ISPECIAL TELEGRAPHIC LETTER.

BUREAU OF THE DISPATOR, WASHINGTON, D. C., May 29. On this last Sunday before the departure of the clans for Minneapolis, and with the quiet that always obtains on the threshold of Decoration Day, speculation is at flood tide. Everyone believes that the crists of discussion between the friends of Blaine and Harrison has been reached, and that today must decide whether they are really to be antagonists before the National Convention, or whether Blaine will retire and leave an apparently clear field for the renomination of the President.

Rumors have been flying thick and fast all day that Blame would to-night give to the press a letter absolutely declaring that he will in no event accept the nomination, even if it be given to him with the most tempting and complimentary unanimity. Where the rumor originated no one can tell. Mr. Blaine has refused to respond to any inquiry, and since his return has admitted to his residence only a very few of his most trusted friends. I am convinced that the Large numbers of Sunday promenaders -day made it a point to stroll by the big old-fashioned red house on Madison square, although they could see no signs of life there except an occasional face, not Mr. Blaine's, at the window. The Secretary of State is no less inclined than formerly to see and be seen by the public, and so he did not forego his usual afternoon drive to-day. He went out before dinner with Mrs. Blaine in an open carriage and drove for an dined out, and Congressman Boutelle, who called at 9:30 o'clock, missed seeing him. Mr. Boutelle says he has changed his mind about not going to Minneapolis, and, as

It is said at Mr. Blaine's bouse to-night that there have been no political callers during the day, but in spite of this statement there is a report that Secretary Elkins spent two hours with Mr. Blaine in his library this morning.

All Looking for Another Letter,

As soon as this report got on the streets, It was followed by a ramor that flew fast about the city, that Mr. Blaine had decided to issue a card to the Republican party aunouncing his intention to stand by the Clarkson letter, and reiterating the sentiments expressed therein. The public has been on the lookout all the afternoon and evening for such an announcement, but it has not been forthcoming. Indeed, the Blaine men are expressing more confidence in the willingness of the Secretary to allow them to work for him than at any time during the past year.

The Harrison-Miller interviews have angered Mr. Blaine very much and Mrs. Binine still more. A Republican Congressman, who is friendly with both Harrison and Blaine, said to-night that there can be no doubt that Harrison's attack upon Blaine men as disappointed office seekers and upon Blaine personally as attempting to take undeserved credit for recent achievements of the administration have greatly embittered the Secretary and his friends, and made the former at least much more determined to allow affairs at Minneapolis to shape themselves as they may. The Blaine Men Awfully in Earnest.

There can be no doubt of one thing, and that is that the men who are engineering the Blaine boom here are deeply in earnest and thoroughly convinced that Mr. Blaine will not speak a word to interfere with their plans. Mr. Clarkson stated to more than one Republican with whom he talked while here that he had direct assurances to this effect, and that there can be no doubt that Blaine is entirely willing and even anxious to allow things to take their own

General Hastings, of Pennsylvania, who arrived here to-night for the purpose of making a Decoration Day speech, says that the Republicans of Pennsylvania will not take no for an answer, and that Blaine must be the candidate. This is the way a large majority of visiting Republicans talk in Notwithstanding all the confidence that is expressed by the leaders who favor Blaine, there is evidently an immense amount of assurance among the adherents of the President; positive evidence that their neures are all wrong in regard to the Southern of egations, as well as to the hundreds of odd delegates scattered here and there in the North which are resolutely asserted to be owned by the President, the hopeful mood administration men cannot be changed for a moment. They appear to de pend on something else than arithmetic.

Attacks From Harrison Hands Meantime, with all their confidence, the friends of Harrison are attacking Blaine in the most scandalous manner, retailing all invented to plague him. John C. New, Consul General at London; Land Commis-sioner Carter, of Montana; John Russell Young, late Minister to China, those who have been, or are, or expected to be, feeding on administration pap, are engaged in the last throes of vilification of the Secretary, who, no matter what may be truth-fully or falsely charged against him, is the most popular man of his party and of his

The papers of this morning which will admit such matter to their columns teem with scandalous stuff written by the friends of the President. Of course it will do Harrison's cause more harm than good, but that does not count with the pap-eaters who, with a sort of blind frenzy, seem tumbling over one another to say what they think is a last good word for the man who doles out

Some of these men have gone so far that it is probable that the next few days will bring in a large number of complaints at the Civil Service Commission against officials who are altogether too zealous in their political work. At least one such report will be made to morrow. will be made to-morrow.

