AN ECHO OF THE KEYSTONE GATHERING

ISPECIAL TELEGRAPHIC LETTER. BUREAU OF THE DISPATCH, WASHINGTON, D. C., April N.

A Senator of the United States, who probably knows more of the inside of the anti-Harrison feeling and inspiration than any other man in the country, talked to me with great frankness to-day on this subject.

"No matter what has been or may be reported," said he, "there is no understanding between the Republican leaders who are opposed to President Harrison's renomination. There is no organization of the op posing forces, and I do not think there will be any. Much depends upon the action of the conventions in New York and in Ohio. If these conventions indorse the President and instruct their delegations for him, that will end any movement against his renomination. If they follow in the wake of the Pennsylvania convention, and compliment the President but permit the delegations to go uninstructed, it is possible that an attempt may be made to nominate another than Harrison, Whom to concentrate upon is the difficult question to solve. I believe that Biaine is the only Republican who could be elected. Blaine is perfectly honest in his declination, but suppose the convention nominates him and then immediately adjourns. What else could Blaine do than accept? He could not ask the convention to reassemble and choose a new man. He would be forced to accept, even against his own will.

The Chances in Favor of Defeat.

"Now, here let me inject," continued the Senator, "a n expression of opinion that may not be palatable to our own party, but which may as well be looked in the face. The chances are largely in favor of defeat of the action method." the national candidates of the Republican party next fall. For my own part I do not believe that any man excepting Blaine can be elected. Indiana is gone beyond salvation this year, but Blaine can carry New York. Four years ago he could not have carried that State. No other candidate can carry either Indiana or New York, and carry either Indiana or New York, and without those States we must gain victories in West Virginia and Connecticut to win. But in West Virginia the Democrats have the election officers, and they would count out any Republican majority there could be mined there.

gained there. "In plain words, therefore, no man excepting Blaine can win, in my opinion, and Blaine will not have it unless he is forced Blaine will not have it unless he is forced into it. But suppose the convention should nominate Blaine in spite of his sincere re-fusal to permit the use of his name, and that he should then be defeated, the party would be rescentible to the chamber at once. The law is very important. It enables the consolidation of mining property and leveling it to the position of ordinary real estate, the only restriction fusal to permit the use of his name, and that he should then be defeated, the party would be responsible for administering a cruel blow to the great leader from which he never would recover. The convention has no right to place Blaine in nomination against his will, when the possibilities of defeat are so great. If then, we must not nominate Blaine, and it no other than Blaine can win, what is the use of nominat ing a new man? So far as I am concerned I prefer, as one who does not like Harriso even a little bit, to give the nomination to the President without a struggle, and let him be the most conspicuous sufferer from detest.

Fhillips' Little Bombshell Formed. When it became known that nothing had been said of Mr. Quay, Phillips, of Schuyl-kill, swore that in a convention, where nine of every ten delegates were friends of the Senator, it was a shame that his name should not be mentioned. He was informed of the Senator's expressed wish, but an-swered that he did not care a continental what Quay said, he would see that a Quay's friends saw it was impossible to prevent something of the kind from being done, they suggested that, to avoid friction, the resolution be written by a close friend of Mr. Magee, but the impulsive Phillips had escaped, and, of his own will, brought into the convention the resolution that raised the one row of the session. The Pennsyl-vanian who tells me this asserts also that the negative outery was confined to 12 or 15 delegates. delegates.

Quay Too Ill to Come to Pittsburg. Senator Quay returned to the capital yesterday, after a visit, since the State Con-vention, with Senator Cameron, at Done-gal. SPRINGFIELD, ILLS., April 26.—The in-dications point to the nomination of John P. Altgild, of Chicago, for Governor, by the Democratic State Convention, which meets here to-morrow. The preliminary work of the convention is progressing rap-idly, the platform being already practically agreed on. Palmer will be warmly in-dorsed for the Presidency, although the delegates to the National Convention may not be positively instructed for him. Congressmen Forman and Fithian and other Southern Illinois politicians are op-posed to any expression on the Presidental question except an unqualified indorsement of Grover Cleveland. They are in the minority, however, but will doubtless make a stubborn fight. A midnight a proposition of compromise on the Presidental question was being dis-cussed. It provides for the indorsement of Palmer, but instructs the Illinois dele-gation to vote as a unit for Grover Cleve-land should his name at any time be pre-sented by the State of New York. This proposition was received with general favor, and will undoubtedly be submitted to the Committee on Resolutions to-morrow. he committee agreed on a time for holding their convention, and without a negative vote Columbus was chosen as the place. Chairman Norton, in calling the meeting to order, sounded the call for a Western man for President. After explaining the object of the meeting of the committee, and Although a much-discussed compromise was supposed to have settled the differences between the friends of Cleveland and Gray in Indiana, there is every evidence that there will be a split in the delegation which goes to Chicago. The Cleveland delegates are enraged over the boast made by Senator Voorhees that Gray had about two-thirds of the Indiana delegation and over the split referring to the importance of the comin campaign, he paid Cleveland and Hill each a compliment, but aroused the committee to a degree of enthusiasm by declaring it was not essential to the success of the party that either of these gentlemen be the standard the Indiana delegation, and over the spirit shown by the Senator to "rub it in." There has been some quiet hobmobbing on the part of the Cleveland members of the Indiana delegation, at which they figured out that of the 30 Indiana delegates to Chi-cago, Cleveland will have 12, Gray 16, doubtful 2. The certain opportunity of success undoubtedly lies in a western candidate's nomination, but, no matter who it is, he pledged the loyalty of the Ohio Democracy. He gave the Repub-lican Legislature several rubs, and intima-ted that the biggest part of the coming cam-paign would be taken up by the Republi-can party in defending the action of this body. He congratulated the party on the lack of harmony which pervaded in the Republican party. Feeling of the Anti-Harrison Leaders. I am well assured that the remarks of this Senator, thus briefly quoted, reflect the teeling among nearly all of the anti-Har-rison leaders. While preparing for a val-iant fight, they have little or no hope of success, and they would rather see Harrison defeated than anyone else. I have been assured within a few days, on the authority of one of Blaine's warm-est admirers and closest friends, that the great Secretary declined to be a candidate not so much on account of a fear for his health, as because he looked upon the Re-publican cause as almost hopeless this year on account of the conditions in doubtful States, and did not desire to suffer defeat a second time.

