District of Columbia Business Men Not at All Unfavorable

TO ANOTHER TERM OF GROVER.

They Prefer People Who Spend Their Money

in a Lively Way, LIKE THE WHITNEYS AND FRIENDS

[FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.] WASHINGTON, June 17. -Interest in the Chicago Convention, a thermometer at 95 in the shade and the everlasting Sibley tent claim bill conspired to knock out the House this morning soon after it convened. With a full House this Sibley claim has brought that body to a standstill and speedy adjournment every Friday, which is private bill day, since it was reached on the calendar. It was the fifth private claim taken up, and has stood in the way of scores of claims back of it. Those Democrats who follow Mr. Holman in opposition to private bills are numerous enough to make this elaim an every Friday rock on which to split and go to pieces, and on account of a depleted House the wreck came earlier and easier than usual to-day.

The extreme heat of the last two or three days has sent many members of both Houses to mountain or seashore. Many others have gone, or are about to go, to Chicago, to swelter there for ten days. Business drags as it has not dragged previously during this dragging session, and it is evident that if the heat continues it, with the interruption of the convention, will carry the session a month or so beyond the dates predicted for final adjournment, which usually has been from the 1st to the 15th of August.

Heat Can't Knock Out Politics. But if legislation and Congressmen languish in the heat no temperature is hot enough to put a check on the speculation in regard to the outcome at Chicago. The Democrats entertain a genuine hope of success next November. With most of them it is a hope which amounts to an absolute conviction, and they have the encourage-ment of the private, agreeing expressions of many Republicans. Therefore the specula-tion and excitement are far more intense than if there were a grave doubt in their minds in regard to the November contest. If the men nominated are to be elected, they (I mean the best element of the Democrats here in Washington) want them to be the sort of men who will give a high-toned and clean administration, They don't want either the Hills or the Gormans to have a show. No one will suit them who has done any slumming in home politics, especially such as has been done in Baltimore by Gor-man and in New York by Hill.

I made a hurried tour of the Democratic side of the House to-day, after adjournment, catching as many as remained to be caught, and judging from the expressions briefly elicited I should say that 'Cleveland is the first choice of 19 of every 20 of the Democrats in Congress, and of the many employed about the House; and the employes probably come nearer to speaking the voice of "the people" than the Congressmen do.

Temmanvites the Only Kickers. Some of these are affected by local con siderations. A few are appointees through the influence of Tammany, and utter the conventional Tammany curse against Cleveland, but aside from this the almost unani-mous sentiment is for the ex-President, and, leaving party out of the question, I may say that the sentiment in all the District is more careful about removals except for cause than other Democrat would be. They liked him for that, and they liked him personally. While he made no scandal, he was no bigot. He had a world of charity for the mistakes of others, having made his own share of mistakes in other years. One of the things quoted as meanest about Harrison is that he thinks everybody is nade of his own frigid fiber, and that all should be able to hold themselves in hand with the ordinary check-rein and snaffle-bit which he has always found sufficient for his Business men and "people in society," would also welcome Cleveland back with open arms. How much was due to administration influences, or how much to a prosperous and easy feeling in business and capitalist circles, I cannot say, but there are two administrations, those of Arthur and of Cleveland, that are pointed out here as having been livelier in action and expenditure than any others of recent years.

Society and Business Combined. Social liveliness, not to say real recklessness, is a great boon to Washington "busi-ness" in hotels, restaurants and general merchandise shops, and to hear some of the flooding and ebbing waves of social expenditure which they attribute to subtle and almost occult or psychological personal in-fluence, suggests curious phenomena of Washington life which is yet an unknown field for the student of human affairs.

Arthur was a widowed man, handsome, marriageable, with the air of the club always about him, and he infused into his administration the palpitating atmosphere of club life. Cleveland came here a bach-elor, and soon wedded a young and beautitul wite, than whom there never was a more popular mistress of the White House. The sound of wedding bells rippled all through the term, and every arm of the administration seemed to catch the in-fection of youth, full blood, and a desire for social enjoyment to the fullest bounds of reason, and sometimes narrowly escaping a reckless lavishness that came near being bacchanalian.