Keeping Southern Delegates in Line.

Ex-Deputy Second Controller McMahon row information in his possession that Post office Inspector Sharpe, whose official station is Tennessee, is now in Georgia, charged with the special mission of keeping the Harrison men in the Georgia delegation in Harrison men in the Georgia delegation in line. Inspector Sharpe Is one of Mr. Wanamaker's confidential agents to whom he intrusts delicate work of a political character. He is already known to the Civil Service Commission, and the last time Commissioner Roosevelt appeared before the Civil Service Committee of the House in connection with the investigation of the alleged violations of the civil service leave in alleged violations of the civil service law in the Baltimore postoffice he declared that Inspector Sharpe ought to be dismissed from the service. He and Chief Inspector Wheeler made an investigation of the Baltimore office and exonerated the 21 men whose dismissal Mr. Roosevelt had recommended. The Commissioner characterized their report as impertinent, and declared that they were guilty of shielding violators of the law whom they knew to be guilty. He will, therefore, be nothing loth to go into an investigation of these charges against In-spector Sharpe, and if they can be substantiated he will make things lively for the

It is not likely that the Postmaster General would act on a report recommending the discharge of Sharpe, but Roosevelt would not mind that much. It would give him another ground upon which to fight the Postmaster General, and there is nothing that the zealous young civil service re-former is so fond of as a light, and the more prominent his opponent the better he imate personal relations with the of Diplomats" will take the following in terview as as near a reflection of Mr. Blaine's own position, ideas and wishes as will be vouchsafed to his friends before th convention at Minneapolis. Captain Gavett said:

Blaine's Last Withdrawal Letter I have long realized that some one of Mr Blaine's trusted friends should put before the public the inside facts relative to his socalled withdrawal letter. While I do not propose to quote Mr. Blaine, nor claim to hour or two. This atternoon Mr. Blaine have his authority so to do I state upon my own responsibility, based upon the most reliable information entrusted to me, that Mr. Blaine only wrote the letter that he did upon the urgent request, in fact, the demand of the President after mature consideration While the letter was not what the President wanted, it was all Mr. Blaine would consent to grant. It did not say that the President ought to be renominated, or express a preference for any other candidate. It did not say anything about Mr. Blaine's health, and it not say that Mr. Blaine would decline the nomination provided the convention in its wisdom saw fit to select him. None of these omissions most reliable information entrusted to to select him. None of these omissi to select him. None of these omissions from that letter were accidental.

Had Mr. Biaine refused to stand aside upon the urgent demand of his immediate superior officer, Mr. Biaine's self-respect, if nothing else, would have forced him to retire from the Cabinet—a position which he did not care a rap for. It would then have been announced through the press that there was a split in the Republican party. Contests would have followed in every District and State Convention in the country, and if a large majority of the delegates had been elected in favor of Blaine, the President and his friends might have claimed that the President had not been given the opportunity to which he had been entitled opportunity to which he had been entitled by reason of his position.

Blaine's Hands Alone Tied. Now the delegates have all been chosen without the interference or influence of Mr. Blaine. The President and all other candidates have made their strongest efforts, while Mr. Blaine has made absolutely no effort to secure even one delegate, so that, if the convention shall decide that the sure road to success is through Blaine's nom tion, neither the President nor any of his friends can fail to acquiesce without'a mur-mur, and all candidates and their support-ers must cheerfully wheel into line and give loyal support to the nominee. Hence, it will be at once realized, when these facts are considered, that Mr. Rlaine's great magnan-mitry in consenting to stand saids and levity in consenting to stand aside and le ident secure the nomination if h could, has saved the party from possible dis-ruption, and paved the way to victory, al-though the sacrifice Mr. Blaine made seemed at the time to have robbed bimself of the reat honor he has so long desired and so richly earned.

