LONDON MUSIC HALLS.

DRINK THE REAL ATTRACTION

Of Many Places That Have Been Made

imagine a greater contrast than exists between London actors and London variety actors; between the legitimate London stage and that vast and various collection of amusement establishments known as music balls, in which music has never entered, and between the audiences at London theatres and the throngs which gather at "the halls."

The London actor, as shown in my last letter, is a man of good birth and breeding. He has had the advantage of the best of early training and environment. His vocation is one which requires manful effort, mtense application, many years of apprentice-ship and study, and conduces to high moral and intellectual ambitions. He is a home lover, builder and keeper. His social status is the best. His associations are with men and women of talent and achievement. And, in most cases, he passes from his days of activity into a long and mellow evening of life, in which he is still often a public favorite and is always sought after as a companion and a reminiscentialist; and at last, when the dark curtain is rung down upon him, he enters a well-merited repose, embalmed in the loving memory of men, if not graven or painted in the niches of re-

A Credit to Any Nation.

The London dramstic stage and its audiare good. I believe that, as a rule, English players, plays and audiences together repre-sent the best expression and receptivity of genuine mirth and sentiment which can anywhere be found. And on the large lines of consideration, it may be safely said that whatever may be presented, comedy, drama or tragedy, upon the stage of London and has met with public satisfaction, has been the product of dramatic authors having no superiors, has been given interpretation by the ablest and most conscientious of actors, and has reached the magic realm of success through as cautious and severe criticism and purgingly-healthful laggard approval, as are ecessary to give something of real value to the entire amusement world.

But good as all this surely is, what can be the secret of that strange and inexplica-ble national taste which not only makes ssible but stubbornly clings to and continues to develop with giant strides that inomparably greater and inexpressibly inane and beastly form of amusement found in the London music halls?

A reputable English writer once gave, from the English standpoint, a pleasant cue to the secret in the proposition that "the greater height a people touch in their de-velopment the lower mostly are the depths of their recoil. Unhappy, then, the nation that has no appreciation of hopeless vulhightly crowd from 2,000 to 5,000 people. There are hundreds upon hundreds of lesser affairs, ranging from the old time free-and-easy, from which the modern music nall has sprung to the "penny-gaffs," where au-diences of from 100 to 500 persons may be found. Beside these, I would almost venture the assertion, there are thousands of "pubs" or public houses, drinking places with assembly rooms behind the bar, where free "smoking concerts" attract a perma-nent nightly audience of a a score to a hunred workingmen and the foul rabble that subsists upon their generosity and weak-usly ridiculous pantomine, or voiceless melodrams, or wordless tragedy, in which there is indescribable murder, highway robbery, and other lurid crime, but all enneted without spoken word to evade the law governing dramatic representations, is the least harmful, for it has no bar; and to get his "penny orth" of play, the White-cluspel barbarian is kept for at least two hours away from a public house. Drink is the real attraction of all the others. The wise luwmakers of London will not permit any dramatic representation at any place where liquor is sold. Something which would appeal to the intellect might lessen the demand for drink. So they make it easy to debauch the masses with a combimusic-hall palaces as the London Pavillion, Albambra, Tivoli, Royal, Oxford and Trocadero, not one in one hundred could exist a fortnight on the ment of its performance

The Smoking Concert Rooms,

The great London music hall is simply a larger and more insiduously hertful type of the free "smoking concert" room, in the is practically a gigantic bar or series of ters of hars surrounding an auditorium where thousands instead of scores can be admitted, at a merely nominal entrance fee; where a stage with specialty performers suppliant the platform, the planist and the volunteer; and where the same classes, or tion is that by far the best ret more victous ones, with "Arrys and Artitatined from THE DISPATCH. riets" of London fill the pit, while every manner of cad, fast fellow of the gentry and mobility, including a good sprinkling of London Bohemia, saunter in the promenades and fill the boxes and stalls.

