Mayor Gourley and Chief Bigelow Assert That the President Will

BE HERE ON THE FOURTH

More Rosey Leaded to Make the Affair a

Compiete Success.

Notwithstanding the telegram from Washington, printed a couple of days ago, the Mayor and Chief Bigelow positively declare that President Harrison will be in Pittsburg on the Fourth of July and that he will address the assembled multitude at Schenley Park Mr. Bigelow had a telegram, from which he seemed to draw the authority for his positive assertion, but he declined to show the message or to say from whence it came. He stated, however, that he had positive assurance and that THE DISPATCH would make no mistake in saying so.

In addition to the President, one or two other speakers of national reputation are invited and expected here with the Chief Executive. There will be no dearth of speeches. Congressmen Dalzell and Stone, of this district, have already accepted invitations to be present, and thus far, Superintendent Luckey, representing the Pittsburg schools, Louis McMullen, representing Allegheny's schools, and Rev. John Holliday, representing the colored population, are down for short speeches.

Will Read the Grand Declaration Prof. Sleeth, the High School elocu tionist, will open the exercises by reading the Declaration of Independence.

As only two weeks remain until the glorious Fourth the Mayor and Chief Bige low are rapidly proceeding with the arrangements for the great holiday. Yesterday they held a long conference in the Mayor's office, at which they awarded to Mayor's office, at which they awarded to Heyl & Jones, of this city, the contract forfurnishing the fireworks display. It will cost $4,000, nearly double the display of last year, and Mr. Heyl promises it will be the finest ever given in Pennsylvania. Some beautiful set pieces are to form part of the programme, much larger and more expensive than any given last year.

The sporting events in the afternoon will be particularly interesting. An order was given by the Mayor yesterday for 20 gold medals and 13 of silver for the winners in the various contests. The medals are to be handsomely designed and will cost, the Mayor says, $250, insuring the participation the best amateur talent in Western Pennsylvania.

All Contestants Must Be Amateurs. Prof. Kirchner, Chairman of the Athletic Committee, has issued printed blanks upon which all assiring contestants must file the applications, to certify that they are amateurs according to the laws of the National A. A. U. A first and second prize will be given in each event. The list of events to be contested for is as follows: One-hundred-yard tested for is as follows: One-hundred-yard dash, 110-yard hurdle race, hop, step and jump, 220-yard dash, running high kick, putting 16-pound shot, 440-yard dash, one-mile bicycle race, throwing 16-pound hammer, one-half-mile run, two-mile bicycle race, sack race, one-mile run, running broad jump, tug of war (625 pounds limit, four men), pole and vaulting, running high jump.

Prof. Geo. Fisher will have charge of an interesting series of children's sports for which prizes will be given, also, including wheelharrow, sack, foot and potato races, greased pig, greased pole and other events

Thus far only $4,000 has been contributed for the celebration, including $25 each contributed by the Mayor and
Robert Pitcairn yesterday. The Birmingham and Second Avenue Traction Companies are talking of adding $250 to the fund. Up to last night $2,000 more were needed to bear the expenses of the day, but the Mayor is so sanguine that the patriot-ism of the people will bring the money to the front during the present week that he and Chief Bigelow became responsible for the fireworks contract let yesterday.

Wants People to Think and Contribute. "If the people will only send in contribu-tions of $1 or $5 each, as bundreds of them easily could and would if they took the time to think of it, we would have more money than we need," said the Mayor yes-terday. "I look for a lot of small subscriptions this week. I hope the importance of this celebration will be appreciated and the people out of respect for the President, no less than of patriotic enthusiasm for the day less than of patriotic enthusiasm for the day itself, will see to it that there is money enough to pay the fiddler. We expect a tremendous crowd of people, larger than ever gathered at one place in Western Pennsylvania. Chief Bigelow is preparing for 250,000, but if it is a fine day I expect even more than that."

The preparations for fire works displays on the Fourth of July are going on locally with a vigor and upon a scale previously unknown. Besides the exhibition which is unknown. Besides the exhibition which is being arranged for Schenley Park, orders have recently been received by local dealers for displays at Oakland Square and at the Linden Club, East End. Nearly $1,000 will be spent by the Oakland Square Club for pyrotechnics, and the Cathedral Band will also be in attendance. As the square is directly opposite the park, visitors to Schenley will be compelled to divide their admiration. The Linden Club has also given a very extensive order, and its clubgiven a very extensive order, and its club-house and grounds will probably be the most attractive place in the East End on the night of the Fourth.

MR. JENKS' LOGIC.

