Supposed to Have Started for Europe in Search of Health.

A. B. NEVIN, OF SEWICKLEY,

HIS FAMILY IS APPREHENSIVE,

But Hope to Hear of Him From Across the Atlantic Ocean.

A TALK WITH HIS WIFE'S RELATIVES

Alexander B. Nevin, the ex-Cashier of the First National Bank of Allegheny, has mysteriously disappeared and his family are greatly exercised over his present whereabouts and the greater part of the population of Sewickley are busy advancing theories of a more or less sensational character regarding the case.

Mr. Nevin has been in ill health ever since he retired from business, and he has been spending the greater part of the last year in a fruitless search for health. Several weeks age he went to Denver with his brother Hugh and his cousin Walter Nevin. He remained in that city for some little time and went from there to Dallas, Tex., where he spent a fortnight with a relative. He then proceeded to Galveston and there met an Englishman with whom he became quite intimate. The Englishman accompanied the part; by water to New York

Lost Sight of in New York In Gotham, Mr Nevin was introduced to a brother-in-law of his Galveston acquaintance, and after spending a few days in company with his relatives at the Gilsev House Mr. Nevin suddenly disappeared. He left no word of any kind and announced his intentions of leaving the city to no one. It may be that he has taken an ocean voyage and may be heard of in some continental city before many days elapse. This theory has been accepted by certain members of the Nevin family, although a thorough search of the register books at all of the steamship offices has been made, and neither name nor handwriting appears at any place. Mr. Nevin had a large sum of money in his possession posed to have carried about $7,000 in cash upon his person A close relative of the Nevin family at Sewickley last night, who desired his name withheld, denied any suggestion of family

when he left for the West, as he expected his trip to be an expensive one, and is sup-

trouble. Gone in Search of Health,

"There is nothing whatever in this report of Mr. Nevin leaving on account of family troubles," continued the gentleman, "as there are none. His home life is pleasant and amicable and always has been. We think Mr. Nevin has sailed for Europe to benefit his health and will be heard from within a few days. He has been fearful of tollowing his father to the grave, who died from the same ailment a short time ago. Previous to go-ing West Mr. Nevin visited some of the health springs in West Virginia and seemed to derive some little benefit therefrom. He may be en route to Carlsbad or some other European health resort. We do not entertain any fears that he has been foully dealt with and think such surmises are ridiculous. The Englishman with whom he was last seen is probably his companion en route to the Old World. Mr. Walter Nevin has returned from New York and does not seem to be greatly worried over the disappearance.

Thought It Very Strange. A. B. Booth, a brother-in-law of Mr. Nevin, was seen at the Nevin homestead and declared there was nothing at all to say regarding Mr. Nevin's disappearance. When THE DISPATCH man told him of the many rumors floating about the village of Sewickley he replied that he had nothing whatever to say.

"Do you thin's your brother-in-law left New York of his own volition?' "Yes," laconically replied Mr. Booth. "Do you expect to hear from him soon?"

"Had the Englishman anything to do with his disappearance?"

"Are the New York police looking for

"Are you perturbed over the disappear-ance?" "No!"

"Do you not think it strange?" "Yes," and Mr. Booth left the town bathed in moonlight and refused to be intheviewed any more

RILLED BY THE GRIP.

A Four-Year-Old Crushed to Death on Penn Avenue.

About 7 o'clock last night, car No. 234 of the East Liberty branch of the Citizens' Traction line, ran down and instantly killed Mary Larozosky, a four-year-old Polish girl, at Fifteenth street. The child was playing on the street in front of her home with some companions. She had just come out from the house after eating supper and still clutched a piece of bread in her hands. She was playing "tag" and trying to run across the street directly in front of the ear. The pilot struck her knocking her down, and she was doubled up in an almost unrecognizable mass under the front wheels. The gripman of the car, J. I. Crout, when he saw the impending entastronhe, put on the brakes and stopped the car in a remarkably short distance, but it was too late. The body was taken from under the wheels and carried into Mershon's drugstore at Sixteenth street. Here an examination showed that both arms and a leg were broken and the forehead was crushed in. The mother of the child was sent for and created a scene in the drugstore, attacking, with all the ferocity of an animal, the con ductor and gripman of the car that caused the child's death. Later, the body was removed to the child's home at 1515 Penn avenue. The father was at work in Shoen berger's mill and did not know of the accident until some time after it occurred. Crout took his car through to East Liberty and then went to the Nineteenth ward police station and gave himself up. His Iriends furnished $1,000 bail before Alder-man Hyndman and he was released.