Nothing constant explosion of scratched matches is reliable can be learned on the outside. of the same deadly odor and familiar sound There are the same sort of barmaids, only more of them, scores of them, more bewire! ing and dangerous. The demimonde, quiet but alert as faicons, are here in hundreds search of quarry. Dozens of gold-laced lackeys and inspectors give semblance of refined order and strict propriety. But all the elements of mischief are here. Though the mirrors, decorations and all appointments are gorgeous, all the opportunities for making a beast of one's seif are provided without stint. You can become maudlin and evening, is roaring along with the orchestra at the catchlines, choruses and refrains.

Bound to Have Their Money's Worth. About 20 different acts called "turns" are done by as many different performers in one evening, and each "actor" will have from one to four "turns" for the same even-ing, each at different halis, to which he peeds in every sort of conveyance, from a coster's donkey cart to a brougham. Programmes are furnished, on payment, and huge numerals, slid into the proscenium sides, corresponding with programme num-bers, indicate that when the deafening clang of the stage manager's gong is next heard, the "turn" is to done by the Renowned Signorina Splittavoce, Spaghetts Siren to the Italian Court, by the Climax of Cloggists, by Nell Nellwood, Unap-proachable Delineator of Dukes' Dialogues, by the Slug Brothers, Kings of Knocka-bouts, or by Mile. Padshanks, Queen of Aspiring Heels. Applause is ungrudgingly given, and the pit, ever insisting upon its oney's worth of screeching, wriggling and contortion, always vociferously demands as many "hencores" as the management will

These shows, with few exceptions in favor of individual performers, are utterly point-mirthless, inane and beastly. There less, mirthless, inane and beastly. There are perhaps in all this host of London music uall "actors" a half dozen who have demonstrated that true art may find reward even in so hopeless a field. Such are George Beauchamp, comedian; Jenny Hill, impersonator of the coster girl, "the ludging-ouse missus," and female characters of that ilk; and Albert Chevalier, whose studies and representations of the London costermonger should give him rank as a really great actor and man of positive

Dread and Contempt of Each Other But between all these odd folk and the London actors of the dramatic stage, there is endless emulation mingled with tantalizing attempts at "freedery" and airiness on the one side, and a fadeless dread and con-Popular by Thespians.

TOBRESPONDENCE OF THE DISPATCH.] LONDON, May 23 -It is impossible to earrier, or from somewhere out the East carrier, or from somewhere out the East End slums.

If he be of as good quality as from the humblest laboring classes he still, as well as all other musle hall performers, graduates into his profession through one unvarying school of low and often vile training—from the "penny gaff," the worst of the London shows, or from the "smoking cancert" den, where he has, as "yolunteer," sang, danced, contorted, or slugged, for the free entertainment of the beery and foul gutter, bests of London. Many of these fagutter hosts of London. Many of these fa-vorites command salaries of from £100 to £150 per week. But about all of them reach their affinence, and often respectability, out of the same original depths, and along the same vicissitous road.

A TANTALIZING REDUCTION.

The Lower Railread Freight Rates on Iron Last On'y a Short Month, CLEVELAND, June 3.-In its weekly esume of the condition of the iron and ore trade, the Iron Trade Review says: The iron market plods on in a way that has long been wearisome. Productive capacity has had some limitations put on it in May that have essisted notably in the reduction of stocks. From Ashland the ore movement is largely of tonnage covered in connection with the heavy sales of last winter, and wild charters ences' are a credit to any nation. As a are not plentiful. Thus far the course of whole the morale, atmosphere and results the freight market has been close in line the freight market has been close in line with that of last year.

