A TIRADE AGAINST JUDGE AND JURY

MELBOURNE, May 2.-This was the last day of the celebrated Deeming murder trial. After the evidence was all in the prisoner's counsel appealed to the jury to give the prisoner the benefit of any doubt that they might entertain as to his sanity or insanity. It was generally thought that the trial would end to-day, and, consequently, the court room was packed. No one thought it would take the jury long to decide the fate of the accused. Outside of the court house a large crowd assembled, and they were clamorously impatient for the verdict. They finally became so demonstrative and noisy that the police were forced to clear

Finally the jury returned and delivered their verdict. Their decision was murder in the first degree, and that Deeming was not insane when he committed it. The prisoner was then sentenced to death. The innouncement of the verdict was greeted with expressions of general satisfaction. for no one believes that there is a particle of doubt as to Deeming's guilt, not only of the murder here, but of those committed at Rain Hill, near Liverpool.

Deeming Begins an Hour's Speech, Before the jury retired the Crown coun-sel contended that there was not a particle of evidence of the insanity of the prisoner, and he said that the jury ought to dismiss all such nonsense from their minds. At this point Deeming interrupted. It was not the law, he said, but the press that was trying him. If he could bring himself to be-lieve that he committed murder he would plead guilty rather than submit to the gaze of the people in the court—the ugliest race be had ever seen.

Some of the witnesses against him, he said had deliberately lied. Whatever he could say would be disbelieved. His witnesses had been kept out of the way. People had sworn to seeing him whom he had never seen in his life. No time had been allowed him to communicate with his witnesses in England and India.

It is not pleasant to confess to disease, mental or otherwise, but he had determined to do so in justice to himself and the community. For weeks together he had suffered lapses of memory. In his own mind he knew he was not guilty. As long as Emily Mathers had been his wife he had dealt with her as gently and as affectionately as it was possible for any man to deal with a woman. The prisoner, continuing,

He Says Emily Mathers Is Alive. I remember no incident which would lead to this awful crime with which I am charged. I know that the people of Melbourne are so infuriated against me that they would lynch me if they had a chance. That, however, would not settle the question of my guilt or innocence. The state-ment that the body found in this city was that of Emily Mathers is a lie. My one com-fort is the knowledge that Emily Mathers is

The newspapers have ruined my life for evermore. If I were freed to night I would drown myself. I have fought the blacks on the Zembest, and have encountered lions single-handed. I do not fear death. I do not expect justice from either the Judge, the jury or the public. Instead of the trial being postponed so as to enable my counsel to collect evidence showing my innocence of the horrible crime for which I am being tried for my life, it was fixed to occur when the public was enraged against me.

Deeming minutely criticised the evidence, and declared that a verdict of guilty would keeple greatest relief to him. He said that his use of assumed names was a Deeming Returns Thanks for the Verdict. o'clock Deeming asked the Judge to refrain from the usual exhortation. The Judge complied with the prisoner's wish, and simply announced the sentence of death. Deeming composedly responded, "Thank you." When the sentence had been pro-nounced, Deeming said that after his death the public would soon know his real history. It was better that the law should destroy him than that he should destroy him-self. He would only like to know that Miss Rounsevell believed him innocent.

In a strong voice he continued to ramble in a similar strain for a long time. Reaching the rails for support, he concluded by swearing that he was innocent. He spoke altogether an hour, giving no sign of hesitation or nervousness. Deeming can delay execution by an appeal from the verdict in the colonies, which appeal must be heard by the Judicial Com-mittee of the Privy Council in London. If the Judges accede to the petition to rehear, a further inquiry will occur. The last instance of the kind was the case of the BERLIN, May 2.-Reports have reached here that over a ton of dynamite and gunpowder has been stolen from the magazines at Corfu, the Greek island in the Mediterranean, where the King of Greece makes his summer residence. No details are given, but it is thought the dynamite and gunpowder were stolen in small quantities at a time by men employed in the magazines.

A dispatch from Albany, capital of the French Department of Taro, says a dynamite cartridge exploded in a bystreet in that city last night. The explosion caused considera-ble damage. Of course, every one believes the explosion was the work of an Anarchist, but there is no clew to his identity. Many peddlers of photographa frequented the Paris boulevards last night. Of their stock in trade the photographs of the Marquis de Mores and Ravachol met with the most ready sale. A dispatch from Liege, Belgium, says: A dynamite cartridge exploded on the threshold of a house in the Boulevard Sauveniere this evening. The house and a building adjoining were partially wrecked, the flagstones were torn up and all the win-

SHAKESPEARE VS. SULLIVAN.

