

NO BLOOD SPILLED.

County Republicans Have a Peaceful Time in the Conventions.

CANDIDATES HAVE A WALKOVER.

Judge Stowe and Coroner McDowell Chosen by Acclamation.

DR. BARCHFIELD WITHDRAWS HIS NAME

The 13 Republican conventions held yesterday were very tame affairs in comparison with some of former years.

The Dalzell delegates endorsed President Harrison. In the County Convention Judge Stowe and Coroner McDowell were re-nominated and H. W. Ochs was made the candidate for Poor Director.

The Third Legislative convention met at the Tariff Club on Sixth Avenue in the evening. John Doyle called the convention to Kiefer, a Dalzell man, beat John Grims, a Quayite, for Permanent Chairman. George T. Magill withdrew, but the other candidates, Smith and Wallace for Quay and Quill and Kroesen for Dalzell, were nominated. After a number of ballots Wallace and Ritchie were the successful men. Wallace is a Quay man while Ritchie will vote for Dalzell.

Quill and T. R. Patterson withdrew early in the convention fight. Mr. Patterson was recognized as a Quay adherent.

In the Eighty Legislative Convention, held in Select Council chamber, Samuel E. Stewart, of Verona, and John J. Walker, of

H. W. Ochs, Nominee for Poor Director.

Wilkesburg, were the candidates. Stewart was nominated with a good-sized majority. W. E. Thompson presided.

In the Forty-third Senatorial Convention Senator Upperman was re-nominated by acclamation. John S. Lambie was the Chairman. The Senator made a graceful speech.

In the convention of the Sixth Legislative district Captain M. M. Wilson, of Homestead, and J. W. Nesbit, of Oakdale, having no opposition, were declared the party nominees.

The Forty-fifth Senatorial Convention was held in the Duquesne Theatre. The names of Dr. Barchfield and Senator Steele were presented. The doctor then withdrew, and asked that the vote be unanimous for Steele. Chairman Holliday insisted on the roll call being called according to the rules.

The Secretary was interrupted by Barchfield delegates, who wanted his name pulled down, but the roll call went on just the same.

In the First and Second Districts. At the meeting of the First Legislative Convention in the Select Council Chamber, City Hall, Allegheny, last evening, Charles W. Gerwig was elected temporary Chairman, while G. J. Schendelmeyer and Joseph Brown were elected secretaries.

The second Legislative contest, which was held in the Common Council Chamber, City Hall, Allegheny, last evening, Charles W. Gerwig was elected permanent chairman, and Edward Hare, J. M. McGeeary and E. E. Herson were elected secretaries. The struggle was between James Ruten and W. A. Crankbank on one side, and W. J. McDonald and W. T. Marshall on the other.

In the Second Legislative contest, which was held in the Common Council Chamber, City Hall, Allegheny, last evening, Charles W. Gerwig was elected permanent chairman, and Edward Hare, J. M. McGeeary and E. E. Herson were elected secretaries. The struggle was between James Ruten and W. A. Crankbank on one side, and W. J. McDonald and W. T. Marshall on the other.

The Fourth Legislative convention was also held at the Tariff Club. This district is democratic by a majority anywhere from 2,000 to 4,000, according to the weather. Only five delegates put in an appearance.

One of them, Thomas Perry, called the other four to order, and another, E. J. Newell, was elected temporary secretary, leaving three delegates on the floor. Mr. Perry told them how strongly Democratic the district was, and assured them that this was the year to elect a Republican. John R. Armstrong was then nominated. He is a real estate dealer, a resident of the Twelfth ward, and this is his first political venture.

The Fifth Legislative Convention met in Common Council Chamber, with Sheriff Mc Cleary as temporary chairman and Robert Ostermair, H. C. Fehl, D. J. McGary and Thomas Perry as temporary secretaries. These were made the permanent officers and then a unanimous nomination was given to the present representatives of the district, S. C. Lauffer, William Culbertson, Emmet E. Cotton and D. E. Weaver. Hon. A. C. Robertson wanted the nomination to make speeches. S. P. Conner said: "It's too hot; let's adjourn," and the convention agreed with him.

The Congressional Convention of the Twenty-seventh district was held at the Alvin Theater yesterday morning. Congressman Dalzell was re-nominated and great applause, having no opposition. Many of the delegates were merchants and many facturers, and there were some mill workers in the list, who admire the distinguished Pittsburger.

Insulated Upon a Speech From Dalzell. Miles Humphries, Chief of the Fire Department, was made permanent Chairman. He made a stirring speech, and then H. P. Ford, J. C. Brown, J. W. Thompson and Samuel Andrews were made Vice Presidents. George T. Oliver nominated Mr. Dalzell, and his nomination was passed in a jiffy. The caucus for the Congressman were loud, and he responded with one of his characteristic speeches. A resolution endorsing Mr. Dalzell was adopted with applause. He dwelt on the good effects of the McKinley bill, roared the loudest Democracy Congress for its inactivity, said the Democrats were divided on the silver question, and commended the administration as clean and efficient. He promised to serve his constituents to the best of his ability.

Over on the Northside Colonel Stone had a walkover, and was re-nominated by acclamation. No resolutions were offered endorsing Mr. Harrison, but the Colonel created a sensation by making a red-hot speech in favor of Blaine. Arthur Kennedy was temporary chairman and I. N. Patterson was the permanent presiding officer. John E. Henricks nominated Colonel Stone. In his speech accepting a renomination, the Colonel made a mention of the Immigration bill. He believes in keeping out of the country all foreigners incapable of self-support and the means of their own education and socially to become citizens of the United States. He praised the tariff and favors a gold standard. Then he delivered himself and lasted several minutes:

All Republicans Looking Toward Blaine. "We are about to enter our great national struggle for political supremacy. The air is full of ominous rumors like the warning shot of the picket retreating before the advancing foe—all eyes are turned toward Minneapolis. Never before was our great Republican army in a better condition for a fight. What Republican heart does not beat for the man who has led us to the very gates of Blaine? And as we gaze with eager eyes toward Minneapolis there rises up from the great Republic a man who will sweep all opposition must fall. It is the people's voice. It is the people's will. My conviction is that the duties of this high office is to give expression by my vote, my voice and my action to the opinions of a majority of the people whom I represent."

County Convention No. 1 was held yesterday morning in the Duquesne Theatre. C. H. Stages presided. Major Brown, in his speech nominating Judge Stowe for President and his rival, called the name of Blaine? And as we gaze with eager eyes toward Minneapolis there rises up from the great Republic a man who will sweep all opposition must fall. It is the people's voice. It is the people's will. My conviction is that the duties of this high office is to give expression by my vote, my voice and my action to the opinions of a majority of the people whom I represent."
