RED HOT POLITICS IN THE HOUSE.

A Fiery Virginian Calls Cleveland a Lion and Dave Hill a Fox.

BUT ROCKWELL RETAINS HIS SEAT

WASHINGTON, April 22 .- It is seldom that a contested election case engresses the attention of the House, but the Noyes-Rockwell case did so to-day. There was thought to be concealed behind the legal question a Democratic nomination for the Presidency. Was it to be Hill or was it to be Cleveland? Or was it to be the muchspoken-of Western man? The vote in the House to-day, it is said, indicates that the West may come to the front.

Mr. Fellows made a fine argument in favor of Mr. Rockwell, and he was followed by Mr. Cockran, with a brief speech similar to those addresses for which he is famous, Neither one of these gentlemen referred to the political imbroglio except by innuendo, but Mr. O'Ferrall, of Virginia, took the bull by the horns. He announced himself as a stalwart Cleveland man. Cleveland, in his opinion, was a lion, while Hill was a tox. His reference to Grover Cleveland as the magnificent and grand man from the State of New York was rapturously applauded, but he failed to carry the House with him. But 39 members recorded them selves in favor of the contestant, and the chasm between Hill and Cleveland seems to be more than ever without the prospect of a Cockran's Appeal for Justice, Mr. Cockran, in the course of his remarks,

It is not for a Democrat that I plead—it is for the people of the United States, it is for the purity of the ballot box, not for any one person who claims here the benefit of the votes contained in it. I speak for the sancvotes contained in it. I speak for the sanc-tity of the altar of sovereignty itself; and I say that that chair secured to Mr. Rookwell by a majority of the unpurchased votes of his district is sacred in the eyes of the law, is protected by every letter of our Constitu-tion, and should be defended by every hon-est impulse of our nature. I speak for the purity of elections, for the honesty of the expression of the popular will, for the incloability of the ballot box. I believe that no partisan advantage would compen-sate for the loss that would be sustained by the unfair express of judicial power in this lloase. We have seen what the effect of the discentual of every principle of justice has onse. We have seen what the effect of the seemed of every principle of justice has on upon the minority. We have seen to hat proportions it has shrunk. I hope bear this vote is recorded there will be und some men on the Republican side to clare their belief that purchased votes are it the expression of the popular will; and at no title to a seat can be founded upon a cord tained with bribery, corruption and and; and which seeks to establish itself by availing itself of a technicality instead into the case by the report of the marriey. (Loud applause.)

O'Ferral' Binstrates by a Store.

O'Ferral! litustrates by a Story. Mr. O Ferrall, of Virginia, in closing the guarant in layer of Mr. Noyes, said he oped that a calm would succeed to the hur-House. The speech of the gentleman from New York reminded him of a little story: A belated traveler was journeying over a country road, in the midst of a storm. His herse he guided by the flare of the lightness herse he guided by the flare of the lightness. But, although the storm was a fierce the flashes were infrequent, while the eals of thunder were incessant. Finally ne wayfarer sent up the invocation: "Oh, rd, I would like to have a little more at and not quite so much noise." [Long

Mr. O'Ferrall did not have to go around in his country wearing on the lapel of his con' a label with the words, "I am a Democrat." [Applause, laughter, cheers and great confusion.] It had been charged that he was warped in his judgment, because he preferred a certain centleman for the next Democratic nomination for President. He that as an American citizen he had the right to exercise the privilege of expressing his choice. His choice was O'Ferrall's Declaration for Cleveland. Everybody who knew his convictions, said Mr. O'Ferrall, knew what his choice was. And yet he was to be assailed and criticised because he preferred a certain distinguished gentleman for the next Democratic nomination. It was true. He did prefer a certain gentleman. He preferred Be great, big man. [Laughter and applause.] He preferred a man who was s lion, and not a fox. [Cheers and sensation.] - He preferred a man who stood out before the country, head and shoulders above every other living Democrat of this age-a man who knew no North, no South, no East, no West—a man who knew one people, a man whose home was the United States—the nagnificent and grand Grover Cleveland, of the State of New York. [Great applause.]

At the conclusion of Mr. O'Ferrall's speech the previous question was ordered without division. The question recurred on the resolutions of the minority as a substitute for the resolution of the majority. A separate vote being demanded, the first vote was taken on the first resolution of the minority which (as substitute) tion of the minority, which (as a substitute) declares that Noyes was not elected. This was carried-yeas, 140; nays, 98-amid ap-plause on the Democratic side.

No Break in the Kepublican Ranks.

