

WORRIED BY ALIENS.

Home Secretary Matthews Has Drafted an Immigration Bill

MODELED ON AMERICAN LINES.

Queen Victoria Convinced Gladstone Will Be the Next Premier.

THE OPENING OF A GREAT CAMPAIGN

LONDON, June 4.—(Copyright.)—Parliament has adjourned until Thursday next. When the House of Commons reassembles, Mr. Balfour will ask for the whole time of the House for Government business, and the request will be granted, as everybody will be anxious to get the session as quickly as possible.

The fate of the Irish education bill remains in suspense, but the Irish local government bill and other measures have been dropped. By sitting late and working hard the Commons will be able to dispose of the supply bill and other necessary business in about a fortnight, and Parliament will be dissolved on or about the 25th inst.

Recognizing Immigration Evils.

Home Secretary Matthews has drafted a bill restricting and regulating somewhat on American lines the immigration of destitute aliens into England, but Colonel Howard Vincent and other members who have been moving actively in this matter in the House of Commons don't see any prospect of legislation on the subject in this Parliament.

It is not generally known that three years ago a select committee of the House of Commons actually reported in favor of regulations at British ports similar to those enforced at New York, and it is strange that a bill based upon the committee's recommendation was not introduced and passed long ago, in view of the circumstances that it would have been extremely popular.

Many Destitute Stay in England.

Colonel Vincent told a DISPATCH reporter today that 400,000 destitute aliens arrived in England during the past 12 months, irrespective of a considerable number of foreigners passing through to America. Of the latter class the ship owners stop many at Liverpool, knowing they would be sent back at the shippers' expense.

This residuum, the Colonel added mournfully, remains in England, although the official records treat them as having gone to the United States. It is asserted that the number of undesirable immigrants increase every year, and that drastic regulations alone will not stop the influx. Apparently there must be a poll tax as well.

Mr. Gladstone will probably come to town next Thursday for a few days, but three-fourths of the members will remain in the country looking after their election interests. Joseph Chamberlain will open the campaign in Birmingham next week.

His re-election is assured, thanks to the personal devotion of the citizens among whom he has lived and worked for 30 years past. But more than half his party will end themselves without seats in the new Parliament, for nothing is more certain in connection with the coming struggle than the chief victories of the Home Rulers in British constituencies will be gained at the expense of the mongrel group calling itself Liberal-Unionists and acknowledging the dual leadership of the Duke of Devonshire and Joseph Chamberlain.

Victoria Expects It to Be Gladstone. Mr. Gladstone will not take the field until Parliament has been dissolved. He will proceed direct to Edinburgh and forthwith commence an oratorical campaign of about ten days which cannot fail to have an immense influence upon the country. If the omens be not falsified he will be the next Prime Minister of England.

Gladstone will be the first English statesman who has been Premier four times. That he will attain that unique distinction is evidently the belief of Queen Victoria, one of the ablest and most astute observers of this country. She had arranged to remain at Balmoral, her private estate in the north of Scotland, until 28th inst., but in view of a probable change of ministry she has decided to return to Windsor on the 22d. This will save Mr. Gladstone a long railway journey to the north when the Queen summons him and Her Majesty is entitled to some praise for her consideration. She remained at Balmoral during the crisis in 1886 and Lord Salisbury had to undertake the journey, although he was in poor health at the time.

LE CARON WRITES A BOOK.

He Has Given a Story of His Career With Lots of Life in It.

LONDON, June 4.—Le Caron, who played such a prominent part before the Parnell commission, has since judiciously withdrawn from public life. He is lying seriously ill in a quiet country place whither he retired some time ago, dropping his too famous nom de guerre. He has employed his leisure time in writing the history of his strange and eventful life. The manuscript is offered for sale in London, and has been purchased by the manager of one of the theaters.

Arrangements are now going forward for its publication, but it is evident from a glance at its pages that it will require very careful editing if the persons responsible for its appearance in print are to avoid a long series of actions for libel.

PRINCE FERDINAND'S MISSION.

He Is After a Wife, but Is Not Received With Great Cordiality.

LONDON, June 4.—Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria has been in London several days this week, and his movements have been closely watched by agents of the Russian and French embassies. The Prince has not been received here with the formal honors due to a reigning sovereign, but his reception unofficially has been more than cordial. Last Tuesday, at the two very interesting drawings has been added to the collection in the British Museum. One is a very fine but somewhat damaged study of the picture in the collection of M. Habien, of Cassel, by Ludovico Mazzolino, who painted chiefly at Ferrara about 1500. The second drawing is by Frans Hals. It is a study for a portrait of a young man in black chalk touched with white on gray blue paper. Authentic drawings by Hals are extremely rare.

Patil Changes Her Plans.

LONDON, June 4.—Madame Patil has after all decided not to perform the dramatic version of "Cavalleria Rusticana" at Craig-y-nos this summer. She tully intends, however, to give it next year with the co-operation of Mr. Alexander Salvini.

THE LITERARY LADIES

Of England Hold Their Annual Feast and Grow Excited Over Trifles—No Men Admitted Although Some Were Dearest—Suggestive Menn.

