week-I mean everyone who wears a capi- Fruit and Flower Mission for, say the past tal E-was to put on her best frock and go out before luncheon to hear Jane Meade Welsh lecture. Miss Welshis a young woman with a mission. This modern, and what might be termed, moral article of apparel in Miss Welsh's case is a desire to make American women good subjects of their country, by transforming them into intelligent ones. Miss Welsh talks from a sofa, they say, perchance Cowper-like on an appallingly ponderous subject.

At one time our girls would have fainted at the thought of the American Constitution, not to mention the reality of it. doubtless, the present regime of tennia, walking, cycling, rid-ing, boating, etc., has something to do with the fact that mademoiselle no longer knuckles under. Further, she picks up the history of her country with no more eremony than she does her racquet, but, like it, always with grace, and proceeds to strike straight from the elbow with precision and marvelous execution. To make the historical fad complete there is but one thing wanting. Why, if there are tennis "togs," riding "habits," boating "suits," and wheel "costumes," what is to prevent women wearing a special history frock? It might take the form of a college gown and trenchers; the gown to be of any color that would please the wearer's fancy, and the mortar board have a lining to set off the face below it. Then there might be a dainty pocket lost in the folds of the gown-or better, let it be in some conspicuous place, from which, to be absolutely correct, there should protrude a Russia leather bound American history, pecial edition of a few copies, uncut edges and other similar elegancies. Moreover let it be called after the founder of the new cult, the Jane Meade Welsh trock, and which of us will not beg to be a disciple?

A short review of the week is in order just to remind the people-since it is nearly too warm for them to recollect for themselves-what they have been doing, where they have been going and what they may have missed. The weddings were equally divided between out of and in town. A party of Pittsburgers were in the East early in the week for the marriage of Christopher Magee, Jr., and Miss Heberton at Bridgeing place in Monongahela City drew largely from Pittsburg attendants at the ceremony. But excuse an interpolation which the exigencies of the case call forth! The rumor is that one bridegroom last week had a tussle with his collar, of such duration and obstinacy, as almost to stand in the way of his getting married in good time if not to prohibit it absolutely. He ruined two collars in an endeavor to keep collar and finally in despair rushed into a third one only after the bride had begun she march to the altar. For some moments there was a medley of collar, neck, button, button-hole and hands besides a storming, stamping, voluble bridegroom, and there encased in a temporary arrangement the gentleman walked forth as cool as if be had been kept on ice between the time of the engagement from Pittsburg attendants at the ceremony. walked forth as cool as II be had been kept on ice between the time of the engagement and that of the marriage. Other weddings last week were the ceremonies joining together Miss Holmes and Mr. Charles Moore, of Chicago; Miss Harriet Wilson, of Leetsdale, and Mr. Patterson, of Sewickley, and Miss McCrory and Dr. Ritchey, and Miss McCrory and Dr. Ritchey. Philanthropically speaking, the anni-versary at the Home for Aged Protestanta was the event of last week. Between the was the event of last week. Between the readers and the lamp-post it was by no means as successful as it might be. What the reason is could not be easily explained, but doubtless people are beginning to think that part of town too far away to trouble going. Evidently the time will come when our women must systematize their charitable dispositions and comtize their charitable dispositions and compress them into works comprised in institutions immediately at their own doors. Our charities then, like New York friendships, will depend entirely upon topographical and geographical situation. Some other interesting notes are: The announcement of Mrs. Jarvis Adams' "at home" on Tuesday, the engagement of Miss Kate Perring the reception to Dr. and Mrs. Perrine, the reception to Dr. and Mrs. Arundel, of Trinity Church; the farewell Arundei, of Trinity Church; the farewell to Dr. and Mrs. Purves, of the First Presbyterian Church; Mrs. Bissell's reception for Mrs. Russell, of Mt. Vernon, O., and Mrs. Orwig, of Mansfield, and the afternoon reception and tea on Thursday and Friday next to present the new annex of the Homeopathic Hospital to the public.

The intelligence that Princess Marie of Edinburgh is betrothed to the Crown Prince of Roumania recalls a little incident in which that young lady figured with one of her grandmother's subjects. A couple of young men traveling from Havre to Dover found time hang rather heavily upon their hands until they fell in with three very pretty girls somewhere about 14, 16 and 18 respectively. They were in charge of an respectively. They were in charge of an elderly woman, who might have been anything from a governess to a poor relation. However, she was no ogre, and the girls were permitted to do nearly as they pleased. They looked at the young men (who were not bad to look upon), the young men looked at them, and then both sides looked again, and so on until there were some smiles. This was as far as things could advance, as the duenna as well as a big collie kent the young gentlemen afar off. Nevervance, as the duenna as well as a big collie kept the young gentlemen afar off. Nevertheless, as far as smiles and looks and that delightfully vague thing known as a general understanding could, they were all fast friends and warm admirers. Upon the boat landing at Dover, the young men were much perplexed to see two lines of soldiers drawn up on the pier and a host of curious reconsists. pier and a host of curious people craning their necks in search of something or some one. Then the whisper went round that the three pleasant pretty fellow voyagers were Prince Alfred's daughters on their way home from a continental school, and that the turnout was in their honor. The two men collapsed, and while all else were showing their loyalty according to their individual tastes, the young fellows sat chewing their mustaches and did not even dare to wave their hendlershiefs.

