A BALLOON IN JAIL.

Warden McAleese Has a Very Novel Idea for House-Cleaning.

TRYING TO REACH A DIRTY DOME.

Hot Air and Inflated Canvas Cheaper Than Scaffolding.

WAITING ON A VENTURESOME PRISONER

Warden McAleese is looking for an aerial navigator who is also accomplished in the use of the brush, and if Mile. Decca, the 'cloud kisser," who created several sensations in this city last summer, were only ere now, she would have a grand opportunity to further extend her fame. It is not free that a balloon is used in connection with house cleaning operations, but that is just what the warden wants to use and he is so anxious to try it that every prisoner entering the jail is examined as to his skill in | sky scraping. He has not yet found one capable of performing the feat desired, but he still has hope.

There had never been an organized effort black and gloomy with smoke and soot have been scrubbed and whitewashed until they are as white as snow. The inside of every cell has been cleaned, scrubbed, whitewashed and painted similarly, and even the great granite pillars which support the main roof of the building have been scrubbed from top to bottom, and are as white and clean as the day they left the quarries. The high windows that light the silding, but which had never been introluced to soup and water, and showed in, are pereft of their four years' accumulation of rime, and once more admit the light of ay. The iron railings through the buildthe cell fronts and the window frames ave all received a coat of fresh paint and shine as they perhaps never did before. But there is one part of the jail vet to be cleaned which has given the Warden much worry. In the center of the building there to 111 feet from the floor and totally inaccessible except by balloon or a high cellold. Around the dome are several strong barred windows, and like the balance The dome's interior are absolutely black, showing in strong contrast with the white

A Problem That Puzzled the Court. How to clean the dome has been a puzzle that every official about the building, inchalling the Judges of the court, have endeavored to solve. The County Commis-sioners suggested a scaffolding, but the cost uld run up to $200, and that was considered too much for a simple cleaning of windows and a couple of coats of whitewash on the dome. Block and tackle and other schemes have been suggested, but all were discarded as impracticable but one.

That one is an idea of the warden's ich may be put into execution unless a er one is presented. He proposes to send a man up in a hot air balloon to do work. He figures that a canvas bag 10 feet high and about 5 feet wide would sup-port a man in perfect safety if filled with hot air, and he proposes to keep up the supply of air by building a big fire on the tone payement under the dome. A volunteer from among the prisoners will be called for. He will be attached to the bailoon seated on a chair, and provided with a mop or whitewash brush as the work to be done may require. The balloon can't get away, and a rope will connect it to the or so that it can be pulled down at will. warden explains the propos very entertainingly, but it willing to receive suggestions from the outside for a better completely equipped with substantial brick and iron-clad workshops, foundry and warehouses, boilers, engines, shafting, etc. . This splendid property is now owned and operated by the Standard Manufacturing Company, and has a frontage of 357 feet on River Avenue, Allegheny, with an average depth of about 245 feet, running back to the West Penn Railroad. The Standard Manufacturing Company, realizing that in the near future their present plant will be inadequate for their business, have recently purchased a larger piece of ground, to which they contemplate removing their factory as soon as possible, and, therefore, desire to dispose of their present works. Further particulars will be furnished on the premises, No. 286 RIVER AVENUE, ALLEGHENY, or by J. W. ARROTT, No. 533 WOOD STREET, PITTSBURG.
