ART IN THE SCHOOLS

Is the Latest Novelty Sprung on the Public in Cultured Boston.

AMERICA TO LEAD THE WORLD

In Cultivating the Artistic Tastes of Coming Generations.

THE SCHEME HAS THE BEST OF BACKING

ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.) BOSTON, May 10 .- The recent crusade against high art has resulted in a novel scheme for educating the rising generation to an appreciation of true art. It is proposed to transform every schoolroom in Boston into an art nursery, and eventually every schoolroom in the country will, it is hoped, become a museum of real art. It is proposed to surround children during their school life with the very best art influences. The outcome, it is believed, will be such a development of taste and judgment in all matters pertaining to art that the next generation will see America in the van of artis-

Incidentally, it is believed that the immediate effect of contact with the various exponents of true art will have a radical ponents of true art will have a radical effect for good in developing the character of those who come under their influence, the children atike of the classes and of the masses. The plan of the organizers of the movement is to reach the children through he public schools, the walls of which it is troposed to decorate with casts, engravings, eplicas of standard paintings, photographs f the best architecture, etc. The Idea Is Well Supported

Among the supporters of this plan for offsetting the material trend of the country with a vigorous incentive art-ward are Dr. Edward Everett Hale, General Francis A. Walker, of the Institute of Technology; General Charles G. Loring, of the Museum of Fine Arts; E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge; J. Lyman Faxon, the architect; Henry Hickings, Mrs. H. W. Chapin, all of whom are members of the committee actively engaged in organizing the work. Mr. Henry Sandham, the artist, is Chairman of this committee, whose names, together with several other prominent persons are signed to the petition, which will be considered at the school board's meeting to-morrow afternoon. Bishop Brooks' name appears last upon the list of names which has Dr. Hale's name at the head. A few months ago Mr. Ross Turner, the Salem artist, inaugurated the scheme on a small scale, and his success attracted the attention of Boston artists, who have quietly secured the co-operation of influential citi-zens, and now they are ready to take definite action. The members of the Unity Art Club and the Boston Art Students' Association are pushing the matter. The movement thus inaugurated in Boston will soon become national in its scope. Artist Sandham

The Good Old Tankee Whittler. "At first I was laughed at a little for but dreaming of making the affair of national import; but why not? It can be made international in time. Surround a child with authentic art and he imbibes it as he grows. There is no reason why this should not be a great art nation, and I believe that the future of art lies with America. We have already some of the greatest sculptors of the world. Our school of painting is growing. Even the national Yankee act of whittling I believe to be one expression of latent talent that can be cultivated to great possi-

Much more in the same interesting vein Mr. Sandham explained of the plans and anticipations of the committee. The success of the scheme will end the charge which hitherto has remained unchallenged that American school education does nothing to develop artistic tastes and talents, without which a people must forever remain dependent, as this country is to-day, upon other nations for its art products.

GROWTH OF THE SCHOOLS.

Making Provision for Mechanical and Industrial Tuition.

The Central Board of Education met last night. On recommendation of the High School Committee it was decided to create the position of teacher of mechanical drawing at a salary of $1,200 per year. An attempt was made to fix the salary at $1,400, but the economists were in a majority. Authority was given this same committee to rent rooms in the new Franklin school building for the commercial department. This will relieve the pressure at the High School building.

The list of text books now in use was readopted for the coming year. A motion was made to substitute Tarbell's Language Lesson's for Burtt's Grammar but it was The Industrial School Committee reported that they had accepted the offer of a room in the Knox building, Thirtieth ward, and would locate the Southside cooking school there. The ladies of the defunct Pittsburg Training School have donated their kitchen outfit to this school and a vote of thanks was given them.

Mr. Phelps wanted to know what had become of the Sloyd system; the Iudustrial Committee, he said, seemed to give all its attention to cooking and none to carpentering. Mr. Adams said he was not on that committee, but he was watching the Sloyd school closely and it was a proposed. school closely and it was a pronounced suc-cess. Mr. Fox presented a resolution that a Sloyd school be established in the Fortieth street building. It was referred to the Industrial Committee. There are now 28,244 pupils enrolled, or 2,596 more than one year ago, an evidence of how the city is growing.

THE RAUM INVESTIGATION.

He Denies That George E. Leom Ever En dorsed a Note for Him.

WASHINGTON, May 10.-The Raum in vestigation was continued to-day. Major S. N. Clark, one of the correspondents of the New York Tribune, testified that soon after the completed files order was issued he had an interview with Commissioner Raum with reference to articles published in a New York paper attacking Commissioner Raum's administration. One of the charges was that George E. Leom had endorsed a note for the Commissioner. The Commissioner said there was not a word of truth in the

Mr. Brosius congratulated the committee that it was approaching the end of its pro-tracted and tedious inquiry, and the com-mittee adjourned to meet at the Pension Office Thursday.