According to these anti-administration men, the refusal of conventions to instruct is not for the purpose of effecting a combinais not for the purpose of effecting a combina-tion against Harrison, but merely that the delegations may go the convention un-pledged and have the opportunity to act in the light of that time. Great changes might occur between the dates of the State Con-ventions and that of the National Conven-tion, and in view of the doubtful outlook of the party as well as the unpenderite of the party, as well as the unpopularity of President Harrison with the leaders, it is thought to be wise to prevent as far as pos-sible the pledging of delegations.

Enloe's Great Breach of Decorum. Of course, members of Congress are of like passions with other men, but it has been rare indeed in the history of Congress that a Chairman of an investigating com mittee, bent upon exposing the weaknesses and misdeeds of another, has so far torgotten himself as Representative Enloe, of Tennes-see, did to-day, in the Pension Bureau investigation. Enloe asserted that General Raum had made certain admissions to him in a private conversation. Raum denied this emphatically. "You are a liar," shouted Enloe, and "you are a liar," came back from Raum. Enloe started toward Raum, to "do him up" in true Sullivan style, but was held by other committee members and by reporters. Raum remarked that while he feared no man he did not seek trouble, and picked up his hat and left the room. The report is out that Rsum ran from the room, but this is not true. He walked very rapidly.

waited very rapidly. Enloc's conduct was truly disgraceful. While Raum has undoubtedly done many things he should not have done; while he has been hurt and disgraced by a foolish and unserupulous son whom he unwisely appointed to position in his own bureau; while the great Pension Bureau is shown to be emerging under a mercil later. to be operating under a worul lack of dis cipline, with censurable conduct rightly chargeable against many of the clerks and officials, Enloe has pursued his work not as an investigator, but as a prosecutor, deter-mined to convict regardless of the evidence. The disgraceful performance of to-day is really no worse than his conduct all through vote and deteated the investigation, though it was more fla-grantly unparliamentary.

Funny Stories of the Convention.

A SCHEMER AT HIS OLD TRICKS.

From His Cell in a Jersey City Jail He Works a Confidence Game.

NEW YORK, April 26.-[Special.]-E. Wilson Stoddard, who is now in the Hudson county jail in Jersey City, is at his old tricks. During the past month between 15 and 20 women of this city have received piteous appeals for financial aid from Stoddard. News of this reached the Charity Organization Society, and Secretary Charles D. Keilogg has sent out warnings against the man to the members. In November last Stoddard sent similar letters to United States Senator Gordon, of Georgia, and Dr. William Marcar of Nacherille The determined William Morrow, of Nashville. To these he attached the name of Miss Winnie Davis, the daughter of the ex-President of the Confederacy. He was tried, convicted and Confederacy. He was tried, convicted and sentenced to ten years in prison. He is now in the county jail on a stay pending an ap-peal. The letters run in part: "Will you have compassion on one who pleads for mercy in Christ's sweet name, who asks not for justice? I am a stranger in this part of the country, and would spare my aged mother grief and humiliation." Several of the women who received letters sent checks, some for $50.

convention. The Ohio Democratic conven tion will be the last State convention held to select delegates at large. This is another feature of the harmonious understanding of the Ohio Bourbons, and is the point of the programme which means to send the Ohio delegation to the National convention as a unit, with the purpose of nominating a can-didate or dictating such nomination. The idea is to improve the doubtful expediency of nominating Cleveland by going to the convention prepared to stand up for Senator Brice or ex-Governor Campbell.

The Big Four for Ohio.

A member of the committee and a close friend of John R. McLean said in explain-ing the sudden getting together of the two factions: "We must admit that Hill is clear factions: "We must admit that Hill is clear out of it, and the Cleveland boom is on the wane. There is a chance for Senator Brice or ex-Governor Campbell, and why not go there with the understanding that the one commanding the strongest sup-port be put forward? Yes, I know Gover-nor Campbell is for Cleveland, but if

Grover is out of the race, he will certainly be friendly to his own interests, if not to Senator Brice's. The convention will be Senator Brice a The convention will be harmonious, and it will send Senator Brice, ex-Governor Campbell, Judge Virgil P. Kline and Hon. A. W. Thurman to Chicago as delegates at large. John R. McLean could go if he wanted to. He does not. He will be the next chairman of the Na-tional Committee Object in the Mational Committee. Ohio's delegation to that convention will be in position to come mighty near naming the Presidental can-