He Proves to a Friend by Chinese Meth That He Is a Fine Penman,

The friends of ex-Solicitor General

George A. Jenks have a good deal of fun with him about his penmanship. His signature on a hotel register looks more like the zig-zag scratching of a hen than anything else. In his younger days Mr. Jenks was a fair penman, but his chirography now shows the extreme nervousness in his right hand, the one that he uses so effectively in convincing a Judge and jury that white is black. The old lawyer is very logical, and the other day he startled one of his friends by saying: "Do you know that I am the finest penman in the world?" "You look astonished," he continued, "but I can prove it to you."

After the other had partially recovered rom his surprise, Mr. Jenks proceeded: 'Do you grant that the Chinese are the oldest people who have learned to write?"
This proposition was readily assented to, and then the friend waited patiently for

The Pennsylvania Company was taken by surprise, but it was too late to help themselves. It requires three days' notice to the inter-State Commission before a reduction can be made and the time was too short.

TO BE BURIED AT BEAVER.

The Remains of Ex-Senator Rutan Wil Be Interred at His Old Home. The funeral of ex-Senator James S.

Rutan will take place to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock at the family residence, Sheffield and Frasier streets, Allegheny, and the body will be taken to Beaver on the Cleveland and Pittsburg express, which leaves this city at 2 o'clock. The interment is to be in the family burial lot at that place. The funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Dr. C. A. Holmes, of the Arch Street M. E. Church, and Rev. Dr. Izer, of Christ Church.

There were many callers at the residence yesterday. As soon as the Senator's death occurred word was sent to all his near rela-tives and some will arrive from quite a distance on Monday. Oliver Rutan, a brother, Treasurer of Carrollton county, O., arrived yesterday, and Mr. John Rutan, of Harrisburg, has been here for several days and is making the arrangements for the finneral. Meetings of members of the bar, both here and at Beaver, will be called to take action upon the Senator's death.

A TAXPAYER APPEALS

From a Large Increase in the Valuation Bis Land.

John W. Milligan yesterday filed an appeal from the triennial assessment made by the County Commissioners. His land and the estate of Mary Milligan, in Braddock township, was first assessed at $45,275. It was then increased to $228,000 and lastly reduced to $58,950 for 46 acres and $87,050 for 68 acres. The first assessment, it is claimed, was just and should have remained.

Inspector Whitehouse Resigns. Inspector Henry Whitehouse, of the Secnd police district, yesterday handed his who was a member of that erganization. discussing the tin plate scale.

Belief That There Will Be No General Strike in any Event.

Probably at no time during the present convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers was there such a quiet session as that of yesterday. Little if any new business was transacted In the morning a detailed report of the previous day's conference with the tin and black plate manufacturers was read to the lelegates assembled in Forbes Street Turner Hall. According to this report, after a discussion of nearly 11 hours no agreement had been reached, although everything pointed to a settlement of some kind being effected when the Wage Committee again met the manufacturers on Tuesday next.

Notwithstanding the statements to the ontrary, the tin and black plate manufacturers did not ask for any great redctinon of wages in the departments where no improved machinery had been introduced. They simply wanted an adjustment of the scale where improvements had been made.

Want to Reduce the Shearmen. This applied chiefly to the shearing room and the wages of the shearman was the principal point of discussion at the conference in the rooms of the Association of Iron and Steel Sheet Manufacturers on Friday. The manufacturers argued that they saw no reason in paying a shearman $4 57% per ton, with 15 per cent added for soft steel. They contended in paying this sum that a shearman was enabled to make from $18 to $20 every day, while he was not required to put forth any great effort or use any brain work in the discharge of his Coroner McDowell yesterday completed the inquest on the body of William Hughes, who was drowned on the "Millionaire Club's" excursion on the City of Pittsburg. A verdict of accidental death was rendered. Nearly all the people who had been on that excursion were subposned. There were about a dozen female representatives of the Millionaire Club present. Coroner King, of Beaver county, was also present.

Thomas Peyton, the Allegheny undertaker, who had brought Hughes to-day from Baden was the first witness. MASS MEETING AT HOMESTRAD TO-DAY

Enos Hill, who found the body, was the next, and George C. Hill, his father followed. Nothing of importance was brought out by either. John Goodwin, of 200 Market street, another excursionist, heard of the trouble after Hughes fell into the river, but saw no trouble before that.

William Goodman was on the boat. He had met Hughes half a dozen times. Witness saw a man throw a rope to Hughes. When the boat landed, "Buck" Cornelius acoused the witness of stealing his pin and the two men came to blows.

the two men came to blows.