I dare say that the Naval Secretary and Mrs. Whitney spent vastly more on their entertainments alone than has been spent by the entire society of high officials of this administration.

Clevelandism Craved Again. Such a pervasive spirit of liberality gave things "a go" that followed well the term of Arthur, and two such terms, succeeded by a careful, quiet, old-fashioned, thrifty administration like the current one, which has had the added quiet and gloom result-ing from numerous deaths in Cabinet families and has been overshadowed almost from the beginning by the terrible calamity to the household of Secretary Tracy, form extremely remarkable con-For these reasons a new Cleveland administration would probably be welcomed here as none other would, Democrat or Republican, by the business people and per-manent residents of this city. These are considerations, however, that have little weight with such practical politicians as make up the Demogratic officeholders in and out of Congress. Believing any Demoerat can win this year, as the majorities in the States are now constituted, they want the man who will be most certain to give a strong administration, one so satisfactory as to contribute to a new success four years

Though Cleveland was defeated after one term, and the logical conclusion is that he cannot do better again than he did from 1884 to 1888, and that a new swing of the pendulum would again bring around a Repub-lican, the fact remains that sentiment among Democratic politicians here is overwhelm-ingly in favor of trying the old ticket in so tar as the Presidental candidate is con-

The name most frequently linked with Cleveland's is that of ex-Congressman Morrison, now of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. Boies, of Iown, comes next, and would probably be first, were it not for the tact that Morrison was very popular in Congress, has been constantly at the Capital since he left his seat in Congress, and has consequently maintained all old friendships, while making a new and general ships, while making a new and general popularity in his present office. Probably no candidate in the country would be so popular for second place, and especially with the farmer element, as he has a national reputation, like Uncle Jerry Rusk, as a plain, homespun man of the rural

It is suggested by many that the question of the Vice Presidency, should Cleveland get first place, will turn upon whether Morrison would most surely carry Illingis or Boies most surely carry lows.

Strange to say the violent proclamation of Tammany against Cleveland seems to have no effect here. It is looked upon as a Tammany bluff, and the most sagacious Democrats seem to think it would strengthen Cleveland to have the Tammany time required to have the time required to have the time required to have the tiger against him from now until it will want all the fat offices after the election. LIGHTNER.

Trainload of Enthusiastic Democrats Arrive in Pittsburg-Grover Cleveland's Name and Face Emblazoned on Every Coach-Pittsburgers Join the Party-A Jolly Crowd Off for Chicago,

Representatives of Pennsylvania's De mocracy about 1,000 strong are this morning being whirled on a magnificent special train to the National Convention at Chieago. The great train, which, after it left Pittsburg, about 3 o'clock this morning, consisted of 14 Pullman palace cars, was probably the handsomest turnout that ever went to a national gathering of politicians. On either side of the 14 great coaches, painted in flaming letters on stiff material, was "Pennsylvania." The interior of each coach was profusely decorated with flags and bunting, and portraits of Cleveland, Pennsylvania's Presidental candidate, were scattered about in profusion. In addition to the 14 coaches dining car and express car, and all were literally burdened with supplies.

When the great train reached Pittsburg shortly after 2 o'clock this morning bearing the Eastern delegates and their friends the occupants had not yet retired, and many of them crowded into the depot to welcome their Pittsburg friends. When the Eastern and Western Democrats met they joined in one mighty shout for Cleveland, and the chorus of voices went up like a peal of thunder that fairly shook the great

If a Democrat is to be elected even the Republicans would rather have Cleveland than any one else. They believe he was United States Solicitor George A. Jenks, Congressman Mutchler and several others occupied a special car on the Columbia ex-press, which preceded the Pittsburg delega-tion by 15 minutes. The Guffey party claimed that they would vote for Mr. Cleveland at least on the first ballot. It was hinted last night, however, that the Guffey people will not remain with the Cleveland banner longer than they can help. banner longer than they can help. The Guffev people also claim that Mr. Harrity has greatly overestimated his strength with the Pennsylvania delegation.