I know that Mr. Blaine desires to be President, and that Mrs. Blaine desires that he shall be President. That a great majority of the Republicans of this country desire he should be President seems evidenced by the outpouring of sentiment throughout the whole country, and I give it as my best judgment that Mr. Blaine will accept the nomination in the grandest letter area wife nomination in the grandest letter area. fination in the grandest letter ever writ

A Bedford Delegate Who Is Going to obey His Instructions.

BEDFORD, PA., May 29. - [Special.] - John H. Jordan, one of the delegates from this district to the Republican National Convention, when asked to-day for whom he intended to vote, said: "I will vote for James G. Blaine if his name goes before the

When attention was called to the fact that the same convention which had elected Jordan had instructed him to vote for President Harrison, Mr. Jordan replied that he believed the Republicans of the county were for Blaine, and he intended to vote for him, instructions or no instructions. Mr. Jordan has always trained under the banner of Senator Quay.

OVER 200 DOUBTFUL DELEGATES,

From Whom Harrison Must Draw 84 to Secure the Nomination. NEW YORK, May 29.-The Herald, in order, as it says, "to make light the dark places," has sent to every delegate at large the exploded scandals that have ever been to the Minneapolis Convention a telegram as follows:

Will you kindly wire how your delegation stands for choice for President; whether in favor of restricted or unrestricted coinage and high or low tariff? Replies to the above, printed to-day, show that Harrison will have 366 delegates, Blaine 265, Alger 28, with one original Mc-Kinley man from Montana. This leaves in the doubtful list 238 delegates, and it is from these that Harrison must get the 84 or Blaine she 185 votes which are necessary to secure the much-coveted prize. On ques-tions of platform there seems to be an al-most unanimous opinion. Not a delegate apparently opposes the Republican doc-trine of high tariff, while the unlimitedcoinage-of-silver men are able to muster only 73 delegates out of the 898, of which the convention is composed.

WHERE BLAINE STANDS.

The Secretary's Home Organ Publishes at Authorized Statement on This Important Point-Party Duty at Present the First Consideration-Always Loyal to

PORTLAND, MR., May 29.—[Special.]—Mr. Blaine's organ, the Express, prints the following editorial article, which is said to be an authorized statement of Mr. Blaine's position in the Presidental contest:

The letter of Mr. Blaine announcing that he was not a candidate for the Presidental nomination was clear and explicit. No real friend of his ever doubted that he meant by it, without reservation of any kind, to with-draw himself absolutely as a candidate. it, without reservation of any kind, to withdraw himself absolutely as a candidate. They believed that whatever other reasons may have contributed thereto it also expressed his personal desire "to avoid the excitement and responsibility attending a candidacy and election." Recent events, however, have placed matters in a different position. Mr. Blaine's name is again freely mentioned. There is no ground for the belief that he has directly or indirectly procured, or that he has desired this to be, and many believe that he will be nominated if he does not add something further to his declaration of three months since.

But those who affect to believe that Mr. Blaine ought to speak again, fail, as it seems to the Express, to comprehend the situation. Were he at liberty, as no man is, to say that he would not under any circumstances lead the party, motives of delicacy might compel him to withhold the expression of it until there could be no doubt of the propriety of his doing so. Though James G. Blains may presume as much as any living American upon the confidence and devotion of the people, even he may well hesitate to assume that his party will force a nomination upon him which he has already practically declined.

It is, therefore, unjust to Mr. Blaine, it is even discourteous to the President, to insist that anything is now due from him. He understands—no man better, for they are of his own making—that the circumstances are such that his nomination, if made, will be under a stress of party exigency which cannot be ignored, against which no personal desire should weigh, and with which no question of sentiment should be allowed to interfere.

to his residence only a very few of his most trusted friends. I am convinced that the conly basis of the rumor is the fact that the Secretary has usually selected Sunday night as the time when he preferred to give to the press any important communication affecting himself. This, and nothing more, up to this moment, seems to have prompted the gossips to start the report of his withdrawal.

Clarkson Sure Bisine Will Accept.