There is a continued absence of large sales. Buyers in the market are to cover existing needs, and the weekly aggregate of 1,000-ton and 2,500-ton sales is, perhaps, an in-crease, but that does not signify at a time when mining companies are adding to their stock piles every day, trusting to sales yet to be made to take care of the steady drain of operating expenses. Just as the furnace interest had begun to believe that the railroads at last appreciated the situation, a notification comes that the old east-bound rates on pig iron are to be restored June 13. Why the advance should come now, after a tantalizing month under lower figures, is as nscrutable as the paltriness of the cokerate reduction of 5 cents from Conuellsville

C. L. Magee Still Declares That Harrison Should Be the Man.

VON BONNHORST TALKS FOR ALGER

The eyes of the Republicans of the nation are now turned toward Minneapolis and the Republicans of Pittsburg yesterday turned their faces in that direction. It was a distinguished party that left Pittsburg during the day. They went in twos and threes and fours, and each had his own opinion on the result of the great National Convention, and probably no district in this or any other State in the Union will send to the gathering of political leaders such varied sentiments and such a com pletely divided delegation. The Republicans, big and little, yesterday turned themselves loose in the great flood that is rushing to the Northwest. The big chiefs of the city, the accepted political leaders and the ward hustler who could secure transportation and promise of something to eat while at the convention hurried away to howl themselves hoarse and walk themselves weary for their favorite Presidental aspirant. The first party to leave Pittsburg was that headed by H. W. Oliver, and which comprised besides Mr. Oliver himself, Chief Brown, of the Department of Public Safety, Chief Bigelow, of the Department of Public works, James W. Piatt, State Senator Flinn, the famous city contractor, and George Von Bonnhorst, Recorder of Allegheny county.

Traveled in a Private Car. These gentlemen lett the P. & W. depot in President Oliver's private car promptly at 3 o'clock. Every detail had been arranged for the trip and the magnificent car had been pientifully supplied with a larder that embraced everything that could be crowded upon a modern bill of fare. There were edibles upon a modern bill of fare. There were edibles and drinkables galore and the fragrant Havana imported for the occasion was within easy reach. All kinds of literature was scattered about the car, and arrangements had been made so that the party could while away the time with a luscious novel by Ouida, study the intricacies of the McKinley bill or refresh their minds with the story of "Harrison's Four Years in the White House."

White House."

Before the special and private train left the Allegheny station each member of the party was asked the question:

"Who will be nominated at Minneapolis?"

Mr. Oliver looked grave, and as he turned to one of his companions said:

"Blaine, I think."

Brown Is for Blaine. Chief Brown laughed pleasantly when asked the question. Finally he answered:

Chief Bigelow, looking grave, as is his custom, said: "I believe it will be Senator Allisof."

Recorder Von Bonnhorst was prompt with his reply. He seemed to have committed it to memory, and, after looking anxiously at Senator films, he said: "I am for Alger first and Harrison second. But the other fellows have promised to be for my man Alger for second place."

second place."

James W. Pintt was not disposed to discuss the question. He said he was not a delegate, but he finally submitted: "I think Blaine will be nominated on the first ballot." Senator Flinn was the last of the party to Senator Flinn was the last of the party to be interviewed. He is a positive, outspoken Blaine man, at least to the naked eye, and in response to the query he said: "Blaine will be nominated. At least," he added, as a sort of soothing clause, "I am for him."

The Oliver party will live in their car while at the convention and they talked of a tour of the lakes before returning.

Magee Is Still for Harrison. Mr. Magee is confident that Harrison will be nominated. "I think the President will there on the first ballot" Mr Mage said. "I don't think Mr. Blaine will allow his name to go before the convention. In my judgment the office of President is too high to be trifled with, and the neople are disposed to have no trifling with the office or the candidate for the office. Mr. Blaine has said he would not accent the nomination, and with the people of the country his own word should, and no doubt will, be accepted. I predict that Harrison will be nominated."

Ex-Collector Warmcastle will not go to the convention. He was at the Union station last night, however. He said: "Blaine will be nominated on the first ballot."

"But will he accept?" was asked.

"He will be nominated whether he accepts or not." Mr. Warmcastle answered.
