An Engineer Who Was Surprised by His Locomotive Going

UP GRADE WITHOUT ANY STEAM. Pittsburg Delegates to the Brotherhood's

Annual Meeting. AN OLD-TIME TRIP TO PHILADELPHIA

The 'tie pile" gossip that is exchanged between trainmen while being held up on the siding for No. 3 to pass, generally from one to two hours late, is sometimes very interesting. Here and in the yard can always be found men who have worked on nearly | progress has been made in railroading. The every line in the country, and of the few on | iron horse is of recent origin, and 60 years which they have not labored they have a lago he was almost unknown in the United perfect knowledge and can give a complete | States. Nowadays travelers are not stock, names of officers, and when and how mile a minute, and if they arrive often they have been discharged from other lines dwelling longest upon the case of that behind schedule time, they condemn the lines, dwelling longest upon the case of that meanest man, the superintendent of the Fourteenth division. A great deal of this the trainmaster or division su-perintendent, and they will tell you it is strange how close the men come to secrets that are supposed to be safely locked in the President's office, but have in some unaccountable manner leaked out. They have information from all of the departments, and can tell of the placing of an order for ten new engines by the purchas-ing department, and where the order will go, 30 days before it reaches the manufacturer's hands. They will also tell you in

The following is told by Traveling Passenger Agent Worden, of the Lake Erie road. He vouches for its truthfulness, and would furnish a statement from the engineer

August with 21 empties, running as second section of train 34. The regular and ourachievement and paraded the fact before the people as an advertisement.

A few days ago General Passenger Agent Clark, of the Lake Erie road, received an old card, which he prizes very highly, from W. W. Dunnavant, of Warren, O. It was published to Meadwille, and we were ordered to at loose from our train, and attached to the loose from our train, and attached train trains. tank of 68 that cut off our water supply in about half a minute. The accident was reout loose from our train, and attached to the er blowing the water out of our boiler. and without disconnecting any of the parts the engine, we finally started out of envittsburg. My engineer went into the Leavistaburg. My engineer went into the caboose and stretched himself out on the cashiens, and I climbed into the cab of the disabled engine and nade myself as comparable as possible.

Now the main line between Kent and Madaville is, or was at the time, a very uncomplece of road, being up hill and down daie, the deepest dale being at Crawfords and the highest hill at Evansburg. The addition of our engine to the train of regular ill seemed to worry their engineer considerably, and in ascending several slight describly, and in ascending several slight trades we nearly stalled.

A Surprise for the Engineer. However we reached that part of the road where we were to begin the descent into Crawfords' Hole, and knowing how madly the trains rushed down the grade nd how wildly the brakemen flew from car to car, with a view to lighten their labors in measure. I threw the lever of old 68 to the farthest notch and pulled back to the farthest notch and pulled the throttle wide open. Until this moment I had never given a thought to the action of the machinery of a locomotive, except as being supplied with force from its own interior. Imagine then my surprise and horror as I saw the hand on the steam gauge sundenly start from its peg and move slowly around the face of the dist. Demons had certainly taken possession of the old engine, for there was no'n spark of fire in her farnace and her botier was as empty as a drum; yet here, as we rounded the curve at the bottom of the hole and struck the ascending grade, the gauge showed a pressure of 95 pounds. My are showed a pressure of 95 pounds. A I the throttle, threw the lever forward minted dead away.
low long I remained unconscious I never out when I regained my senses the ning backward crowding my le as though it would topple over into the teh. Involuntarily I grasped the throttle dimether furch of the engine caused me jerk it open. I then saw that we were sting the foot of Crawford's hole, and I alized that the train lad parted near the p of the grade, and that six cars and old had ran a mad mee to the bottom. The cam gauge showed 140 pounds, and the ext moment the 'pop' let go and I was surject at the sudden stop she made after viking the uscending grade. Immediately e shritted ahead, with regular exhausts and started aboad, with regular exhausts an ented to be working all right. She pushed use six cars to the top of the hill, and soon overtook the other part of the frain that had come to a stop about four miles away. Operated by Cold Air.

With the engine moving forward, lever thrown back and throttle open the action of the valves and piston head or follower and been reversed, and had acted as an air up, taking the air in at the nozzle and og it into the boiler through the dry ing down Evansburg hill I again had old 68 until she 'popped,' and after ssing the junction I helped the train into e yard, blew the necessary signals, placed ose on the side track, and then took e captine into the shop, the gange showing pounds when I left her. While e engine was working a singular renomenon occurred, for when she than ted I could see what I ought were clouds of snow blown from her thought were clouds of snow blown from her stack. Arriving at the shop were I could examine her. I found her hood filled with snow and ice, while huge leicles were hanging from her machinery and there were fully four inches of snow on the top of her cab. Old 68 had turned into a verifable ice medime, and I was confined to my bed over a year from the effects of a cold which I caught at the time. This I think is the only case on second (that is where the fact can be proven) where a locomotive has done a half days work on wind. I had nearly forgotton the occurrence re-

