the disappointment was keenly felt by the knowing ones who vainly waited for an opportunity to instruct. Along about supper time, when the horny-handed son of toil wended his homeward way, there drifted into the Second precinct of the Eighth ward, a man with a look of wrapt thought upon his beseamed face. He drawled forth his answers, took a blank ballot and repaired to the little canvas box in the rear. He opened the ballot, read every letter and period on it, studied intently for a full minute, rubbed his hand across his forehead a few times and then dashed the paper to the floor and walked out, heeding neither words of query nor command. When on the street he broke away and ran. A curious youth pursued him, and when the voter finally stopped he said in broken tones:

He Had Lost a Bat.

"I've lost a new hat. I made a wage that I could vote under the new law without any explanation. I've failed. I couldn't get the thing through my head and someone will get a new hat to-morrow," and he sadly turned away.

Mr. Kennedy was not about the polls all day. He was seen in his own precinct-the Fourth of the Fourth ward-about 4 o'clock, but seemingly frightened at the small number of votes polled he hastened away again. A new feature of the law made itself manifest and was the occasio for considerable trepidation on the part of the Republican candidate and his support-ers. This was the blank space on the right side of the ballot. Opposite was the name of the party and the candidate, and the blank space, according to an article of the law, could be filled according to the option of the voter.

Mr. Kennedy was asked about this and said there was an opportunity for some skillful maneuvering to be done. "If the space was filled before it was given to the voter it would do away entirely with the chances of underhand work, but as it is the opportunities are good. A man, ambitious for the office, could go to work upon the assurance that, as there was no opposition to the regularly nominated candidate, the vote would be small, and could interest a number of his friends, and with their aid they could ring in a large opposition vote by the voters writing down the name of the self-appointed candidate, and the chances tor the regular nominee's defeat would be good.

Just a Little Alarmed at First.

"I apprehended no such opposition, but when the matter was first broached to me during the early part of the day, I must confess that I felt somewhat exercised over it. But then, of course, it was too late to do anything to prevent the possible contin-gency. I think it is an unwise section as in cases of bitter feeling toward a single candi-date the matter could be turned to suit the wisnes of the silent, though effective opposi-tion. A man might take advantage of this section and permit a candidate to be nomin ated with little or no opposition and then on election day make a great surprise by having his own supporters appear and cast a written vote."

In speaking of his plan of action as Mayor, Mr. Kennedy said he had not yet decided upon what Alderman he should appoint to conduct his magisterial hearings as was published in Thursday's DISPATCH. as was published in Thursday's DISPATCH. "There does not seem to be much chance tor me to appoint police magistrates," he con-tinued, "as Councils have not yet made an appropriation for them. Per-sonally I do not consider this censur-able, as I myself am opposed to inflicting a heavy debt upon Allegheny, when in reality there is no necessity for so many magistrates as the law allows. I shall probably make an Aldermanic ap-pointment, notwithstanding the fact that the entire expense of a substitute will fall upon me. ## TO DISCUSS THE STRIKE.

Meeting of the Building Trades Held in Saller's Hall,

A meeting of the Building Trades Unions was held in Saller's Hall last night to discuss the situation between the Builders Exchange and the Trades Unions.

The hall was well filled with representa tives of various unions, who liberally applauded the sentiments of the speakers. Thomas Grundy, the real estate man, was principal speaker of the evening, and during the course of his remarks he took occasion to anathematize the press, the power of capital and the general condition of politics. Mr. Dougherty, representing the Knights of Labor, followed Mr. Grundy and remarked in a quiet, inoffensive manner that the press was too powerful to make an open fight against, and said it was ad-visable for a contestant to act in a politic manner when fighting power. No definite action was taken on the subject under consideration.

Mrs, Chas. E, Baltzman After Post a Large Property.