A friend of Mr. Clarkson assures me that he has received a letter from that gentlehan, written from New York last evening and that the Chairman not only writes in a positive way in regard to Blaine's acceptance, but also seemed to entertain not a shedow of a doubt that the Secretary will be the nonlinee at Minneapolis.

SHERMAN-FORAKER FIGHT AGAIN

man to Succeed Conger. COLUMBUS, O., May 29 .- [Special.]-One of the hardest and closest political fights in any of the State delegations at the National Republican Convention at Minneapolis will take place in the Ohio delegation over the election of a man to take the place of 'Colonel Conger as Ohio's member of the National Committee. There are two candidates, and it is claimed the pledges now show the vote will stand 24 to 22. W. M. Hahn, of Mansfield, is the Harrison - Sherman - McKinley candidate, while Hon, Charles Kurtz, of this city, late private secretary for ex-Governor Foraker, shies his castor in the ring, wearing the colors of the Blaine-anti-Harrison crowd. claims 24 of the 46 votes that Ohio will have in the National Convention and says he will win hands down, while Kurtz remarks that it is not good policy to yell until you are out of the woods.

Kurtz's friends wonder if Hahn wants the earth. He is now a member of the Board of Public Works, Chairman of the Republican Executive Committee, and one of the four delegates at large to Minneapolis. There will be a lot of "pap" to dish out by the lucky man who is elected, and these two gentlemen are straining every nerve to win the race. Hahn's followers say that Kurtz had the best State office in the gift of the Governor for four years-a place that pays about $6,000 a year in fees and $800 salary—and they also wonder when he will get enough of honors and emoluments of office. Kurtz is a very sleek politician. The old Sherman-Foraker fight will now be transferred to Minneapolis, and the longsuffering Ohio public will be given a rest for the next two weeks.

A Conference on the Vice Presidency Sale to Be Slated for To-Day. WASHINGTON, May 29 .- [Special.]-The Post this morning savs: A conference of leading Democrats known to advocate Cleveland's nomination will be held in this city to-morrow, if the programme as at present arranged is not disturbed. In the conference will be ex-Post-mester General Dickinson, Senator Vilas, ex.First Assistant Postmaster General Adiai Stevenson and ex-Governor Camp-Adiai Stevenson and ex-Governor Campbell, of Ohio, Mr. Dickinson went over to New York Friday night, but will return here to-morrow, and General Stevenson is already here. The object of the conference is to arrange the Vice Presidency on the Cleveland ticket. Mr. Campbell's friends are very anxious that the ticket should have his name upon it, and this is understood to be the desire of Mr. Cleveland. Mr. Stevenson, however, does not lack advocates, including Senator Gorman, with whom Mr. Dickinson had a lengthy conference last week. The situation will be thoroughly discussed to-morrow, and Mr. Cleveland will be kept informed as to the developments.

Senator Vilas says to-night that so far as he knows this statement is entirely without

There is anxiety in high circles. An advance delegation should go at once to Minneapolis. If you cannot go sooner, can you go by the 2d? Answer. P. M. MILLIKEN, Secretary State Central Committee.

President Harrison has been devoting himself to the duties of his office in his selfcontained, diligent, earnest way, as if the Republican National Convention were not less than ten days off. He has had no political managers, no conferences, no workers in the field, no personal plan of campaign, and all the generalship, all the scheming and all the enterprise has been on the side of his political opponents. No President ever followed a more dignified course, and no President suspected of wishing a renomination ever entered a National Convention with a following so disorganized, so chaotic and so uncertain in turned onto the political canvass. Every Device Worked for Blaine By talk, speeches and every other device known to political management the heart of the party, which is quite naturally with Mr. Blaine, has been stirred up and then edu-cated to the belief that he is really willing to accent the nomination. In weit ing polities for many, many years, I have never seen a more subtle and spirited schooldistrict canvass carried on for any purpose than has been in operation in the vestern country for the past four or six weeks. It has been so well done, and has found so many volunteers, that nine out of ten Republicans are firmly convinced that Mr. Blaine at Minneapolis. The unpledged delegates are equally impressed, and the longer Mr. Blaine keeps quiet the greater the momen-tum of the Blaine avalanche, for new converts are coming in every day to the conviction that he really intends to be named. Those who are merely working, as they think, for the good of the party, as well as those who are working from other motives, are so numerous that it is difficult to classify them. No Organization of His Forces. The President's friends (he has no managers other) have contented them-selves with "claiming everything with confidence." They really don't know where they stand. The new men are inclined to think that the old ones have had their share and that it is about time for the youths to have a chance. Here in President Harrison's own State the irritation and uncertainty is almost as great as anywhere else except perhaps in Ohio, where the com-bat between the Sherman and Foraker forces reaches the point of bitterness.