Nothing now remains to be done except to unveil the monument in the Johnstown cemetery. About 750 un-known dead are buried there in rows, and the monument will be erected in their The ceremony will take place May 31, the third anniversary of the disastrous

WAITING ON THE CITY.

If Diamond Street is Widened, the Opera House Will be Abandoned-A Big Office Building to be Built by the Colemans in 1894,

The new ordinance said to be in course of preparation for the widening of Diamond street was not presented to Councils yesterday. The claim was made that a petition was freely signed by owners of property affected tavoring such a move. Willis F. McCook, one of the directors of the Coleman estate, was asked yesterday what dis-position would be made of the Opera House property.

"I wish THE DISPATCH, or anybody else would tell us what to do," he said. "We have discussed all sorts of schemes, but can come to no conclusion Everything de-pends on what the city will do. If Dia-mond street is widened, then the Opera House is spoiled, and it will have to come down. The slice to be taken off the property will ruin the auditorium, and it can't be remodeled. If Diamond street is not widened, the chances are the theater will remain. Certain it is, that property on Fifth avenue is too valuable for a theater, and we wouldn't build another. It and we wouldn't build another. It doesn't pay. This much has been decided. The building facing Fifth avenue will be torn down in 1894 when all the leases expire. On the site a large office building with storerooms below will be erected. If Diamond street is not widened a straight entrance, and a much better one than the winding way now, will be made into the Opera House from the street. This will push the present entrance up Fifth

"A few years ago when the widening of Diamond street was first talked of, Mr. Miller, one of the directors, had elaborate plans made to turn the property into a hotel. Nobody will deny that another firstclass house is needed in Pittsburg, but we found that to put up the kind of hotel we wanted, the building including the ground would cost $1,000,000. We couldn't get a man in Pittsburg to assume such a responsibility in a lease, so the hotel scheme was abandoned. A hotel will not be erected on the site. The Coleman estate is held by women, and none of them could personally manage a hotel. It there was a male to look after the business, then we would build a first-class house that is so badly needed here." Mr. McCook laughed at the take that the Colemans only had a ground rent, and that the lease would expire in a few years. They own the land in fee simple, and their title is as good as gold. When the building on Fifth avenue is torn down it will knock out the Harris Theater.

COLLECTOR GREER'S PROPOSITION.

Wants a Jury of Allegheny Business Men to Hear His Arguments. Delinquent Tax Collector Greer, of Allegheny, has come home from the sea shore and to-day was over in Pittsburg on business, and in referring to the charges that his office was not authorized by law said:

I have been out of the city for ten days and have just arrived home. During my absence I read in The Disparch that the reformers were after my scalp with large knives. My scalp is bare enough now and I cannot afford to loose any more hair; but it knives. My scalp is bare enough now and I cannot afford to loose any more hair; but it is not the reformers that are after it, it is James S. Rutan, because I will not support him for the Legislature. I was born and have lived all my life in the city of Allegheny and have real estate, and have more interest in the welfare of the city and her taxpayers than has James S. Rutan, who has only lived a few years in the city and does not own one dollar's worth of real estate and does not pay one dollar of city tax.

Now I have a proposition to make. It is this: Let the officers of the reform association call a number of business men together—not defeated or broken-down politicians, but such men as William R. Thompson, John H. Ricketson, A. M. Byers, R. H. Boggs, John Walker, James Bovard, H. Buhl, Henry Holdship, Lewis Irwin, James McCord, Phil Reymer—and I will appear before them and explain the method of collecting the delinquent taxes under the act of 1860 and under the acts of 1877 and 1878, as the city is now doing, and if they decide it is for the best interests of the city to abolish the office of delinquent tax collector and return to the old method of collecting delinquent taxes then I will cheerfully resign my position of delinquent tax collector and step down and out.