"I had hearly forgotten the occurrence re-ated above, and it might have passed from my memory forever, had I not witnessed the actual application of atmospheric pressure on maircoad. In the winter of 1890 I was on in raires at, in the winter of 1881 was on a rospecting tour in the Sierra Madre untains that run along the eastern line of State of Oaxaca, in Mexico. It was on a re narrow gauge line whose only traffic is from the mountains to the town of ore from the mountains to the town of Gulapa. The locomotive was simply a huze air chamber, with four air pumps or cylinders. In going down grade or holding back the chamber was filled with a pressure sufficient to take the empty train back to the mines."

NEW JOB FOR ARTHUR.

Engineers Baye Faith in Their Chief, and They Want to Push Him Higher, The twenty-eighth annual meeting of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers will be held in Atlanta this week. A party of engineers from the middle and Pittsburg divisions of the Pennsylvania road arrived divisions of the Pennsylvania road arrived at the Central Hotel hast evening. They will start for Atlanta this morning. In the crowd were R. L. Hunter, Harrisburg, and C. Caliwell, P. H. Dell, Joshua Rhodes, J. P. Rivens, M. E. Geisy, J. Konntz, M. C. Kelly, Emmett Pahns, all of Derry, and Alex McAlicher, of Harrisburg. They are delegates, and will represent these divisions of the Pennsylvania road.

Mr. Hanter, In speaking of the coming convention, said: "There is considerable talk of creating a new and higher office for Chief Arthur. It will be the prand councilor, or something else. We have discussed the subject pretty thoroughly in the East, and all the engineers favor the idea. If this is done Mr. Arthur will be elected to the new position, and Mr. Youngson, his assistant, will be made Chief of the Brotherhood. If the position is not created Arthur will certainly be reelected. The charge has been made against him that he has grown rich out of his position. I don't believe he ever accepted a cent from a railroad. By careful investments he has managed to accumulate considerable money, enough to make him independent of his present job. He is a Christian man, and the engineers have great faith in his integrity. He has always worked for our interests."

The indications are that on account of the World's Fair the next convention will not be held for two years. It is 18 months since the last one conveneed.

Every old-timer will remember the Penn
Every old-timer will remember the Penn Every eld-timer will remember the Pennsylvania Canal. It ran through the present Fanhandie tunnel under Grant street, and the main wharfwas where the Union station now stands. The canal was carried across the Allegheny river near the Ft. Wayne railroad bridge in a sort of huge wooden trough. Thence it proceeded east, and struck the old Portage road in the Allegheny Mountains. In the canal days Clarke and Thaw were the great Pittsburg shippers. This was William Thaw, who in this manner laid the foundation of his fortune, that he afterward invested in the Pennsylvania Railroad system, and Mr. Clarke was the inther of Charles J. Clarke, the millionaire. The success of the canal across the State is a matter of history. It is a mistake to abandon old ideas, and a ship waterway to Eric ought to be built next.

MADE THE BOY FULL FOR FUN.

Little Peter Wilson Drinks Two Pint Whisky and Gets Sick.

Peter Grablish, Paul Mungish and John Price were arrested for giving Peter Wilson, aged 13 years, an overdose of whisky. The risoners board with the boy's mother at No. 21 Kirkpatrick street, Thirteenth ward, and early yesterday morning they arose, and, after partaking freely of their whisky, concluded to fill the poy up. The prisoners took a pint tin and filled it almost full and gave it to the boy. He drank the whisky as the boy emptied it again. A short time afterward the boy ran out into the rear yard

The Penna, R. R. Co.'s Experience,

The experience of the Penna, Railroad Co. in cleaning their cars and offices is a curious example of the benefits of chemistry when applied to the small things of life.

The railroad company had great trouble with the paint scuffing and wearing out on their cars. The matter reached a climax when a new car, built for the directors and finished in the finest manner, was returned to the Altoona shops after one trip with the finished in the finest manner, was returned to the Altoona shops after one trip with the paint looking scuffed and dingy. The cause of this rapid deterioration of the paint was referred to the chemist of the company, Mr. C. B. Dudley, of Altoona. By careful investigation and analysis he discovered that the whole trouble was caused by the soap used in washing the cars containing a large amount of free and carbonate alkall, which, of course, was fatal to the varnish and paint.

of course, was fatal to the varnish and paint.

After many experiments and tests, Mr. Dudley advised, and the company adopted, pecifications and chemical tests, to which all soap purchased by them would have to comply. Since the adoption of these rules the railroad company have had no trouble from having their paints destroyed, and in this one item alone save many thousands of dollars annually.
