and no one ever will. Anyone desirous of gathering an argu-ment in favor of public bathhouses need only have walked along the wharves and the city's river front yesterday and then paid a visit to Coroner McDowell. The rivers were alive with youthful bathers all around the city, and the police, where they made an effort to put a stop to the pleasure of the swimmers, had a lively and generally unsuccessful time of it. Along the Alle-gheny river side modest folk crossing the bridges found it good policy to look straight ahead to avoid a vision of shocking nudity presented by the urchins, and in some cases young men who swarmed in the water along the wharf.

The Elvers Alive With Bathers.

This was particularly the case above Ninth street and as far up the river as Sharpsburg. On the Monongabela side from Lock No. 1 to the western limit of the city swimmers were also numerons. Down about the Point bridge and the West End the police made a bold effort to capture the youngsters, but were only laughed and jeered at for their trouble, the lads always making their escape with little difficulty. The first fatal swimming accident of the season occurred Saturday evening and the body was recovered yesterday. Twelve year-old Edward Butler, son of Joseph Butler, of the Ligget Spring and Axle Com-pany, ran down from his father's office at the loot of Spruce street, Allegheny, to play along the river shore. An hour or two ater his father learned that his boy was drowned. He had gone in for a Saturday evening bathe, and, getting into one of the treacherous holes that abound in the rivers all around the city, sank and drowned because he could not swim. The body was found within a few vards of where he had been last seen and was taken to the parents' home.

McKeesport Contributes Another Victim. A similar case was reported from Me Keesport yesterday, and, now that the water has become warm enough to tempt the boys into it, the death roll from that cause is expected to grow rapidly. Last summer 27 persons swimming in the rivers here-abouts were drowned. In a majority of cases they were boys, unable to swim. Speaking of this record Coroner Me-Dowell said: "I don't believe there is another large city in the country where so many people lose their lives in this way as in Pittsburg. The reason is, to me, plain enough. In all other big cities where there is an extensive water front provision is made for the cleanliness of the masses and for instructing the boys in the invaluable art of swimming by means of practi-cally free bath houses. In New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Cleveland and other cities, these institutions are conducted in such a manner that they exert a powerful influence for good, as well as saving many ives. In some cities the municipal government conducts them as parks, libraries other public affairs are managed and this, I believe, is the best method. But it would be possible here, as in some other cities, for private citizens who desired and could afford to benefit mankind to establish a practically free bath.

Could be Easily Made Self-Supporting.

"A grant from the city could besecured to place large bathing boats at convenien places along the warves, and after the first cost they could be maintained either by small private subscriptions or by charging a small sum, say a penny, for the privilege of taking a bath. Even at that small sum during the summer season, I believe there would be sufficient patronage to maintain such an institution. A boy or a man would would be sufficient patronage to maintain such an institution. A boy or a man would willingly forego the pleasure or avoid the risk of a swim in the river if he could go into a bath pool for a penny, and many a one who fails to bathe with proper frequency would manage to take a bath once or twice a week at least. The bath-ing institutions now in operation in this city have done much good already, but the r are too expensive for the great mass of

The Central Colored Baptist Church o Lawson street. Thirteenth ward, was dedicated yesterday afternoon. Rev. John Pryor, pastor of the church, preached the morning sermon. Rev. Robert Johnston, of Washington, D. C., preached the dedication sermon at 3 o'clock. Rev. R. S. Laws, of the Greene Street Church, Allegheny, conducted the evening services. The church was organized at the Penn Incline hall last September with 20 members, where Mr. Pryor has preached every Sabbath since and has succeeded in increasing the memership to 180. The new church is a frame structure 40x58 feet. The cost of the building and furnishments was $2,500. Mr. Pryor succeeded in raising nearly $1,000 yesterday. The church would not hold the people who ame to attend the afternoon services.

was expected. The reason for this is be-cause the latest addition to Mount Troy has not been formally dedicated, and it is against the rules and laws of the Catholic Church to hold services in a chapel that has not been dedicated first by the Bishop. According to Father Mollinger this event will take place in due course of time, but this morning, by special permit from Bishop Phelan, the new chapel will be opened for blessings and to exhibit the relics collected to the commemoration of ing in a street fight, were fined $5 and costs St Anthony.

In anticipation of the great attendance today Father Mollinger has erected opposite the chapel a large and commodious house for the accommodation of guests and visitors. This building is nearly completed and ready for occupancy. Here can be obtained lodging and table board for from 100 to 200 people. The widespread at-tention that the priest's cures attracted last year is thought to be sufficient warrant for preparing for great crowds this time. Dur-ing the week in which St. Anthony's Day came last year the boarding houses on the mount could not begin to take care of the visitors. A number of carpenters were busy all day yesterday erecting refreshment stands for the big event of to-day. Father Mollinger will continue to bless the sick and afflicted every day until the close of this month, when he goes away for his health.

HOW IT ENDED.

A Gay Party of Sou haiders Spend Sunday in the Woods and Are Deserted by the Driver-A Day's Pleasure Spoiled by Long Walk.

As the sun came peeping over the hills yesterday morning a gay party of wellknown Southsiders, bound for a day's outing in the woods, boarded a wagon ladened with good things for the inner man and started on their way rejoicing. The course taken was toward White Hall. A particularly cool and shady nook had been selected for a stopping place and when it was reached the wagon was unloaded, the horses were staked out and everyone gave themselves up to a day of leisure and quiet enjoyment. Every thing went as merry as a marriage bell until the shades of night begin to fall, suggesting that it was time to be home-ward bound. The driver was called for to hitch up, but there was no response. A hasty search failed either to discover him hasty search failed either to discover him or the team. Loud and deep were the mal-edictions heaped upon his head when it slowly dawned on the hitherto happy crowd that they were seven miles from home and without a conveyance. About 10:30 o'clock the rumble of a wagon was heard approaching a well-known South Side livery establishment. Upon ar-

"Oh," he said, "I got tired and the horses were tired and so I came home." "Well, how are the people to get home?" "Well, I guess they'll have to walk," the driver auswered, "I quit right here." "Granted," said the now thoroughly ancared propriate. "and you hed batter

Just how the liveryman will square him-self with the unlucky crowd is not known, but there will probably be another chapter to the story.
