He was a tall, dark-haired gentleman, lressed in a gray suit and a white straw When the gentleman began to read, the audience was on edge to listen. His cards became disarranged and his sentences had no connection. The few who were near enough to understand him heard a wild exaggerated epic upon the glories of the act-ress. His poem became more and more senseless, until the audience broke into a laugh. He then made a short speech in a

A Limit to Bondholders' Forbearance

VIDE THE TERMINAL COLLAPSE.

Is Sometimes Reached.

Several More New Propositions Were Eubmitted Testerday.

FIRES, FAILURES AND RAILWAY NEWS

NEW YORK, May 17 .- Referring to the collapse of the Richmond Terminal plan of reorganization, the Post, in its financial article, savs:

The episode will not be without its use

The tendency of railroad reorganizations in the last decade has been more and more toward discrimination against the bonds and in favor of the stocks. For this the great consolidation of power in the hands of shareholders was responsible; but the principle was anomalous, because the very purpose of reorganization is to save the stock from utter extinction. That the bondholders should sacrifice some nominal advantage in order to escape the expense and risk of receivership, is only right; but it is equally just that the stock should pay well for its privilege of continued existence. The Richmond Terminal episode marks clearly the line of concession, beyond which bondholders will not go, and it is well that the line has been marked. The bankers who draw up the new plan will have farless reason for misjudging the investors' temper. the last decade has been more and more Investors' temper.

A long conference of parties identified with the Richmond Terminal system was held to-day in President Oakman's office, and at the meeting several propositions were made in connection with steps for the new reorganization, but no information in regard to these propositions was given out.

General Thomas said, before the conference began, that he could arrange the reorganization with an assessment of 5 or 6 per cent on the preferred stock. The new plan would involve the reorganization of both the Danville and Terminal companies, as he considers them identical; but the East Ten-nessee will go along as it is, without being concerned in the affairs of the other com-

John H. Inman was asked by banking interests if he would accept the presidency of the Terminal Company, but he gave a posi-tive refusal to the request. He will, how-ever, re-enter the Terminal Directory, and in a few days it is expected General Thomas will resume the office of President of the East Tennessee Company.

The Tribune says:

It is universally admitted that the Terminal stockholders will be called upon to contribute cash to meet necessary payments in order to keep the system together. Some persons interested in the system thought that $5 a share would be sufficient. It is contended that under the Terminal charter no assessment may be imposed, and probably an attempt will be made to secure voluntary contributions; but, on the other hand, it is not impossible that in case of backwardness on the part of the stockholders the question might be pressed as to whether the stock was fully paid up, or, in other words, whether any of it had been issued without sufficient consideration. It the latter were proved to be the case, the stockholders could be held liable, it is asserted, for the full deficiency of debts left by any forcelosure proceedings.

A representative of the First National The Tribune says:

A representative of the First National Bank interests in Richmond Terminal said:

There have been two good results from the work of the Richmond Terminal Committee so far, although they have been reached by a rather prodigal waste of time. One is that Richmond Terminal securities have been lodged where they can be easily reached when wanted; the second is that strong people have been led to a close study of the Richmond Terminal properties, and stand ready now to formulate a reasonable and business-like plan. RAILWAY INTERESTS.

THE Snow Fork and Hocking Valley Rail way Company has been organized at Zanesville. The line will run from New Straits ville to Athens and will be a coal feeder for the Baltimore and Ohio. The Rhode Island and Massachusetts

Railroad was bought by Messrs. Rockefeller and Morgan, of New York. The effect of this transaction will be disastrous to the New York and New England road. The proposed Nebraska Central Railroad will build from Omaha to Fort Dodge, Ia., use the Mason City and Fort Dodge track from the latter place to Mason City, and build from Mason City north to Duluth.

Still another report has been launched concerning Finley, whose resignation as Chairman of the Western Passenger Associa-tion takes effect Friday. It is now said he has accepted the position of Traffic Manager of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Bailroad.

ENGINEERS are surveying a route for a railroad from Layton station, on the Pittsburg, McKeesport and Youghiogheny, to the Bellevernon Railroad at Fayette City. Both these roads are operated by the Vanderbilt company, and the branch, which will be about 12 miles long, will be built and operated by the same company.