The Philadelphia business men propose to make a fine showing, and Mr. Farquhar thinks there is no reason why the people here shouldn't do the same. William Quinn, the Pittsburg agent of the board, has complained to Mr. Farquhar about the tardiness of manufacturers in applying for space. In the Quaker City over merchants and manufacturers have notified the commission that they would exhibit. In Pittsburg about the only appli-cants for space are the Carnegies, the Na-tional Tube Works and Heinz & Co., the pickle men.

CHARGED WITH CONTEMPT.

Important Witnesses in the Maryland Terminal Suit Are About to Explain.

W. B. Robb and James H. Beal, the commissioners in the case of Du Puy against the Buitimore Terminal Company, pending in the Maryland Court, yesterday filed a petition in Common Pleas No. 2 asking for attachments against witnesses for contempt, Judge White granted a rule on A. C. Dravo, Ross W. Drum and J. M. Schoonmaker. the witnesses named, to show cause why they should not be attached for contempt of court in refusing to answer questions put to them before the commissioners.

In the matter of the former petition of the commissioners to have the witnesses here compelled to attend the hearings and testify, an appeal to the Supreme Court from the ruling of Judge White in favor of the commissioners has been taken. The appeal has been taken by O. P. Scaife, one of the reluctant witnesses. The rule in the last in-stance was issued in pursuance of the decision of Judge White.

PRODUCING OIL FOR GLORY.

Captain Vandergrift Says the Producers

Must Restrict the Output, Captain J. J. Vandergrift left for Washington last evening. He thinks as soon as the oil producers learn how to regulate their business they will get better prices for their product. At present rates he says oil is not produced with profit. The Captain says many of the oil men are working for glory. He believes limiting the production is their only salvation. He claims if the output of Pennsylvania were reduced to output of Pennsylvania were reduced to 50,000 barrels per day that the price would go up in a short time. The Captain states that the entire production of the country ought not to be more than from 75,000 to 80,000 barrels daily. At present the Pennsylvania output he says is over 100,000 barrels per diem. He claims that when oil got scarce consumers would have to buy it,

MAKING A HARD FIGHT

Law and Order Agent Robert McClure on Trial for Perjury.

A STUBBORN DEFENSE OUTLINED.

Large and Interested Throngs Crowd the Criminal Court.

NEWSDEALER SHARP'S EXAMINATION

Hestility was in the very atmosphere in the Criminal Court yesterday, and seemed to rant and tear around with little regard for pedigree, position or personality. The McClure perjury case was on and the array of legal talent, of interested parties, and of open-mouthed curiosity seekers was so large that the court bailiffs had a difficult time in maintaining the characteristic dignity of the Allegheny Criminal Court.
The Law and Order agent, Robert Mc-

Clure, was in the midst of the circle of his attorneys, Colonel W. D. Moore, D. F. Patterson and John Marron, and sitting just in the rear of these were the trusty supporters of the L. & O. man. Across the table were located Major A. M. Brown, District Attorney Burleigh and his assistant, Harry Goehring, and a short distance away was the prosecuting witness, James M. Sharp, one of the Southside agents of the daily papers, and a number of his witnesses. The crowd without the railing were packed in tightly and seemed to have a hard iege of it, with the pushing, shoving and heat. An occasional feminine face set off the sterner sex with a mildness that seemed entirely alien to the state of affairs in the vaulted room.

Agent McClure's Nervous Movements Agent McClure presented an interesting spectacle. His small gray eyes roved nervously about the courtroom and the pale red tinge about the eyelids denoted something like an attack of insomnia. One long, thin hand rested on the arm of Colonel Moore's chair and the patrician fingers beat an in-cessant (attoo. He wore a small black bow at his neck, which somehow or other did not have the Beau Brummel-like aspect that some of the other gentlemen's neckwear had. His collar was low, excessively low, and a dark, undulating line was visible near the upper edge. His whiskers, of a strag-gling cut, had been carefully brushed, and the white and brown colors contrasted in quite a respectable manner. His broad foot seemed to be inspired with a St. Vitusdance-like affliction and kept flipping up and down most rudely. Some said Agent McClure was nervous, but the geutleman had others than admirers in the room, and it was they who thusly spoke.

The case was called about 11:30 o'clock. after the crowd had become more or less im-patient and signified their feelings by cer-tain unkind little remarks toward the unfeeling ones who trod on their toes. call for the jury was responded to by 12 men, but, as they were not good and true enough for the counsel in the case, they were allowed to silently and disappoint-edly flit out of the room for others to take their places.

A Jury Finally Impaneled.

The challenging ceased at last and the jury was impaneled. The crowd shifted on their other foot and looked expectantly at the attorneys. But they were again disappointed, as a long and tedious argument ensued regarding the admittance as evidence of a copy of the transcript of Sharp's conviction before Alderman Rohe. The de-fense averred that it was incompetent, and for many moments did the gentlemen argue. The question was at last decided by the Court agreeing with the counsel for the defense, and maintained that the transcript was only competent when sworn to by the magistrate from whom it was obtained. The time wore on and when Judge Slagle softly remarked that it would be expedient Mr Sharn was hade to take the stand. He did so, and testified that he had been summoned to appear before Al-derman Michael Rohe, of the Thirteenth ward, at No. 599 Wylie avenue, on the 3d day of March, to answer a charge of selling papers on the Lord's day, February 28, to Robert McClure. He said he had appeared and testified that he received no remuneration for anything he had disposed of on that or any other Sunday during the last six months. He said he saw upon the occasion of his trial Mr. Robert McClure for the first time.

Doesn't Agree With McClure's Testimony Agent McClure had testified before Alderman Rohe that he had got and paid for a paper about 7:20 o'clock Sunday morning, February 28, and, being in a burry to catch a car, had picked a paper from a pile of others upon a counter and left a nickel for his purchase. Mr. Sharp said that upon the morning in question he had been at the breakfast table and occupied a seat where he could see everything that transpired within his store, and that neither McClure nor anyone else had entered the store, and denied emphatically that any papers had been sold. Attorney John Marron began the cross examination in a manner well calculated to inspire the witness, the Court and the crowd with an idea that Mr. Sharp had perverted the truth, and started in on the ex amination with a number of impressive, hal audible ejaculations of satisfaction as the witness admitted that he was a new-sagent and a man, and made a living and other es-sential features. Mr. Marron was disturbed by the low, apologetic cough of Agent Mc-Clure, who sat just behind him, and finally, when this thing became unbearable to him, he turned and sharply ordered Mr. McClure to desist, and with a slight blush and an in-creased rapidity of his afflicted foot Mr. Mc-

The Result of the Cross-Examination.

Mr. Sharp was asked by Mr. Marron a score or more times where he was upon the morning of February 28 at 7:20 o'clock and how he happened to be there, and when he began on another tack the poor witness looked tired, hot and cross, but he kept his temper admirably. The crowd didn't. They were not as well pleased, but Mr. Marron was oblivious to the feelings of the crowd, as he was getting well warmed up to his as he was getting well warmed up to his task and Mr. McClure had ceased his coughing. Sharp's cross-examination lasted fully one and a half hours and the result obtained by Mr. Marron was that McClure had positively sworn to buying a paper which had not been sold; that the store was not been sold; that the store was open at that particular time in that particular morning because the servant girl was cleaning it out Furthermore, that Mr. Sharp always arose at 3 o'clock on Sunday mornings, so he could go to the newspaper offices and let the papers be subsequently delivered to carriers and newsboys; that he always eats breekfest Sunday morning and also breakfast Sunday morning, and also on other mornings, and generally ate about the same time on Sunday mornings; that he left his store about 9 o'clock on that morning, that his wife left at noon, that the servant girl left before either, and that there were absolutely no papers sold on Sundays. The Cash Handled on Saturday Night. He said the newsboys and carriers paid for their papers the night before they were delivered, and that there were generally a number of papers left over from the amount given to the newsboys.