The proper thing for everyone to do last | tical head to con the monthly reports of the couple of years, and do a few sums in addition, and then publish the result for the amszement of the public. Some day I may do it myself, but from the prodigious nature of the reports, as they have passed under the Fruit and Flower Mission fail in its report, just that one might teel justified in thinking it less superhumanly persevering and less a model. Take the following, the published account of the work in May, and remember that this is only a twelfth part of the work of the society in a year, and see if you will not feel as I do, like crawling into some hole and pulling the hole after me, for my poor carpings at people for miserable, uncharitable bodies. During the past four weeks this is what the society distributed: 154 dozen oranges, 149 dozen lemons, 100 dozen bananas, 540 bouquets, 64 quarts of strawberries, besides papers and magazines. These gifts were made to the Allegheny General, St. Francis, Homeopathic, Southside, Mercy and West Penn hospitals and the Society for the Improvement of the Poor. The committee for May invitations were issued during the week town, N. J., on Wednesday evening, among the guests being the bridegroom's family and Mrs. Max Moorhead. The marriage of Mr. Charles Howell and Miss Norman takon Wednesday, June 15, at midday. The ceremony will be performed at Mrs. Mifflin's house, North Hope, Butler county, this State. The Mifflin's are a well-known county family, the widowed mother of the bride, being the relict of the Hon. R. A. Mifflin, who at the time of his death was a member of the Pennsylvania Lecislature. The interest in the wedding is intensified by the fact that another daughter, Miss Lily May, will also celebrate her nuptials at the same hour, with John Franklin Reigart, of New York. The two sisters are the same age and friends say it is difficult to distinguish between them. If this be the case, it is to be hoped that there will be no contritemps at the altar, and that Mr. Reigart will get the young lady of his choice and not unwittingly rob Mr. Suyder of his selection. Mr. Reigart is tutor of psychology in the New York Training School for Teachers. He will asil with his wife for Europe three days after the wedding. Mr. Snyder will defer the formal honeymoon grip until the midsummer term closes. ceremony will be performed at Mrs.

A capital performance at the Alvin Thea-ter is being expected by the friends of Miss Mary Cody, who on Monday evening at that ian Wife." Miss Cody has placed herself on a professional plane in this city that is worthy the emulation of all progressive young women.

The Ladies' Hebrew Benevolent Society and the Young Ladies' Sewing Society will and the Young Ladies' Sewing Society will give a strawberry festival and fair ip C yclo-rama Hall on Tuesday. The fair and festival coalesce for the first time, and the signs of the times are for a completely successful event. Among its promoters are: Mrs. Enoch Rauli, Mrs. Robert Eisner, Mrs. Fielschman, Mrs. Reuh, Miss Blanche Wertheimer and Miss Elsie Morganstern.

One of the notable events in social life set for next week is the reception to be ten-dered Rev. George T. Purves, D. D., and his estimable wife, by the ladies of the First Presbyterian Church, in the beautiful chapel connected with the church, Tuesday evening, June 7,8 to II. The committee of ladies having the matter in charge have held a number of meetings, and the preparations being made are said to exceed anything of the kind heretofore undertaken by the lattice of this church.

The affair is in the nature of a farewell to Dr. and Mrs. Purves, who leave the city in a few days to take up their residence at a rew usys to take up their residence at Princeton, N. J. It is expected there will be a very large gathering of the members of the church and congregation, as this will be the only opportunity of a public nature that will be offered. The rooms will be beauti-fully decorated.

The ladies having the affair in charge are Mrs. Alex. Laughlin, Mrs. William C. Lilley, Secretary and Treasurer; Mrs. L. Peterson. Jr., Chairman of the Reception Committee; Mrs. Walter McCord, of the decorations; Mrs. Mattle King, of refreshments; Mrs. Caristian I. McKee, of music; Mrs. E. D. Smith, of Lemonade Committee.

The promenade concerts that have been the fad in many of the Eastern cities are to have a trial in Pittsburg, or. rather, in Allegheny, On the evening of Friday, June 10, the Great Western Military Band, augmented to 40 instrumentalists, will give the mented to 40 instrumentalists, will give the first concert at Cyclorama Auditorium, Beach street and Irwin avenue. The second concert will be given on Monday following, and the band will give concerts at the Auditorium every Monday and Friday evening throughout the summer. A choice programme will be given from 8 to 10. Cyclorama Auditorium will be refitted and a large park annexed, which will be used as a promenade. The innovation starts out with every promise of success.

Another old landmark will soon disappear if the rumor be correct that is floating about regarding the expected closing of Miss Ward's School in Shadyside. Miss Miss Ward's School in Shadyside.