Attorneys Young and Trent entered the first of a series of ejectments suits yesterday to be filed to secure possession of a large portion of property in the Fifth and Sixth wards, Allegheny. It is the case of Charles E. Haltzman and Emma J. Haltzman versus Catharine Stewart, to secure possession of a one-twentieth interest of a lot on Beaver avepue, near Locust street. Mrs. Haltzman seems to have been a minor heir at the time the Stewart estate was divided and claims not to have secured her proper share. The details of the suits are not quite clear. Mr. Trent was seen yesterday afternoon, but all he would say was that the suits to follow involve a large was that the suits to follow involve a large amount of money. "There will be scores of suits," said he, "and if we gain this one, a good deal of property in the Fifth and Sixth wards, Allegheny, will change hands." None of the other suits will be entered until the present one is disposed of.

Danger Ahead,

M. Winter & Bro., brewers, granted a wholesale license for Homestead. Jacob Weiskircher and James T. Dowlit could only look at the fact, but per-mitted the witnesses to be called. Among those who appeared as witnesses were Chief Murphy, Chief Ehlers, Dr. Kirker, Chief Assessor John K. Brown and ing, applicants for agencies for the Iron City Brewery, withdrawn. Max Friedman, First ward, Pittsburg, who had been held over for a rehearing, was granted. In the case of D. Lutz & Son, in which In the case of D. Luiz & Son, in which license was refused for one brewery and granted for another, an extensive opinion was handed down by Judge Slagle, giving the reasons for granting but one license to an applicant and deciding a number of points raised by the act of 1891 amending the Brooks law. The opinion in full is as follows:

Meaning of the Act of 1891. The above named firm made application for license as follows: As brewers, at the corner of Vinial and Villa streets, Allegheny City, and at the corner of Spring Garden avenue; as bottlers, at No. 15 Spring Garden avenue; as bottlers, at ao. 15 Spring Garden avenue, Allegheny City; as wholesale deal-ers, at Maple alley, Braddock; Foarth ave-nue, Chartiers borough; Sixth ward, Home-stead, and Railroad street, Harrison township. There is nothing alleged against the char-acter of the applicants, who are well known to the court and believed to be unimpeach-able As to the breweries we have no right to inquire as to their necessity. As to them the only question is the power to grant two licenses to the same persons. As to the other applications there is first a question of right and then of necessity. The act of June 9, 1891, having become a haw after the granting of licenses. Upon applying it this year, we find that it con-tains many important modifications of the law at existed before. The act of May 18, 1897, relating to retail feeting "that none of the applicant simil certify "that none of the applicant simil profits of the business conducted at any other place in said county where then then, there has been no question. A retail dealer is entitled to but one license, and must not be interested in any other place where liquors are sold.

The act of May 24, 1887, relating to manu

follows: "All wholesale dealers, brewers, distillers, rectifiers, compounders, store-keepers and agents having stores or offices within this Commonwealth, dealing in in-toxicating l'quors, either spirituous, vinous or mait, shall pay for each separate store, brewery, distillery, rectilying or compound-ing establishment or agency, an annual license, etc." This act does not in terms limit the number of establishments in which any person may be interested and would seem to authorize any party to conduct such business at more than one place. But the scot of June 9, 1891, makes a radical charge in this respect. With a few excep-tions it is a transcript of the act of May IS, 1887, and indicates the intent to apply the rules as to retail licenses as far as practical to the business of manufacture and sale by wholesale.

applicant and consequently of the power of the Court. It must set forth "the particular place for which license is desired;" that the place to be licensed "is necessary for the accommodation of the public, provided that the provision of this section as to whether the place to belicensed is necessary shall not apply to a brewer or distiller." "It will be observed that in all these statements the certificate is as to a place and not to places. But the sixth and sev-enth clauses are more explicit. The sixth clause embodies the provisions of the retail act of 1857, as follows: "That none of the ap-plicants are in any manner pecuniarily in-

