. Without ex-The Tenor of All in the Country. has not much of a singing part, but looked and acted very cleverly. Probably the best feature is the splendid chorus. Without exception this is about the nest disciplined chorus we have ever had in Pittsburg. It is strong, big and well balanced. There is very little if any "deadwood," and, when the opportunity offers, does splendid work. The scenery is superb. The interior of the ducal palace, with its splendid pillars of pearl and gold and marble staircase running up to a balcony is a revelation of scenic art and construction. "La Cigale" remains with us the balance of the week.

THE PEERLESS PITOU COMPANY.

coffrey Middleton Given With Admirab Art at the Duquesne Theater. As was proper the Pitou Stock Compan received the warmest kind of welcome from a large audience last night at the Duquesne Theater. No changes of much importance have been made in the organization since it have been made in the organization since it appeared here last fall, and of course a certain extra smoothness has been gained for the production as a whole. The play chosen for the opening was "Geoffrey Middleton," which was reviewed in these columns very fally upon its production in this city. Miss Morton's play is interesting and in places powerful and acted by such a company as the Pitou proves very entertaining all through. The admirable acting of Miss Seligman makes Margaret overshadow all the other characters, but the performance in all its parts was highly artistic. Mr. Nelson Wheatcroft, Mr. Thompson and Miss Leslie all had their peculiar moments of triumph, and the applause was very evenly distributed among them. Mr. Charles Collins played the part previously taken by Mr. Shannon, that of Courtenay Middleton, of South Carolina, the aristocratic old man who sacrifices his son to save his own honor. His make-up was the chief defect in his impersonation.

Of course Miss Seligman's reception was warm and appreciative. She seems to be somewhat thinner than when last here, and her methods are more subdued though none the less effective. The splendid piece of acting, which won her two recalls in act III, showed greater repression and deeper pathos possibly. Some new comedy points have been added for Miss Jane Stuart and Mr. Leslie, which make their love affair funnier than ever. Miss Stuart is as plquant, as pretty and original as ever, and the audience applauded her vigorously. Probably everyone of the company has improved somewhat, and the result is a polished performance, such as no other company has improved somewhat, and the result is a polished performance, such as no other company has improved somewhat, and the company has improved somewhat and the company has improved som appeared here last fall, and of course a give.

TUXEDO'S NOVEL MERITS.

A Bright Show, Combining Farce and Minstrelsy, at the Alvin Theater.

Nobody is likely to claim the barrel of red apples which the management of "Tuxedo" offer to the person who will point out its plot, but nevertheless it is a very bright en-tertainment, with few dull spots in it, lots plot, but nevertheless it is a very bright entertainment, with few dull spots in it, lots of songs well sung, jokes galore, some of them fresh, and some dancing and specialties of more than ordinary merit. In the first part, which shows a congregation of society people at Tuxedo, the fashionable New Jersey resort, there is melody and merriment in a sort of free-for-all style. There are enough good voices in the company to more than equip two comic opera organizations of the modern sort. Miss Fitzhugh, who has made a name in comic opera, has a powerful and very pleasant soprano, and she sang all her numbers well, concluding with a high C in good shape in the famous sextette from "Lucia." Messrs. Frillman, Moore, Jose, Lewis and several others have good voices and sang very well. Miss Mamie Gilroy is a rarely graceful dancer and a sprightly actress, as well as a very pretty girl.

In the second parts regular negro minstrel entertainment was given, in which George Thatcher and Hughey Dougherty were naturally the stars. Neither of these excellent comedians has lost any of his humorous powers, and their jokes and songs brought an abundance of laughter. Taking "Tuxedo" all in all it is one of the best entertainments of the kind seen here this season, and not the least remarkable thing in it is the eccentric dancing of John H. Coleman, of which the andience could not get enough. A large audience gave the plece a hearty welcome.

The Harris Theate Gray and Stephens and their performing ponies and dogs have returned to this house after an absence of only a month or so. They have the same old plays, "Vesper Bells" and "Old Oaken Bucket," the former for the first half of the week, the latter for the last half, and the same cast as on their last trip. For all that, the house yesterday was crowded to the doors at both performances, and the laughter and applause were as hearty as ever. The dogs and ponies are, as usual, the best of the actors.

WHAT ALL THE SHOW HOUSES OFFER

At last Pittsburg has had an opportunity of seeing Audran's great success, "La Cigale," performed by the beautiful Lillian Russell and her superb company. The story of "La Cigale" is of course founded on La Fontaine's fable. There is but little of the original idea retained excepting the for the original idea retained excepting the alleged realization of it in "La Cigale's" vision in the last act. The opera story goes as follows: Marton (La Cigale) makes up her mind to go on the operatio stage. The Duke of Fayensburg arrives opportunely, and hearing of her intention offers her the desired chance in his Italian Opera Company. The Duke is engaged in a firitation with the danseuse of his company. At the same time one of his suite is making desperate love to the Duchess of Fayensburg, who finding discovery imminer orders her lover to go forth and make love to the first person he meets. "La Cigale" is that first person and the gay chevalier really falls desperately in love with the beautiful country girl.

The Plot Worked Out in a Vision.

"La Cigale" attains her ambition, and within a year becomes a famous operatic star. Belng told that her lover is false, she reproaches him with his perfidy and denounces the Duchess in the ball-room, and then, overcome by the excitement, fains, In a dream she has a vision of her old home. When she revives the Duchess tells her that her lover is really true to her, and the Duck, who thinks it a capital piece of a capital and city and the proper stream of the proper stream of the provential of the course of the first term of his associates are not so material. C. J. Williams makes some fun out of a capital star, applauds it all, and suspecting nothing, the threatened snarl is unwound at last amicably and very pleasantly for all.

Of course Lillian Russell played "La and capital of the house employes. The Academy of Music. Ivvin La cigale" and the charmingty. She acted with a situation that makes the roof ring and leaves the audience anxious to know what will follow. That's what happens in Such favorites as Sheridan and Flynn, Tanner and Dawley, Emerson and Cook are down for the week, and patrons know them of old.

Ida Lillian Abrams has a remarkably fine voice, and as a songstress will doubtless reach a higher sphere than that of the variety stage. A magnificent floral tribute was tendered her by some admirers.

The National Trio, comprising Bryan, Moulton and Forrester, are full of fun and fanciful creations, their original songs being out of the ordinary. Aside from the briefly mentioned ones, there are other strong features which cannot fail to please the exacting critics, and the after-piece cannot help but meet with "A Warm Reception." -« the one-act farce is fittingly named.