These personal rivairies are very intense, and the intention of Governor Foraker's followers is to make an aggressive contest.

AN ATTACK ON THE RELIC.

Dr. Collyer Preaches a Sermon That Is Bound to Cause a Religious Sensatio NEW YORE, May 29.-[Special.]-Rev. Robert Collyer, pastor of the Church of the Messiah, at Thirty-fourth street and Park avenue, preached this morning on "Saints and St. Anna's Bones." He said: Sainthood, like charity, begins at home. The elect fight their way upward, hill by line, but neither win anything worth the winning by kissing old bones. No man is a saint because he makes himself a marvel of saint because he makes himself a marvel of misery. The mother in her home with the children about her will far outrank any lady abbess in her convent parlor embroidering vestments for the priest, and the father, faithful to the terms of his fatherhood, will outrank the whole tribe like him who has now gone to Quebec with the old bone wrapped in two bits of brown paper and tied with a bit of twine to be carried in his pocket.

This that we have been watching is an exhibition of the grossest superstition that our city has ever seen. It is the first time, so far as I know, that such a thing has been done here, and the princes of the church should never let it be done again. Quebec is 500 years behind New York. Let the relic stay there. The day must come when those who do such things in the name of religion will be prosecuted for obtaining money under false pretenses from the ignorant and credulous.

Being Lost in a Desert He Couldn't Endure Bis Parching Thirst. EL PASO, TEX., May 29.-News reached this city late last night that William G. Bailey and family had been lost on the plains west of this city. Thirty-eight miles southwest of El Paso they lost their way and were without water. A Mexican boy was sent out with a wagon and horses to haut water for them. While searching for water the horses got away from him. Wednesday night the boy arrived at Palomas. He was almost entirely naked and had a bullet wound in one of his legs. He was suffering for water, and to quench his thirst he shot himself in the leg and sucked the blood from the wound. A rescuing party from among the Mexicans and soldiers stationed at Palomas started in search of Mr. Bailey and wife. Friday evening at dusk the party found Mrs. Bailey with the wagon at the point where the horses were taken out and sent off for water. She stated that her husband left her vesterday morning to return to Juarez for horses and water. The rescuing party came to Juarez but failed to find Mr. Bailey. It s possible that he lost his way and has perished in the mountains.

The report of collections made by him showed a snug sum ready for immediate distribution. It was at once decided that all moneys contributed for the relief of the Russian refugees should be used for that purpose

Russians Cannot Stand the Climate. We have received information to that effect which we believe is reliable. The cential office in New York will not admit this, but, of course, that is expected. The Russians cannot stand the climate of South America. Then they do not know muci about farming. Only a few of them under about farming. Only a few of them understand that industry. They do not know the language or customs of the people, and have no quick method of learning them. These conditions have all led to the exodus and now I am informed they are leaving in hundreds. They are making their way north as best they can and are all heading for the United States. Some of them will reach here soon. We expect them in large numbers before the end of June.

It is our intention to care for them among our own people. They are not paupers, but everything having been taken from them, they must be taken care of until they are able to take care of themselves. During the Russian persecution of 1881 we cared for large numbers of them and not one of them has become a charge on charity. Some of them are now among Pittsburg's foremost business men. We had a house on Colwell street then and will probably do the same this time.

Abroad they are doing more for the refugees than they are here. In Amsterdam, a city no larger than Pittsburg and Allegheny, they are distributing $1,000 a day to the sufferers. When the test comes here, though, I believe the people will respond and there will be funds in plenty. These refugees do not like to accept charity, and some of them we have to hunt out ourselves. They are dreadfully afraid of being called paupers. stand that industry. They do not know the

IN THE TORNADO'S PATH.

