A DRAFT ON OUR MONEY METALS

That Will Have to Be Met in Some Way, at Uncle Sam's Expense.

ONLY FRANCE LIKELY TO HELP US OUT

SEPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. NEW YORK, May 29 .- "Austria's New Gold Standard" is the title of Matthew Marshall's article for to-morrow's Sun, which is as follows: While the silver men have been busy at Washington, both in the Senate and in the bi-metallic convention, laboring for the res-toration of free silver coinage, and while he President of the United States has been occupied with the convocation of an interrational bi-metallic conference, the great empire of Austria-Hungary has been preparing to adopt gold as its exclusive standand or value and to relegate silver to the subordinate position of material for mere token money. Bills for the purpose nave been submitted to the Austrian and to the Hungarian parliaments, and are now under consideration there, with a certainty of their ultimate though not, perhaps, their speedy adoption.

Nominally, Austria and Hungary have for many years adhered to the silver standard, but, owing to the long-continued suspension of specie payments on the one hand and to he restriction of sliver coinage on the other, the real standard has been part way between silver and gold. Thus the florin, which as bullion is worth about 26 cents o our money, and which when originally coined was worth about 48 cents, bas an nermal exchangeable gold value of about 41 cents. It is this latter actual value which it is proposed to adopt as the basis of the new

A New Unit to Be Created,

A new unit is to be created called the rown, consisting of gold to the value of about 204, cents, or about one-half the value the present florin. It is to be coined in gold, in pieces of 10 crowns and of 23 crowns, and in silver in 1-crown pieces, each about 16 times the weight of the gold crown and one-balf the weight of the present silver florin, which is to remain currowns really worth 13 cents, but as tokens by cents. There will also be half-crowns in er and smaller fractions of a crown in

The scheme proposed does not attempt to impair the rights of creditors, public or private, whose claims are specifically payable in gold. These are to continue to receive as they have been receiving, the full amount due them. Debts, too, payable in either sliver or paper, will evidently not be diminished. Creditors will be paid in gold the present actual value of their dues in currency and they will, in addition, be protected against possible future loss arising ickel and bronze. ected against possible future loss arising om the further depreciation of the silver On the score of justice, therefore e scheme is unobjectionable. All that inds in the way of its accomplishment is a difficulty of obtaining the necessary autity of gold for it. Negotiations are adding on the subject with the great Euroin bankers, but as yet they have had no inite result. All that Comparatively Little Metal Needed. The paper money at present in circulation in Austria and Hungary combined amounts about $300,000,000, and if this alone needed to be put at par in rold, under the new system, and kept there, comparatively little of the metal would be required. But since e old silver florins, of which the amount the old silver florins, of which the amount can only be guessed at, will also have to be protected, and since, further, it is proposed to add to them $40,000,000 in new silver crowns, which, like our dollar, can only be made to circulate at their nominal value by being always convertible into gold at par, at the pleasure of the holder, the estimate of the quantity of gold necessary made by the Austrian Government of $75,000,000 for Austria, and $30,000,000 for Hungary, is probably none too great. probably none too great.

The Kingdom of Hungary is already furnished with $18,000,000 of its quota of gold, and it proposes to reduce the amount of its paper money by funding some of it, so that the task of maintaining gold payments in that portion of the Empire will be comparathat portion of the Empire will be compara-tively easy. Austria, on tl. contrary, has not yet secured any great amount of gold and expects to sell bords for the purpose, taking the opportunity at the same time to convert a large amount of its funded currency debt into a gold debt at a lower rate of

The importance to this country of the pro-posed change by Austria-Hungary from the silver to the gold standard lies primarily in the fact that upon us will probably fall, in great measure, the burden of turnishing the additional quantity of gold needed to ac-complish it. The Bank of France may be applied to, in the first instance, since that titution has besides its stock of $300 000. 666 in gold nearly an equal amount in silver France May Furnish Most of It.

