who left the grounds after the Bostons had thumped out a victory. To be sure the majority of people had fully expected the champions to win before the contest started, but when it had commenced and had proceeded so far as to make everybody believe that the home team could not lose, the unexpected result just about paralyzed everybody. And victory was so very, very near to the home players. Just think of it. Two men were out in that terrible inning, and no less than five hits were banged out and a base on balls donated. This piece of business just managed to score the Bostons four awfully big runs, they looked as big as pyramids, and that was just sufficient to win.

Got Enough and Stopped. They generously stopped at that number. Had an earthquake swallowed up the diamond the little crowd could not have been more astounded. Baldwin only had himself to blame for the sad result. of the weather. A more miserable day for baseball couldn't well be. Rain fell at intervals, and a shivering wind swept across the park as cold and cheerless as the cranks players from Boston were going to defeat our sluggers, they would have been told to Matters were going along as smooth and go to bed. Oh, how nice everything looked for the home representatives at that stage. Baldwin had only been touched up for two little single hits; Nichols had been thumped lively at an opportune stage, and the score stood 4 to 1 in favor of the home sluggers. Everybody was feeling at peace with himself, except Manager Selee and his team.

o that of the preceding seven innings. Certainly the Bostons are a good team, and yesterday they played with two very good men absent-Nash and Stovey. Still, they are a dangerous lot. Nichols pitched a fine game, and in only two innings could our sluggers find his measure to any extent. He was well supported and for this he ought to be thankful, for had he not been so well backed up it is probable that the four runs would not have scored a victory.

Mark's Good and Bad Work.

Baldwin never pitched better in his life than he did for seven innings. Not a hit was made off his delivery until the sixth inning, and in the seventh he displayed wonderful nerve. There were three men on bases and two men out. He had given two of the men bases on balls and the other had made a single. Long went to the bat to try and knock the ball out of sight, and Mark struck him out amid cheers. This was excellent work, but the next inning came sure enough.

The home players started out as if they were going to eat lively little Nichols up. Miller led off and was casily downed at first, but Louis Bierbauer, from Erie, cracked out a corking two-bagger to right center fence. Shugart followed with a single in the same direction. McCarthy fumbled with the ball long enough to allow Bierbauer to score.

When the third inning came round Nichols seemed to be sweeter pie than ever. Miller started off with a rattling single to center and Bierbauer got his base on balls. Miller stole third and a passed ball sent Bierbauer to second. Shugart loomed up with a two-bagger and two runs tallies Farrell's sacrifice sent Shugart to third and Beckley's single scored the run. Three runs looked tremendously big, but the home sluggers got no more as Mr. Nichols turned to and pitched his best.

Looked Bright at This Stage.

In the second half of the third inning the visitors began their run-getting. Tucker started out by being hit by a pitched ball. Nichols struck out and Elmer Smith made a beautiful muff of Long's fly. This placed Tucker on third and Long on second. Duffy' sacrifice scored Tucker.

Run getting was out of the question until the eighth inning. After Duffy and Stivitts had each been retired at first Mr. McCarthy made a safe single to right, Lowe got his base on balls, the judgment of the umpire being very, very bad. This may have rattled Baldwin a little. Ganzel was next and he made a short single, filling the bases. Irwin made another single and a run scored. Tucker kept up the fun and made another single and two more runs came in. This tied the score. Nichols next walked up and after taking in the situation banged out another single and the fourth run got home. . That was all that was needed and as if by design Long knocked out a fly which Corkhill caught.

The nome players were crestfallen and never looked like scoring in the ninth and the game was lost and won. The score:
