GENERAL SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

There was quite a surprising rumor current yesterday afternoon in local baseball circles and the surprise was increased when the rumor was confirmed last evening by Mr. Temple, of the local ball club.

There is to be a very important change in the local club and instead of Manager Buckenberger having to go he is to become a director and will entirely represent Mr. Temple's interest on the board. This means that Mr. Temple is to retire from baseball as far as taking an active part in the affairs of the local club is concerned, but he will continue his investment in the club and Mr. Buckenberger will look after it. A gentleman interested in the club said yesterday: "I know that Mr. Temple has decided to appoint Mr. Buckenberger his representative on the board of directors of the club, and Mr. Buckenberger will very likely be made President. He is a stockholder of the club now and Mr. Temple is very much impressed with his business abilities, baseball knowledge and his honesty of pprpose. Mr. Temple, I know, has as much to attend to in his own business as he can well manage, and his business is getting larger every day. I may add that Manager Buckenberger on Monday received a splendid offer to go and manage the Buffalo club. He showed the offer to Mr. Temple and the latter then and there made the agreement already referred to.

At a late hour last evening Mr. Temple was questioned as to the above statements and he confirmed them to the letter. When asked when the proposed change will take place, he said: "At the annual meeting; and this certainly means that Mr. Buckenberger is to stay here. I desire to be out of baseball as far as being an official of the club is concerned. I really haven't time to devote to the club's affairs and I think Mr. Buckenberger quite capable of looking after my interests and the interests of the club generally."

While patrons of the club will regret Mr. Temple's resolve, it is pleasing to know that he has exercised such good judgment in selecting Mr. Buckenberger to represent him and his interest. Mr. Temple is certainly one of the most courageous baseball magnates Pittsburg has ever had and he has proven himself one of the most intelli-

THEY WERE UNLUCKY.

Our Sluggers Drop a Game to the Baltimores Because of Hard Luck-Galvin Has His Finger Split-Puffinton Pitches Well at Critical Stages-Beckley's Good Batting.

BALTIMORE, May 31 .- [Special. ]-Buffinthe Orioles their first from Pitts burg to-day, not quite a thousand people witnessing the exhibition. After the first inning Galvin, who started in for Pittsburg, pitched winning ball, but in attempting to stop a hard, bounding hit from Buffinton's bat in the fifth inning he split his right forefinger, and it may be some time before the Pittsburgs will see the old standby in the box again. He was succeeded by Etmer Smith, who also did fine work after his first inning in the box. Buffinton was as wild as a March hare at times, and at others again wonderfully steady. He gave an exhibition of head work in the sixth inning, when, with three men on the bases and no hands out, he prevented scoring.

One Very Unfortunate Feature.

The fact that 13 of the Pittsburgs died on the bases speaks for itself. Both teams played with snap and vigor, the fielding be ing good. Baltimore's errors were not more costly than those of the visitors. The features of the game were two great catches by Farrell and a fine throw nipping a runner at tnird, the fielding of Schoon, Welch and Shugart and the batting of Halligan and eckiey. The Baltimores began scoring in the first

The Baltimores began scoring in the first when, after Van Haltren went out, Welch got his base on balls. School followed with a bunt to first, and in trying to eatch Welch, Beckley threw wild and Curt reacned third. Halligan then followed with a triple over Farrell's head, scoring Welch and School, but he himself was left. In their half the Pittsburgers got two men on bases after two Pittsburgers got two men on bases after two men were out, but Raymond struck out and they died there. In the second they again had two on the bases, but a double play broke them up. In the third Shugart made a them up. In the third Shugart made a double after two were out and this, too, was

The Baltimores Increased Their Lead. The Orioles increased their lead by one in the fourth, when, after Halligan had flied out, Pickett made a hit. He was forced at second by Shindle, and the latter reache second on a passed ball. Then Whistler hit a hard one to Shugart, who let the ball go through him and Shindle crossed the plate. Then the Pittsburgs woke up. After Ray-mond had fouled out Farrell drove a beauty mond had fouled out Farrell drove a beauty to center for a bigs, and Mack followed suit with a hit over third base, on which Farrell reached third. Mack going to second on a play to catch Farrell, Corkhill sacrificed to left field and Van Haltren threw beautifully to the plate, but Robby fumbled and Farrell scored. Then Galvin hit a little one to Buffinton and the latter fumbled, allowing Mack to score and Galvin to get to first. A base on balls to Miller and Bierbauer's short hit followed, filling the bases, but Singart flew out to Halligan and the agony was over. In the next inning Beckley started off with a triple over Welch's head, and he came in on a wild pitch, tieing the score.

Another Very Unlucky Stage.

Another Very Unlucky Stage.

In the next two men went out, but Farrell and Corkhill reached second and third on errors by Shindle and School and a wild pitch, but Smith struck out and left them to die. In the sixth the Baltimores made their last run, and what proved to be the last of tile game. Halligan drove a beauty to right field, which looked good for three bases, but Farrell caught it by jumping fully a foot. Pickett then rapped out a single and Shindle a double to the left field bleachers, sending in Pickett. In the seventh Pittsburg started out to do or die. Miller made a clean single to center and Bierbauer followed suit. Shugart, in trying to sacrifice, bunted safe and the bases were full. Then Buffinton settled down to work. Beckley hit a hard one to Whistler, who made a grand stop and nipped Miller at the plate. Haymond, who followed, struck out, and Farrell retired the side by sending a fly to Pickett, and for the second time three Pittsburgers expired on the bases. After this base getting was rare and the game. Halligan drove a beauty to right

To-Day's Local Game.