On several previous occasions the Bank of France, when there was an extraordinary demand for gold in other countries that France, has suspended gold payments and sold its gold at a premium, which has been sometimes as high as 1 per cent. It would e likely to do the same thing in this inthe likely to do the same thing in this in-tance, but it is not probable that it would on on to deplete its stock of the entire $0.000,000 or $50,000,000 which Austria-ingary requires. The United States, being he next most accessible holder of gold, would herefore naturally be applied to for the belichency, and what the result would be it is many following. Our hands If it would be it is deniency, and what the result would bett is easy to imagine. Our banks, if it were to be demanded of them, would, by paying out legal tender notes or silver, transfer the de-mand to the United States Treasury, which is already reduced to only $13,000,000 in gold over and above the $100,000,000 set aside for the redeemation of the legal tenders. It e redemption of the legal tenders. It ould therefore very soon be compelled to nder sliver dollars in order to stop the run a it, and then gold would at once go to a emium. Farthermore, Austria-Hungary, by placing Furthermore, Austria-Hungary, by placing itself alongside of Germany and Great Britain in the maintenance of the single gold standard, will make the adoption by European nations of international bi-metallism, never very probable, alm at impossible. No argument can disprove the proposition that hi-metallism, on a ratio of silver to gold of either 15½ to 1 or 16 to 1, would immediately result in the demonetization of gold and the establishment of a single silver dollar standard, while the adoption of the actual commercial ratio of 23½ to 1 would throw the coinage of all Europe into confusion.

Harrison's Scheme Is in Danger. If the United States, therefore, ever succeeds in restoring free silver coinage at all, temphated action. It is true that the propmacted into laws, and that after they have ome laws they have to be executed, all which involves much delay and will defer, for a long while, the arrival of the results I have indicated. But that the results I have indicated. But that the Austrian ministry is earnestly pushing the matter, and will do its best to bring it to a successful conclusion, there is no doubt. That they have the support of the commercial and financial portion of the Austrian people, as well as that of the foreign creditors of the nation, is equally certain.

The Rothschilds and the Bleichroders, it is said, indeed, have declined to lend their aid in acquiring the needed gold, but this can be ascribed only to their judgment that the compensation offered them was insufficient. Gold can be had in any amount if enough is paid for it, and the only question that Austria has to decide is whether it will pay the sam that will prove necessary. The Austrian Minister of Finance, I see by a Gold can be had in any amount it renough is paid for it, and the only question that Austria has to decide is whether it will pay the sum that will prove necessary. The Austrian Minister of Finance, I see by a cable dispatch, addressed the Lower House of the Austrian Parliament, on Wednesday, arging an immediate decision on the currency bills, and giving as a reason for speedy action the encouragement that deny would furnish time for intrigues by the silver rings in this country.

A Chill Over the Stock Exchange. While, too, our moneyed men are unac-countably indifferent to the important consequences which will follow Austria's re-nunciation of silver, they display a sensitiveness equally unaccountable to the talk about silver in Congress. The recent revival of the silver debate in the Senate has cast. I am told, a chill over the Stock Ex-change here and appreciably lowered prices. Yet everybody knows that even if the Sen-JNO. E. ate should pass a free coinage bill it would be defeated in the House, and if it were to pass both Houses it would still be vetoed by President Harrison. No free coinage bill can become a law for two years yet, and whenever it becomes a law—which will be less likely two years hence than it is at present—its effect will be not to lower prices, but to raise them, just as our depreciated greenbacks raised prices during the war.

Whatever Austria does, and whatever Congress does, we need not be alarmed for the future. Should the withdrawal of gold from this country by Austria put the metal to a premium, it would, at the same time, correspondingly advance the prices of all the products of industry. Should the free coinage of silver prevail, the same result would be produced in a greater degree. Meanwhile our banks are gorged with currency, the rates of interest for money continue to be lower than they have been for a long time, both in this country and in Enrope, and the dullness of speculation precludes the immediate possibility of a panic like that of 1890. What storm may follow the prevailing great and widespread calm the future will reveal, but all the probabilities are in favor of financial fair weather for a good while longer.

Will Do Business Themselves.

John Brislin, chief of the detective agency known as Heiner's, and of which the late A. A. Heiner was the organizer, emphatically denies the published statement that Detective Finney, the man who assisted in the capture of Fitzsimmons at New Orleans, was to take Heiner's place. Brislin says the men who worked for Heiner will carry on the business on their own account.

Kentucky Saddle and Driving Horses. Mr. Joe Arnheim shipped from Lexington, Ky., by express 28 head of saddle and driving horses, which are without doubt as fine as the blue grass affords. Amongst them are the celebrated saddle geldings Duke and Dandy, which have taken all premiums in the saddle ring in Kentucky, said to be the finest educated norses shipped to Pittsburg: five (5) teams of carriage and driving horses, all well mated; six (6) sneedy trotters; ten (10) (b) teams of carriage and driving horses, all well mated; six (6) speedy trotters; ten (10) combined horses, all broke to all gaits and gentle to drive. We invite the public to see our stock of fine horses and the Arnheim Live Stock Company, Limited, takes pleasure in showing them, if wishing to purchase or not.
