GENERAL SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

Although the local team of sluggers made some game efforts to win yesterday's ball game at Exposition Park, they failed, and Jack Chapman and his gay band of Colonels left the city last evening with two victories out of the three games played here on their trip.

But it was a great game for all that, and cranks who like to see an exciting tussle, regardless of who wins, had nothing to complain about. There were about 3,000 people present to see the game, and there were many opportunities for the testing of lung power.

He Started Badly. Ehret again tried his hand at pitching for the home team and once again he showed that he is a wretched starter. That first inning was a setback, although at stages it looked as if it would be overcome. But in the eighth Red was touched up quite lively, and that touched up completely settled the matter. With the exception of the two innings he pitched a splendid game, but his fallings on these two occasions ruined everything.

Probably a pitcher was never supported better on the local grounds than Ehret was yesterday. It is no exaggeration to say that the fielding of his colleagues was really wonderful. Pop Corkhill made catches that simply sent the crowd wild. Smith and Miller also were in form in catching flies. The infield was a regular team. They hit the ball well also, but the hits were not made at the most opportune time, and there was a very sad drawback for the local men.

To be sure the visitors played a splendid game, and they can do it when they are all right. Their fielding was good all round. Stratton pitched a little better than he has, but he saw that the hits were so distributed through the game that run-getting was not by any means so brisk as it might have been. The home players played a little better than they have, and at stages displayed only moderate team work. Stratton, too, fooled almost every man who faced him by pitching the first ball a good one. The batters always seemed to pass, and a strike was the result. It was strange that the local men did not tumble to this. It was pleasing to note that Stratton was well received by the Pittsburgh crowd.

Didn't Forget Jones. Before the second ball the first inning was commenced by Alexander McKeon Jones was called from the bench and presented with a valuable diamond, the gift of his home-state friends. Then he went back to the bench, and his colleagues started to win the game.

Tom Brown was the first to face Ehret, and struck out beautifully. Pfeiffer went to first on balls, and then Emmett Seery was called out on strikes. This looked lively for the home people, but Pete Browning landed at the plate, and he was promptly yanked out a long hit left for a base. Then Mr. Jennings soaked the ball and handed it into right for another base, scoring Pfeiffer and Browning. Taylor got to first on balls, and little Billy Kuehn wrapped out a good single to right, scoring Jennings and sending Taylor to third. Kuehn started to steal second, and while the home infield were busy putting him out Taylor crossed the plate with the fourth very big run.

When the third inning came round Ehret and Miller were both retired on flies, and Bierbauer came in to pitch to the right field. Elmer Smith scored Bierbauer on a single, and Farrell made a single. The ball bounded off Jennings' foot, but it was too hot to record an error for it. Beckley's grounder, however, forced Farrell out at second, and hopes of run getting were blighted.

Made a Gallant Effort. In the seventh the home talent made a real gallant effort to tie the score and came near doing it. Shugart started out with a single to left field, and Corkhill's sacrifice hit sent him to second. Seery and Earl knocked the ball close to the left field line for two bases. Browning made a bold attempt to get hit but failed, and Shugart scored. Ehret kept up the good work and knocked a single over second base and Earle scored. This was all as strategy, and for the home cranks. There was only one man out and everybody was sure of another run at least. But Stratton was in the way, and as a result Miller and Bierbauer each knocked out flies that were very well caught by Browning and Brown. That made the crowd weary.

But the Colonels clinched matters in the eighth, and in a very lucky manner at that. After Brown had been caught out by Corkhill on a hill by a most remarkable running catch, Pfeiffer sent out a foul fly over the right line. Corkhill, too, caught that, and it was a wonderful effort. Seery, however, was sent to second, and Seery and Earl knocked the ball close to the left field line for two bases. Browning made a bold attempt to get hit but failed, and Shugart scored. Ehret kept up the good work and knocked a single over second base and Earle scored. This was all as strategy, and for the home cranks. There was only one man out and everybody was sure of another run at least. ANOTHER LEAGUE FOR US

The State Organization Wants to Put a Club in the City. We are to have lots of baseball here if everybody's programme is carried out in fact there may be too much of it.

Frank Torreyson, of McKeesport, and a Pittsburgh gentleman, are making efforts to put a State league club in this city. Yesterday Mr. Torreyson had a conference with President Temple on the matter and the latter was willing to allow a State league club to come here but the directors of the local league club will have to determine the matter.

Lowell Will Sign Second Base. CAMP may be given a try at the Baltimore. TOMMY's rest for our sluggers may turn the tide. The Bostons are certainly starting out like winners.

Washington, April 27.—Two games were played here to-day, and Boston captured both, the first on its merits and the second through errors by Dowd, Larkin and D. Richardson. The weather was pleasant and the attendance was good.