A reduction in coke rates to points west of facturers and wholesale dealers, provides as follows: "All wholesale dealers, brewers, Chicago is talked of, but the agents refused to talk about it for the present. There has been a strong demand for a cut in the rates to Pittsburg and the valleys, but one of the freight men said emphatically that no re-duction would be made. The iron situation is such that the furnace men would appreciate lower rates. Predicts an Old-Time Majority.

to the business of manufacture and safe by wholesale. The first section of the act of June 9, 1891, is identical with that of May 24, 1937, except as to the amounts to be paid for licenses and a proviso authorizing distillers and brewers to deliver their products within the county in wagons properly marked. If there were nothing more, we would be inclined to hold that any person could be licensed to conduct business at more than one place.

But the act further provides that the applicant shall file a statement almost identi-cal with that provided for retailers. This statement is a limitation of the right of the applicant and consequently of the power of

PRESENTED WITH AN OWL

An Old Passenger Man Turus the Tables on Mr. Clark After a Ten Years' Walt.

Assessors Hetze and Stewart, G. W. Snaman, Messrs. Joseph Strassberger, James Gregg, James McCain, John A. Myler, Dr. Wright, James Bradley, Councilmen Mc-Donald and Winters, Superintendent Wad-dington, of Carnegie Library, Alderman McKelvey, Major Lacock, James Splane, Messrs. Harvey, Kaltenberger and Hous-hold, August Loch, George Johnston, De-tective Steele, ex-Chief of Police Kirschler, Andreissen the wholesale liguor dealer and General Passenger Agent A. E. Clark, of the Lake Erie Road, was the recipient of a large owl yesterday, of which he is justly proud. It was shipped to him by W. W. Dunnanant, who formerly worked for Mr. Dunnanant, who formerly worked for Mr. Clark on the Nypano Road. Mr. Clark uses the picture of an owl on his bill posters. About ten years ago he surprised Dun-nanant by telegraphing him one day that he had shipped him 10,000 owls for distribution. The passenger man was very much astounded, and awaited the arrival of the cargo with inter-est. He was disappointed when he saw not the real night bird, but only his picture on a bill poster. Andreissen, the wholesale liquor dealer, and a number of others. They all testified that it was the best and

Accompanying the donation of the owl was a laconic reference to this event of years since, with the addition that he was at last enabled to furnish Mr. Clark with the father of his 10,000 owls. The owl for the present will be used to ornament a window in City Passenger Agent E. C. Dunnavant's office.

Last night the Allegheny Light Committee rejected the proposition of the Alle-General D. H. Hastings was in the city gheny Heating Company to furnish natural gas for the boilers at the light station dur-ing the summer months for $550 per month. Chief Ehlers reported to the committee vesterday on private business. He went to Philadelphia last evening. The General thinks the national tickets will be Cleveland and Harrison. He believes the Repub-lican majority in Pennsylvania will be 80,000, or more if the Democrats fail to harmonize their differences. He says he will be on the stump when the campaign that the difference in the running exponses of the Bureau of Public Light, if natural gas is substituted now for coal, would be in the neighborhood of $486 for the quarter in excess of what it would be if the department is continued as at present.

It has become more apparent every day that the use of heavy wines at dinners and Over 100 pieces (6,000 yards) high that the use of heavy wines at dinners and banquets is gradually being abundoned, and one of the magazines has published interest-ing evidence of this in letters from fashion-able dinner-givers. Rhine wines, clarets and champagne are holding sway, while burgundies, ports and madeiras, formerly obligatory, are being pushed aside. And what is of interest to ab-stainers, or those holding moderate idens, is that these light wines are served with the accompaniment of natural table water which is used either alone or mixed with wine, and so much so that Apollinaris is ever a welcome guest at banquets, clubs and in homes. class PRINTED INDIA SILKS, 24 and 27 inches wide, an extra quality of cloth and in an extraordinary collection of new and beautiful patterns and colorings, equal in appearance to any $2 silk, and quality of cloth never before sold under $1.25-price to-day only $1.