Then came Alderman Rohe with large volumes of books and small volumes of voice. The Alderman swore that McClure had made an information before him against Sharp, and that he had testified to pur-chasing a paper of Sharp. Then the Alderman presented his court records, swore to them, identified a number of documents and after the attorneys had argued for a while longer and cross-questioned the poor Alderman until his spectacles were moist with tears, the court adjourned until 9:30 o'clock this morning, and the tired Court, and the tired crowd and the tired witnesses wended their erratic way to the

FLYNN HELD FOR COURT.

One Hearing Where Yost Does Not Rule th Roost-Thomas Flynn, the L. & O. Spy. Is Held for Court Under Heavy Ball, There was a Law and Order hearing yes-erday. Attorney Yost was present, but he wore a very demureair, and preserved a consistent silence. The explanation was that he was in the office of a real live Alderman named Gripp, not 'Squine Rohe's underground hall of justice. The prisoner was not an honest paper carrier but one of the league's spies, Thomas Flynn, alias Magee. He was charged with having a criminal operation performed on a girl he called his wife. Chief Mogul Mc-Clure, of the Law and Order aggregation, was not present, for reasons best known to himself and the court where he is answering a charge of perjury. On the whole it was a real live court and nineteenth century jus-tice was meted out to Flynn. He is held for court under $800 bail.

Ex-Judge Fetterman opened by placing Miss Morrison, assistant matron of Be-thesda Home, on the stand. Yost did not rant or instruct the 'Squire, but simply sank into insignificance and a chair in an obscure corner. In fact, he was as silent as any other relic of the dark ages should be. Meanwhile the nurse told her story. Flynn had his wife admitted to the Home under the name of Magee in January. She stayed 15 days. He brought her back on Easter Thursday, and the Sunday following she was admitted. On the next Saturday Flynn called and was alone with her for half an hour. After he went away she became worse. The nurse was alarmed, and on investigation found an operation had been performed. She asked the woman if she wanted to see her husband, and when the nurse started to find him Mrs. Mages told her to go to the find him Mrs. Magee told her to go to the Law and Order office and ask for Flynn, not

Dr. Mover was called, and also testified that an operation had been performed with some blunt instrument. The alderman then held Flynn for court.

DIED WHILE ON DUTY.

Committed Involuntary Saicide While Attempting to Preserve the Peace, There is a dead dog in Wilkinsburg. This fact might not be remarkable in itself, but considering that the departed managed his taking off in an unusual and singularly painful manner, the event is worth chronicling. He was the property of Mr. V. B. McCarthy, the well-known druggist of Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg. The dog was a valuable setter, and was the pet of the house-hold. His owner fastened him to the inside of a picket fence in his yard for the night, and left him there to bay the moon night, and left him there to bay the moon or bark at cats, as his custom was, until morning. It is supposed that a particularly offensive cat disturbed his meditations dur-ing the night, and induced him to try and stop her breath. He jumped over the fence at one bound, as he had often done before, but, unfortunately, not with the usual satisfactory results. The rope attached to his collar became snarled in the top of the pickets, and the dog hung to it and slowly strengted to death strangled to death.

When Mr. McCarthy went down to the up in its own particular yard basking in the sun, but the dog that had conscien-tiously tried to punish her for disturbing the peace in the night had run its race, and was nothing but an unpleasant looking in animate object hanging to a fence.

County Chairmen Gripp and Brennen Preparing a List of

UNITED STATES SUPERVISORS.

The Baker Ballot Law Makes the Work More Difficult and

ONLY INTELLIGENT MEN ARE WANTED

Within a few days Chairman W. J. Brennen, of the Democratic Committee, and Chairman John Gripp, of the Republican Committee of Allegheny County, will unite in a petition to court asking for the appointment of 360 United States Supervisors. Each of the two County Chairmen will name 180 men whom they will ask to be appointed and the supervisors will be assigned to duty in Pittsburg and Allegheny and McKeesport. These supervisors will be appointed to serve under the new election laws and the County Chairmen say they propose to have the best men available for the service. There will be about 10 days work for each and each will be paid $50 for his labor. The total cost to the general Government will be $18,000. "Chairman Gripp and myself have talked informally about this matter," Chairman Brennen said last night, "and we have agreed to recommend for appointment to the court only men who are thoroughly qualified for their work. Only Intelligent Men Need Apply.