Modjeska in As You Like It as Charming as Ever, and Her Support Is Very Good -The Champion Pugilist as an Actor-The Voodoo, a Knock-About Farce Comedy-All the Plays in Town Criti-

Shakespeare's comedy "As You Like It" was presented at the Duquesne Theater by a company that is not merely a good support to Modjeska, the eminent star, but for the most part far more satisfactory than any that has essayed to interpret the greatest of all dramatists in these parts of late. Modjeska is still the great artist and the charming woman that we have known for years, and her embodiment of Rosalind is as polished and refined as ever, and distinctly her own rendering of Shakespeare's delicious creation. She is at her best in the dainty love passages with Orlando in the green wood glade, and the habiliments of perfidious man, it may be observed, seidom have failen upon a more shapely Rosalind. Mr. Thalberg's Orlando can hardly be said to possess the same physical characteristics, and the performance lacks ardor and manly intensity. But Mr. Thalberg has a melodious voice and he is evidently a careful student of Shakespeare, as the beauties of the text at least were well displayed by him. After the realistic wrestling match—a welcome change from the usual farce—an Orlando less of a chamber knight might have been looked for. Mr. John A. Lane was of course simply admirable as Jacques—his rendering of this character will live as a tradition of the stage. Mr. Beaumont Smith, in spite of a recent calamitous descent into a pit, played Touchsione in a dry and truly Shakespearean style. Mrs. Smith was graceful as Celia, and was another of those who dealt reverently with the text. creation. She is at her best in the dainty was graceful as Letta, and was another of those who dealt reverently with the text. Most of the others were good, and here and there a careful bit of acting revealed merit in minor roles, as for instance the bucolic placidity expressed in all the words, looks and attitudes of Coria, the shepherd, played by Mr. R. P. Carter. The scenery was nicely ordered. ordered.
To-night "Marie Stuart" will be given, with Modjeska in the title role.

John L. Sullivan as an Actor. There were packed into the gallery of the Bijon Theater last night 978 men and boys, and the rest of the house was pretty well filled. The stage was occupied by a number of people and a play, but to use a congenial phrase, they were not in it. The audience was there to see one man, John L. Sullivan — and they would have endured Booth in "Hamlet" with just as much patience as a prelude to the great man's entrance. The play is not a bad comedy-drama, as they call the milder sort of melodrama nowadays, and the company is fair. Mr. Sullivan, as everyone knows, is a great actor—not in his mind as some inflated nobodies are, but in his fists, and "Henest Hearts and Willing Hands" gives him a good-sized chance to use them picturesquely. Wisely the managers put the boxing bout near the final curtain, thus ensuring a large audience till the last. When the champion finally came on in green tights and proceeded to pat Mr. Jack Ashton with the playful insistence and force of a bear that has been brought up in a gymnasium, the 978 in the gallery howled and the more than 400 in the parquet hurled the welcome back. The three short rounds did not develop any real artistic singains, and the give and take slaps merely whetted the audience's desire for some realism. "Hit him hard!" "Biff him, John!" "Why don't yer sing him?" were the frequent cries, but to no effect. Mr. Sullivan, looking very fat and much slower in his movements than when last seen here, punched Mr. Ashton nonderously but perfunctorily, and then the audience departed. was there to see one man, John L. Sullivan

A Hoodno for Good Luck.

As a merry knock-about farce comedy "The Voodoo" is about up to the standard. It made a good-sized audience laugh heartily for two hours and more last night at th Grand Opera House, and that is as much as farce comedy can be expected to do, we sup-pose. The ridiculous story of a superstitious woman's hunt for the seven hairs from a man's beard that shall bring her great good luck, is really well kept up through three acts. The chief color in it is the alleged Irish comedy. Nearly all the characters are broad burlesque of the Irish race in the usual stage style. Messrs. Steve Staley, W. A. Mack, Edgar Norton and Will Carleton are the principal comedians, and they all succeed in making themselves very laughable. The fun goes along in a fast and furious stream all through the play. In the second act the all through the play. In the second act the old idea of bathing houses at the sea shore is exploited once more, and with funny result. Miss Ada Bothner's serpentine dance, under a new name, is a rather taking feat-ure, and the other specalties in act II, are all pretty good, Mr. Mack repeating a recita-tion that he gave here in "A Jolly Surprise." The singing of Alonzo Hatch won him an encore, and, indeed, most of the songs and chorus sprinkled over the piece were rede-manded. The audience laughed and ap-plauded with apparent enthusiasm.

The World's Museum-Theater.