The local State League game to-day at Exposition Park promises to be an interesting one. The Pittsburgs will try to redeem their bad defeat of yesterday. Southard, the left handed phenomenon, will occupy the box for the visitors. Jones will do the twirling for Pittsburg. The contest for the State League pennant promises to be an interest-ing one after some of the Eastern clubs strike their gait. Pittsburg has an advan-tage as they have 14 straight games at home. THE DETROIT PROGRAMME.

A Good Card, but Pittsburg's Races Will

Just Be as Popular. DETROIT, May 31 .- The Detroit Driving Club has announced its programme and purses for the great Blue Ribbon meeting of phress for the gives that a cools meeting of 1892. The dates selected are July 18, 19, 20, 21 and 22. These dates clash with the Grand Circuit meeting at Pittsburg, as was the case two years ago. The management, however, have little to fear from this source as the popularity of Detroit's big trotting meeting among the horsemen of the United States and Canada and the fact that the local association will offer $42,000 in purses, while Pittsburg's footing will only reach $33,000, will serve to draw the very best horses in the country to the Hamtramck track.

Of the 15 events the Merchants and Manufacturers' stake, $8,000 for 2.51 class is the principal one. The other purses amount to $2,000 each, the division of each to be 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent. Two thousand dollars of the Merchants and Manufacturers' stake has been reserved as a consolation purse for the losers on the last day. 1892. The dates selected are July 18, 19, 20, 21

Fitz Was Surprised.

BALTIMORE, May 31 .- "Bob" Fitzsimmons, who is at the Monumental Theater this week with his comedy and athletic combination, said of the result of the Jackson-Slavin fight, that he was just a little surprised. He had seen Jackson fight in Australia and thought him a good man, but after the Corbett-Jackson fight he had about come to the conclusion that Slavin was a shade better than Jackson, though he knew that Jackson was not in condition when he fought Corbett. The fight moves Corbett up a peg in the pugilist's opinion. Fitzsimmons did not have a dollar bet on the fight.

MOONSHINER MILLER.

His Trial for the Killing of Hochstetler Now Under Way.

MISTAKES OF THE PROSECUTION

Liable to Result in a Miscarriage of the State's Intentions.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.] SOMERSET, PA., May 31.-The case against William C. Miller, the moonshine king, was taken up in court here this morning. The story of the murder of old Yoney Hochstetler was recited to the jury by young James Beale, the only eye witness to the killing. Other witnesses were called to testify as to the finding of the victim's body, while still others were called to prove that a grudge others were called to prove that a grudge had existed between Miller and Hochsteller for years, and that after the revenue officers had raided the moonshine district in January, Miller had quietly thrown out hints that Hochsteller might be found dead some morning with his body riddled with bullets.

Several of the witnesses testified in buying moonshine from the defendant, and when Jake Gerry was called to the witness stand and asked to define what is meant by "moonshine," he promptly replied: "A fellow what makes illicit whisky." Gerry indicted as an accessory to the murder of Hochstetler.

The Commonwealth was unable to put any of the witnesses on the stand to whom Miller had admitted the killing of Hochstetler, because to all of them he claimed that he had only used the stock of his gun over the victim's head after the latter had assaulted him with a rock and swore that he would kill him.

It is very evident that the attorneys for the Commonwealth made a mistake when they tried Miller first before his son Bob. Had Bob Miller been brought to trial first his confession would have been used against his father and he could have been made a witness against him also. As matters now stand, Bob's sworn statement is not worth the paper it is written on. The probabilities are that both he and his father will escape the gallows.

The Commonwealth rested its case tonight. Beale was the only witness who testimony amounted to anything, and he was not too positive in his identification of Miller as Hochstetler's murderer.

WESTMORELAND'S BATTLE.

J. B. O. Cowan's Friends Confident of His Nomination for State Senator. GREENSBURG, May $1 .- [Special.]-The fight for the Democratic nomination for State Senator in Westmoreland is probably the hottest ever experienced in the Star of the West. The Republicans have already nominated for the place, and the Democrats have three candidates already in the field. The nomination will be made on June 11. The district is generally Democratic. It is now generally conceded that J. B. O. Cowan, who ably represented the county in the last Legislature, will be the Democratic nominee, although there are several combinations made against him. Cowan is the son of the late United States Senator Edgar Cowan, and he has inherited much of his father's mental strength and vigor. The son, like the father, is a powerful man intellectually and physically, and he is the only one of the three candidates now in the field who some time within the past few years has not strayed off after some strange political fad. The others, each in his turn, has been in the Temperance party Greenback party or the Republican party, and some of them have been in two different parties at the same time. It is claimed for Mr. Cowan therefore that he is the only straightout Democrat in the field, and there is a general demand that the straightout Democrat be nominated. bly represented the county in the last Leg-demand that the straightout Democrat be nominated.

Mr. Cowan's record while in the Legislature was exceptionally clean and good. His earnest fight for the oil producers, in which his constituents had great interest, won him many lasting friends, and secured for him the united support of the farmers who are interested in having their lands and property handled by individual producers. One of the other candidates who entered the field has taken up a factional fight that defeated the party once, and this after the other factionist has left the county.