"We will name only men of intelligence and men of good moral character, and the supervisor must reside in the district in which he is to work.

"The average man who wants to serve as supervisor has absolutely no idea of what his duties will be under our new election laws," Mr. Brennen said. "And the public laws," Mr. Brennen said. "And the public does not know, either, what the duties of a supervisor are. In the first place the supervisor must make a perfect and complete registration of all the persons entitled to vote in his district. The lists, under the new law, are to be made from the streets and numbers, and entirely new ones must be prepared. The old lists are not to be used under any circumstances. This work must be done early in order to get a full list of the voters before they leave town for the summer. After this is done the supervisors must, on September 5 or 6 go over the lists again and make corrections, by striking out the names where the persons have removed from the district, and on the 7th and 8th of the same month they must sit with the assessors.

Harder Work Than Usual. "While these appointments are for the coming Congressional election, the appoint-ees are, under the law, obliged to serve for the Presidental election as well. This will bring out a bigger vote, and, in view of the new ballot law, may make the work to be performed somewhat harder than on previous elections. That is the reason I am especially desirous of having good men appointed."
"Will supervisors be appointed in all the Congressional districts in the State?" was sked. "The law contemplates supervisors for cities only and in this county we will ask the appointment of men for Pittsburg, Allegheny and McKeesport. The appointments will likely be made in June.

THE FORESTERS PARADE TO-DAY.

Delegates Nearly All Here and a Creditable Display Expected. Nearly all the delegates to the State Court of the Ancient Order of Foresters, which meets in Union Veteran Legion Hall this morning, came into the city last night and are quartered at the various hotels. The mass meeting at Veteran Legion Hall this evening is to be open to everybody. One of the features will be the presenta tion of a large silk trophy banner to the lodge turning out the largest number of men in the parade. Beginning to-morrow morning the business sessions of the State Court will begin and continue until Friday evening. Each session will begin at 9 o'clock and continue until 5 in the evening. To-morrow's business will be the report of the Law Committee on a new constitution. which will probably consume two days; as the committee has made several radical changes which are expected to cause dis-pute. On Friday the other committees will report, and in the evening, the only night session, the election and installation of the ensuing year's State officers will be held.

A BOY WHO RUNS AWAY.

Albert Allen's Father Comes After Him but Fails to Catch Him.

Twelve-year-old Albert Allen was picked up by the police in the lower end of Allegheny on Friday evening. The boy told a pitiful tale of abuse and said he was obliged to run away from his home at Glendale, on account of abuse from his father. He was given to the Anti-Cruelty Society and Secretary Dorente had him placed in the Newsboys' Home.

Inquiry developed the fact that his father was William Allen, a reputable farmer at Glendale. The father was notified and went to the Newsboys' Home to get the boy, but he had run away. Mr. Allen said the boy was almost incorrigible and had run away several times.

PENN AVENUE STORES.

THE QUICKEST SALE ON RECORD.

On Friday morning last we placed on sale $5,000 yards of PRINTED INDIA SILKS at 50c a yard which ordinarily would be considered extra value at $1. We sold out the entire lot in less than two days — 3,000 yards on Friday and 2,000 yards on Friday and 2,000 yards on Saturday, being the largest, quickest and most successful India Silk sale ever held in this or any store. There was a good reason for this remarkably quick sale, but a very simple one. The silks were just what the ladies wanted, and they bought them for just one-haif their real value. On Friday morning

TO-DAY

WE CONTINUE THE GREATEST SALE OF

DRESS GOODS

Ever Seen in These Stores.

Our Dress Goods buyer has recently returned from the New York markets. He was there for the purpose of taking advantage of an extraordinary break in prices in Dress Goods. Trade with the leading New York jobbers was dull owing to the late season. They were overstocked, and naturally a big crash in prices followed. Our buyer was on the spot and took every advantage of the situation, buying every desirable lot sold at a sacrifice in the entire New York market.

This sounds like a bold statement, but those who attend our great sale commencing to-day will quickly realize the genuineness of the statement. The following few items taken at random from our enormous purchases will convey a fair idea of the