No Break in the Republican Ranks. Thirty-nine Democrats voted to sustain the report of the majority. There was no break in the Republican ranks. Then came the vote on the second substitute resolution, leclaring Rockwell entitled to his seat. This was agreed to-yeas, 128; nays, 106. Then Mr. Bryan, of Nebraska, came for ward with a motion to recommit with instructions to the committee to take further testimony bearing upon the 16 Doyle votes and the 28 marked ballots. This was de-feated—yeas, 110; nays, 125; and then the resolutions as amended were agreed to with-out further opposition. Thus Mr. Rockwell was retained in his seat.

The House then took a recess until 8 o'clock, the evening session to be for the consideration of private pension bills.

A BATTLE AT A STATION.

The Train Crew Subdues a Crowd of Tourhs After a Lively Fight. PARKERSBURG, April 22.-[Special.]-Last night the up-train on the Ohio River Railroad took on a crowd of toughs near Mason City. Captain Ed Smith, conductor, approached the leader for his fare and was met by a volley of oaths and a threat that the toughs would "lick" the train. The conductor tried to quiet him, when the tough pulled out a beer bottle and aimed it at the conductor's head. The conductor forced him to his seat, and the station being reached, the toughs got off.

As Conductor Smith and Brakeman Beckwith were standing on the platform the toughs attacked them. One of them aimed a blow at Beckwith that might have killed him but just correct his head. Smith a blow at Beckwith that might have killed him, but just grazed his head. Smith grappled the leader, when another tough staggered him by a blow on the head, and the third tough jumped on the train and signaled the engineer to "go ahead." The train started, leaving the conductor and brakeman behind, when C. T. Caldwell, Prosecuting Attorney of this county, seeing the train that the started of the started that the started the started the started that the started the started the started that the started the started that the started the started that the started tha the trouble, stopped the train. The fireman jumped off the engine, and, taking a pick-handle, jumped into the toughs and mowed them down right and left. One of the toughs had aimed a second death blow at Conductor Smith, when a freight conductor rushed up and poked a revolver under his nose. The battle then ceased and the train proceeded on its way. Smith and Beckwith are the heroes of the hour.

PAYING FOR A JOB.

Angelo Nardez Says the Price Was Too

Bigh and Enters Suit, Alexander Butcher was arrested yester day on a warrant sworn out before Alderman Gripp by Angelo Nardez charging him with false pretense. Butcher is a foreman employed by the Pittsburg Gas Company. The plaintiff alleges that Butcher on the payment of $11 promised to procure him steady work at $1 50 per day. He gave him the $11 and went to work. He worked for one week and was then discharged. This is the third suit of the same kind in two weeks that has been brought against Butcher before Alderman Gripp. The other two cases were settled, but he was held in $500 bail for a hearing to-day on the last charge. last charge.

INCREASING THE VALUATION.

ers Raise the Assessment on Braddock Township Property. The County Commissioners yesterday heard appeals on assessments in Duquesne borough and Mifflin township. The number of appeals was rather limited and the work in consequence light.

Quite an increase was put on the assessments in Braddock township, based on information furnished by J. B. Corrr, of that township, who objected to the low and un-equal assessment of much of the property.

A Big Tin Plate Mill at Aliquippa.

Despite the bad weather of yesterday the office of the Aliquippa Steel Co., room 30, Westinghouse building, presented a busy scene as one looked in on the people coming and going who called to examine the plans of the bristling new town on the P. & L. E. R. R.. Ten lots sold was the record of yesterday, and a number more left pleased with the prospects of a splendid investment, with the assurance that as soon as they could get their money out of the savings bank they would be around to put it in Aliquippa lots. In addition to the lots sold, which now amount to one-fourth of the number laid out, and only a week since they were put on the market, final arrangements were made yesterday by which a mammoth tin plate mill will locate there, work on which will begin immediately, and before long will add its large working force to the army of workers employed in the other factories located there. Aliquippa lots, remember, are all delightfully situated; are large, and exceedingly low in price, and designedly so, as the owners are trying to build a town about their works rather than hold their property at a big price as a speculation. People, not big money, is what they are after, and the success of their new town has exceeded their most sanguine expectation. It's a wise man investigates and invests at Aliquippa. Organs.

In addition to the Steinway, Conover and Opera planos and other musical instruments soid daily at this popular old-time establishment the Messrs. Kleber have also disposed of quite a number of Vocalion church organs. At the low price of $50 the Vocalion furnishes more variety, delicacy and strength of tone than any $2,500 pipe organ, while for dunability it far surpasses the latter.

H. Kleber & Bro. have just received a number of the improved Earhuff mouse and dust proof chapel and Sabbath school organs. They are attractive in appearance and very cheap in price. Also in stock a large assortment of the celebrated Washburn mandolins and guitars, Klebers' specialty banjos and Higham's cornets and band instruments.

The Klebers enjoy the confidence of the public for their integrity, and also for the superior excellence of their instruments. Anything that comes from Klebers' must of necessity be musically perfect and satisfactory. Their store is 506 Wood street.