Excursion Trains Pouring Their Burdens Into Ruined Wellington—A Scene of Remarkable Devastation—Frenks of the Storm at Harper, the Other Fallen City. WELLINGTON, KAN., May 29.-Wellingon's tornado has made the city for the time the chief object of interest for all Southern Kansas. No such crowds have visited this city before as those which since earliest daylight have been pouring in on every railroad and highway. On all its four lines entering here the Santa Fe has been running excursions, while the Rock Island has been equally industrious. It is the common remark of those who have witnessed similar scenes, that in the extent and completeness of the destruction it transcends anything in their experience. Other like calamities have been attended with greater loss of life, but rarely has a picture of such utter desolation been presented than that seen in the devastated district. The death list remains at the figures given in the dispatches of yesterday, with all the injured ones in a fair way to recover, except Mrs. Murphy, the aged lady who was taken from the burning ruins of the Cole-Robinson block, and Jesse Brown, elearing away the wreck vigorously and systematically begun. Reports from the country around Harper lemonstrate the loss to be greater than at first reported. The course of the storm, as adicated by its trail, represents an imperfeet letter "S," and swept in that form at least 15 miles. In Garden Plains township two brothers were picked up and carried 200 yards and let down almost side by side. One of them was badly injured in the fall, while the other escaped without a scratch. The storm struck the cemetery at Harper and swept down fully two-thirds of the tomb-strangers were viewing the ruins at Welling-ton about 4 o'clock this afternoon four or five men spread the alarm that another eyclone was approaching. Instantly there was a frightful rush for cellars, in which several persons were bruised and one woman fainted. The report was true, for a small twister passed, but did not strike the town. Another small tornado was seen about the same time at Caldwell.

TWENTY-FIVE IMPORTED ERIDES

Who Cannot Be Prosecuted for Violating the Contract Labor Law. NEW YORK, May 29. - [Special.]-Twentyfive robust, red-cheeked, flaxen-haired Swedish and Norwegian girls were among the 888 immigrants who landed at Ellis Island to-day from the steamship Norge. They blushingly confessed that they had come here under contract to make 25 young men of their own nationality happy. Colonel Weber said the contract labor law was not applicable to this sort of contract, and the expectant maidens went on their way, which will take them to little out in Minnesota and Wisconsin illed by their lovers.

TWO WEALTHY HOMES WRECKED.

An Elopement Shakes the Cream of Mor treal Society to Its Foundations. MONTREAL, QUE, May 29 .- Two mem bers of Montreal's best and wealthlest society have eloped, leaving behind in the one case a sorrowing wife, in the other a broken-hearted husband. John S. Allen, more commonly known as 'Jack" Allen, the eldest son and heir to Andrew A. Allen, one of the millionaire partners in the Allen Royal Mail Steamship line, has gone in company with the wife of R. Y. Hebden, who is prominently nnected with the Bank of Montreal. A BATTLE MORE REAL THAN SHAM.

everal Bold Militiamen Wounded by Sabe Cuts and Gun Wads, CINCINNATI, May 29.-The First Regiment of the Ohio National Guards gave a sham battle at Woodsdale Island, 30 miles north of here, to-day, in which infantry, a battery of gatling guns and two pieces of artillery were used.

In a charge to capture the gatling guns five men were wounded with sabers. One had his left eye-lid cut off and the eye seriously injured. Three others had more or less severe saber cuts in one or both hands red a severe injury by a gun wad striking his left eve.

A HUGE DEAL AT DAYTON.

The Barney and Smith Car Works Change Hands for $4,500,000. DAYTON, May 29 .- The report that the Barney & Smith Car Works, of this city, had sold the plant to a syndicate, is verified this evening by an interview with Eugene J. Barney, President, and J. D. Platt, Vice President, of the company.