A CHARTER was granted yesterday to the Keystone Northern Railroad Company, whose line will run from a point of junction with the Pittsburg and Western at or near Wurtemburg. Lawrence county, over the most convenient route to Rose Point, same county. The capital is $180,000. F. L. Stephen-son, Allegheny, is President.

Now that the Supreme Court of the United States has decided that the railroads may make particulars without violating the inter-State commerce law, the Chicago, St. Paul and Kansas City will renew its applica-tion, made some time ago to the Western Passenger Association, for authority to es-tablish a rate of 2 cents per mile for parties of ten or more traveling in a body.

DANCING OF THE CHOIR BOYS.

A Custom of Seville Brought Down From the Middle Ages.

Cornhill Magazine.] There is one custom peculiar to Seville which now really forms the prettiest scene to be viewed during the carnival, although it is religious, not secular, and is a protest against the licentious gayeties of the time, instead of being a part of them. This custom is the dancing of the little choir boys of the Cathedral before the host every evening at 5 o'clock.

The origin of the dancing is not attested by any donumentary avidence but is be-by any documentary evidence, but is be-lieved to date from the conquest of Seville by St. Ferdinand from the Moors. It is a survival in fact of the autos sacramentale survival in fact of the autos sacramentales, or miracle plays, accompanied by music and dancing in honor of the sacrament, which are chiefly known to European readers outside of Spain through the beautiful compositions of Calderon. The Autos of Calderon carried these performances to the highest point of literary art, but they had been customary in Spain throughout the Middle Ages at Corpus Christi and other festivals. Not only boys, but also women used to dance before the host until this part of the ceremony was suppressed by part of the ceremony was suppressed by authority.

THE PERSPIBATION OF A KANGAROO It Resembles the Red Sweat of the Bippo potamus of the Nile.

London Telegraph.] On a casual inspection the "red kangaroo" at the zoological garden appears to be a perfectly average kangaroo. Its reddish coat alone distinguishes it from the comcoat alone distinguishes it from the commoner variety, which is exhibited in an adjoining cage. It possesses, however, a very curious peculiarity, not easily made out while the animal is alive. On the throat of the male, at any rate, the hair is stained of a crimson color, suggestive of a serious disagreement with its fellow-prisoner.

This crimson stain is, however, not due to any wound, but is caused by a substance secreted from the skin. It is curiously analogous to the blood-red "sweat" of the hippopotamus, and is not any more easily hippopotamus, and is not any more easily explicable. Why both these creatures, so widely separated in the scale of life, should a similar crimson dye is hard to understand unless indeed this natural rouging is as attractive to the opposite sex as the artificial kind is supposed to be in our species.

BEAUTY BECOMING GENERAL

Mary Queen of Scots Would Attract Attention in These Days.

It is a comforting theory that is advanced nowadays that the human race is becoming better looking, and that there is more beauty generally diffused among our women than in the bygone times. "Beauty grows as the race develops," says a modern writer, "and the increased refinements of existence are undoubtedly affecting the characteristics of the species.

If Mary Queen of Scots, or any other beauty who has become famous in history, were to walk into a modern ballroom she probably would not attract attention in any way, and not only are the individual types higher, but beauty has become very much more general; no one who keeps his eyes open can fail to be struck with this circumstance." Race admixture has also undoubtedly had a great deal to do with this fact, if it is a fact.

Another Case of Three Black Crows.

London Daily News.] A notable example of the "three black crows" class of fiction comes from Yorkshire. A Scarborough clergyman on opening his newspaper the other day found therein an utterly unfounded statement to the effect that his consort had presented him with triplets. He immediately caused inquiry to be made as to the source of this astounding story, and he found it was as follows: His married daughter and her children had arrived at his house on a visit; the event had been described by one neigh-bor to another as "an addition of three to the minister's family;" by the natural law of evolution, that was transformed into a case of triplets; and a local correspondent getting hold of the story sent it in that form to the newspapers.

About midnight Janitor Bailey saw Edward Dufee and Martin Hallem, two well-known young society men, raise a ladder against the seminary. Then he heard some giggling at a third floor window and one end of a rope was thrown to the ground. In a minute the two young men mounted the ladder which was about ten feet too short, climbed the rope hand over hand and disappeared in the window.