LONDON, June 4.—The literary ladies' dinner, which is now an annual event, took place on Thursday at the Criterion Restaurant, the very center of London's giddy whirl. But the literary ladies were much more decorous than their surroundings would have justified. No masculine persons were admitted to the banqueting room, at any rate, after the waiters had withdrawn, and the proceedings can only be judged by the report in the newspapers presumably supplied by the committee of the women themselves, of whom there were about 40, inclusive of Lady Lindsay, Lady Violet Greville and Mrs. Edmond Gosse.

The dinner here an evening described in the report stored as appropriate. It represented Minerva offering a libation to Bacchus. The last page of the menu was consecrated to "with that basket from the 'Taming of the Shrew.'" The best speech of the evening is declared to have been one delivered by Miss Clementina Black, an estimable lady who spends most of her time organizing into trade unions girls employed in match works and factories and other female toilers. The speech was certainly not of a convivial character. Miss Black took to the festive board the habitual earnestness and solemnity begotten of her work-a-day life, and her speech was devoted to such subjects as sweating in the West End, trade's unfair competition and female slavery.

Then somebody suggested that the title of the annual gathering was pretentious and Vincent and other members who have been moving actively in this matter in the House of Commons don't see any prospect of legislation on the subject in this Parliament. Mr. Ritchie, President of the local Government Board, was to have prepared the bill and in his absence the subject has been neglected. Ritchie represents an East End constituency, has studied alien immigration very closely and would pledge to his constituents to endeavor to grapple with the evil.

It is not generally known that three years ago a select committee of the House of Commons actually reported in favor of regulations at British ports similar to those enforced at New York, and it is strange that a bill based upon the committee's recommendation was not introduced and passed long ago, in view of the circumstances that it would have been extremely popular.

CHAMBER'S AFRICAN TRIP.

He Leaves London En Route for the Dark Continent.

LONDON, June 4.—Young William Astor Chamberlain left by the Club train today for Paris on his way to Africa. The Government have given him all facilities necessary for his exploring expedition in the matter of trans-shipment of stores and arms. Much interest is manifested in scientific and geographical circles in Chamberlain's expedition, as there is little doubt, in view of the extensive gains in the previous African travels and his splendid equipment, that he will add important achievement in the way of knowledge gained in hitherto unexplored country.

FREE from the cares of business Monday.

Trains to Kensington on June 5. Dinner at the great sale of toys.

Marriage Licenses Issued Yesterday.

VIA THE PENNSYLVANIA LINES.

The Route Taken by the Majority of the Traveling Public. Perfect service, unexcelled dining car appointments, magnificent smooth roadbeds and entire safety are certainly appreciated by those who travel on business or pleasure. It is, therefore, nothing surprising that last week the Pennsylvania Lines carried a larger number of travelers, political and other travelers east and west of the Atlantic, than any other line. The following may be mentioned: The following: Alderman McGee of the Club of about 100 people to Montreal, spending the night in Philadelphia, D. C. and the "Pulse of New York" company, 15 people, to New York City.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

WHENEVER I see Hood's Sarsaparilla now I want to bow and say "Thank You" I was badly affected with Rheumatism and neuralgic sores, covering almost the whole of one side of my face, nearly to the top of my head. Running sores discharged from both ears. My eyes were very bad, and going east was very painful opening or closing them. For nearly a year I was deaf. I went to the hospital and had an operation performed for the removal of a cataract from one eye. One day my sister brought me

Hood's Sarsaparilla which I took, and gradually began to feel better and stronger, and slowly the sores on my eyes and in my ears healed. I can now hear as well as ever. "DOLLARS WILL GO A GOOD WAY WITH US." Our artist has pictured this one with a trunk, because this week it will go much farther than usual. You'll be greatly, but agreeably, surprised by what a $10 bill will do in Men's Suits. The most elegant All-Wool Cheviot Suits, durable, stylish and as superior to the average $10 suit as a genuine dollar is to a counterfeit. They're well worth seeing. Unusual values also in Boys' Long-Pants Suits of all-wool materials at $6.50, always $9 and $10, and in Boys' Knee-Pants Suits of all-wool fabrics at $2.75, really worth $4 and $4.50. A lot of Star Percalé Waists, $1 and $1.25 grades, at 75c. Thin Coats and Vest-Straw Hats, Negligé Shirts, Underwear—immense lines—top-notch values.

THE POWER Of low prices moves merchandise rapidly; buyers grasp chances; the game couldn't be kept up. What

LACE SHOES. Ladies' Department—Kid upper, patent leather trimmed, at

All Widths $2.50 All Sizes. At other times this shoe commands $3.50. The shoe is draughted in the latest style and is perfect fitting.

WHAT About Oxfords and Slippers? Enough can be said of quality and price. At 75 cents we are selling an elegant Oxford—an Oxford that sells freely elsewhere at $1.25.

Our $1.00 Oxford, in Common Sense and Opera shapes, is simply perfect. Fine quality kid—good shapes.

In the finer grades of Oxfords, especially our $2 grade, the very best value exists. Twice this amount couldn't produce better effect.

CHILDREN'S DEPARTMENT. As the demand in this department shows stronger, we thought we would call your attention to our line of Spring Heels.

We have placed the Lace Shoe line in all the grades—either kid or Russia leather. For a change of style these goods show up well.