The consideration is $4,500,000 cash. The syndicate will take possession of the car works June 1. The plant covers 20 acres of buildings and yards, and employs 1,300

Mr. Quay came up from Beaver in the afternoon and registered at the Duquesne, where he spent the time in receiving callers and congratulations for his victory on the Northside at the Saturday primaries. It is said by friends that Mr. Quay is banking a great deal on the desire of Mrs. Blaine to have her husband run once more for the Presidency. The Senator said nothing about it, but it is pretty well established now that the members of the Secretary's family are delighted at the prospect of his receiving the nomination, and for their sake, if not for the claims of his party and the country, he will accept. Mr. Quay is sure now that Blaine will not refuse the proffer

Not Attending to National Politics, A DISPATCH man managed to see the Senator alone last evening after his visitors had left and while he was walking to the depot. It was after a number of questions concerning important details of the conven-concerning important details of the conven-tion had been put to him that he dismissed the subject by making the strong statement at the head of this interview.

"Have you any statement to make about the Presidental outlook?" was asked. "The time is short, and your preparations are no doubt complete," was suggested.

"I have nothing to say," he answered, with a smile. "I haven't been giving much attention to national politics for some time. attention to national politics for some time. I have other business to look after, and I did not talk about the Presidency to-day."

"Have you any figures to give out about how the various State delegations will "I have not, and if I had, I certainly wouldn't have them published in advance. That wouldn't be good policy, and would be loaning ammunition to the enemy."

he is for Harrison."

"Well, now, I hardly think so. But I haven't talked with the delegates. You know the State delegation has not had a caucus. We will meet in Minneapolis on the Monday before the convention. No. I don't know who will be the next National Committeeman from Pennsylvania. Yes, David Martin, of Philadel-phia, has been suggested, and so has General Frank Reeder. As for the State's representation on the Executive Committee, I don't know anything about it. I am no longer a member of the Committee and am not particularly inter-ested. I can't say who will be permanent or tempoary Chairman of the convention. These are details that are not of vast importance, and the National Committee will lispose of them. Beheader Higgins Offers a Prophecy. Eugene Higgins, the beheader for the Cleveland Administration, better known as the appointment clerk in the Treasury Department, was in the city last evening, going home from the Hot Springs. He has been ill for five months, and has not been giving much attention to practical politics. He said he hoped to get into the harness in a short time. He believes Blaine will be the Republican nominee, and he says he is glad of it, as the weakest Democrat in the country can defeat him at the polls. When Senator Quay was told what Mr. Higgins had said he replied: "Ah, was Eugene in town. Did he mean that Harrison is a stronger man than

"He intimated that. He would like to see the Republican party in a hole, no doubt," the reporter answered.

"Yes, that is a fact, but we will win with Blaine as the nominee." It is pretty definitely settled that if ex-Speaker Reed can get into the convention as a substitute he will be the Temporary Chairman. He is dead set against Harrison, and when he came out a few days ago flat-footed for Blaine, Clarkson and the other anti-Harrison leaders made a rush for him. McKinley is talked of for Permanent too friendly to the President, when he will

McKinley May Change His Mind. McKinley has declared a number of times for Harrison, but subsequent events may cause him to change his mind. Colonel H. C. Sherrard, of Steubenville, who is on the Governor's staff, registered at the Duquesne last evening. He said the Ohio delegation to a man would vote for Blaine. He ad-mitted that McKinley was very friendly to the President, and unless he is tied up to him for past favors, the Colonel was sure that the Governor would vote with the Blaine delegates. He believes that if Harrison is renominated Ohio will go Demo-cratic. The Buckeye workers are very much disgusted with Harrison's civil service ideas. The deal to put General Frank Reeder on the National Committee is side-tracked, and now it is conceded that ex-Collector David Martin will be the man. Reeder wants to be National Chairman, but Martin doesn't hanker after the job. Several politicians remarked yesterday that Martin was worth a half dozen men like Reeder, and he is more acceptable to the delegates in Western Pennsylvania. Martin will undoubtedly be placed on the National Committee to repre ent the State. Senator Quay claimed he didn't know who would go on the Executive Committee, A Monument to Chief Hennessey.

NEW ORLEANS, May 29 .- The monument erected by the people of this city to the memory of the late Superintendent of Police, David C. Hennessey, who was assassinated by the Mafia in October, 1890, was unveiled to-day at Metarie cemetery. Addresses were made by Mayor Fitzpatrick and ex-Mayor Shakespeare.