Andrew J. Seymour's mind-reading per formances had a mysterious power about them that aided in attracting an unusually large house at the World's Museum-Theater yesterday. Then there was a very clever vaudeville performance on the stage that vaudeville performance on the stage that would have been worthy of high praise even in comparison with more renowned companies on the road. In the curio hall Soto Salutaro, the Jan, performed some magical tricks that would have pleased an Indian fakir, had he witnessed them. Mr. Seymour will do his great mind-reading feat with a carriage, etc., to-day, as the storm prevented his doing it vesterday. his doing it yesterday.

The Academy of Music.

Sam T. Jack's Creole Burlesque Com pany attracted a crowded house at the Academy last evening. There are some good performers in the company and they good performers in the company and they were well received last night. "The Tropical Revelries" introduced some very entertaining artistes, such as Miss Sadie DeWolf, Salls, Elexinay and W. S. Barnett. Fred Piper, a descriptive vocalist, is a pleasing performer. The acrobats, Williams, Smart and McGowan, are very clever in their business. The company is sure to be well patronized.

The County Circus at Davis'.

The first circus of the season opened to a packed house at Harry Davis' Fifth Avenue Museum-Theater yesterday afternoon, and repeated its triumph in the evening. Al-though the county circus exhibits in a buildthough the county circus exhibits in a building, it is bigger than some of the circuses of the present day. The acrobats and equestrian and other performers with the organization are stars in their particular line. Clark Gibbs is very funny as the clown. The show is good throughout. The street parade yesterday morning was a big success, though it was rather damp when it finished.

The Barris Theater.

"Two Old Cronies" has about as much excuse for its existence as the majority of farce comedies. It affords a vehicle for some clever specialties. The Wills brothers are fair comedians and their company is above the average. Miss Norma Wills seems a little out of her sphere in farce comedy. With her face, figure and voice—particularly the latter—she would far outshine many a comic opera star.

Dramatic Notes. THE United States Marine Band gives two poncerts here on Thursday. FRANK FISHER, an Allegheny boy, is one o the clever people in "Two Old Cronies" at Harris' Theater this week. "MR. WILKINSON'S WIDOW" comes to the Alvin Theater next week. The performance of "Belshazzar" at the Alvin Theater last night is treated on the fourth page of this issue,

New Purchases Make the Pennsy a Real Rival of the Reading In

THE ANTHRACITE COAL TRAFFIC

Temescal Has Sufficient Tin Ore to Supply the Whole Country.

FIRES, FAILURES AND RAILWAY NEWS

PHILADELPHIA, May 2 - Almost every day brings fresh indications of the aggressive policy which the Pennsylvania Railroad has entered upon in the anthracite coal trade. Following the chartering of the Tomkschen, Millsville and Eastern Railroad, an eight-mile road which the "Pennsy" will build in the Lehigh region to reach the Stout colliery, whose output it has bought, comes an authoritative announcement that the company has also purchased the output of the William Penn colliery, near Shenandoah, one of the largest in operation in the Schuylkill region. Its annual output of about 300,000 tons now passes over the Read-ing Railroad, but by building a short branch of about a mile and a half from the Schuylkill valley, the Pennsylvania can reach the colliery. The proprietors are E. & G. Brooks, the iron men of Birdsboro. The new arrangement goes into effect to-day. By these new acquisitions the Pennsylvania has increased its annual anthracite tonnage to easily 5,000,000 tons, an amount which on a total production of 40,000,000 tons last year's figures, is equal to 12½ per cent. If pushed to the full capacity, the collieries controlled by the Pennsylvania can readily, it is said, turn out 7,000,000 tons, or 17.5 per cent on a basis of 49,000,000 tons. This is sufficient to prevent effectually any monopoly of the coal trade by the Reading, if the latter should attempt it. Add to the "Pennsys" tonnage that of the Pennsylvania Coal Company, the New York, Ontario and Western Railroad and the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company, which are not in the Reading combination, and the total tonnage of the independent companies is between 30 and 40 per cent of

He said: "One object of my trip was to ascertain from personal observation the extent of the deposit of tin in the Temescal mines, as we are building a large amount of tin plate machinery, and I came away well pleased. As to its value, the celebrated tin ore of Cornwell, England, assays 72% per cent, while the Temescal assays from 6 to 7 per cent. I would rather have an interest in those mines than anything else. "There is enough tin ore in sight at Temescal to run all the tin plate plants for years."

A Quotation From an Eminent Authority:

"The clothing industry of the United States is simply without a parallel. There is nothing like it in volume of product, value of output, variety of styles, excellence of workmanship, beauty of fashions or in general convenience and economy to be found elsewhere in the world. Including all classes, the people of the United States. are more uniformly well dressed than those of any other nation. It is also true that they are enabled to array themselves thus comfortably and tastefully with less exertion than is required from the people of any other nation. Better clothing is sold to-day for less cost than ever before in the history of this country.'