Mrs. Mame King, of 42 Second avenue, said that Hughes and a man named Petit, came to her house the night before the excusion and wanted her to give him $15 on his diamond pin. A GROWING INDUSTRY.

Progress Made in a New Field of Manufacture That Is Rapidly Enlarging.

facture That Is Rapidly Enlarging.

One of the growing industries of Pittsburg, and one that promises eventually to give the city as much prestige as its fron and glass, is the manufacture of root beer. It is not generally known that more than one-half of this present household necessity is made here in the Iron City. Five years ago only nine gross were produced and sold, but the fluid root beer was such an improvement on the old herbs and extracts that the Galvin brand at once jumped into public favor, and orders poured in so rapidly from all sections that Mr. Galvin was forced to establish depots as follows: Buffalo, N. Y., at 15 South Division street; Chicago, 37 River street; Cleveland, 24 Hanover street, and Columbus, at 219 North Front street, The main office and laboratory are at 17 Wood street, Pittsburg, and in five years the trade that had commenced with nine gross for a year's work jumped to a business of over 3,000 gross, and a still growing demand. With the usual push, perseverance and pluck of the proverbial Pittsburg business man Mr. J. A. Galvin worked his business up to the front because his beer is known to be free from deleterious or dangerous essential oils and ether and is composed only of harmless extracts that any child might handle with safety. Many physicians, realizing that it was a healthful, cheap beverage for summer use, recommended it, and thus the demand for this really meritorious drink has grown until the establishment of Mr. Galvin at No. 17 Wood street is recognized as one of the leading industries of Pittsburg, where scores of young ladies are engaged in putting up the preparation for distribution to all points in the United States. Mr. Galvin employs his own force of painters on sign work, and does a great deal of advertising in this line as well as in other directions. He has secured space at the World's Fair, where he will have a laboratory in full operation, which will supply his Western trade.

Gaivin's Celebrated Root Beer is a prime favorite in the marker, and many of operation, which will supply his western trade.

Gaivin's Celebrated Root Beer is a prime favorite in the market, and many of the leading families in Pittsburg and other cities use it daily upon their tables, as they recognize it as the finest temporance drink known, especially during the summer season. This root beer is the pioneer beverage, and many attempts have been made to supplant it in the market, but these efforts always failed. It is made of pure roots and herbs, and the finest chemists in the country upon examination failed to find the least impurity in it.

The present indication from orders received thus far is that the orders for Galvin's Root Beer for the present year will exceed 6,000 gross, and it will keep a large glass house busy to supply the bottles alone, to say nothing of the employment given to others in the other departments. Mr. Galvin is to be congratulated on the rapid growth of his business.

RETURNED TO EARTH.

Solemn Scenes at the Burial of Rev. Father S. G. Mollinger.

THOUSANDS WERE IN ATTENDANCE.

Father Wall, the Vicar General, Conducted the Ceremony.

STILL NO TRACE OF THE MISSING WILL

Much has been said and written of the great love borne toward Father Mollinger, the priest physician, but words are utterly inadequate to describe the depth and intensity of that love, as was evidenced by the scene at the quaint little chapel on the summit of Mount Troy yesterday morning when the reverential ceremonies of burial

Father Mollinger, the healer of countless throngs, lay in the cold sleep of death and the vacancy was felt by all. Grief in its every phase permeated the incense-laden tmosphere and rested upon the bowed neads of each and every one, from the child with golden hair, whose sweet face was marred with traces of pain, to the aged cripple, whose days and hairs alike are numbered. The sacred silence within the vaulted church was broken only by the solemn chanting of the priests and the ocasional heart-breaking sobs from those whose sorrow was greater than they could

At 10 o'clock the organ sounded the hords of the funeral chants, and the long line of vested priests and surpliced altar boys and acholytes solemly filed into the church, while a great hush fell upon the vast congregation of mourners. Rev. Father Dauzelzer conducted the opening of the service of office, and was followed by the Requiem High Mass celebrated by Rev. Father Wall, assisted by the Rev. Fathers Caufman and Lengst. The Solemn March to the Grave, Eloquent and touching eulogies to the dead were presched in German and English by the Rev. Fathers Schwab and Busch reby the Rev. Fathers Schwab and Busch respectively. The absolution was pronounced in tones of swed reverence by Rev. Father Busch, and after a moment's silent prayer the congregation filed out as one grand procession led by two flag bearers, the one on the left being the American colors, heavily draped with mourning, and the one on the right the papal flag of yellow and gold similarly draped. Three hundred children from the parechial school, simply and from the parochial school, simply and attractively dressed and each wearing a bit of mourning, followed the flag bearers and preceded 200 members of the Most Holy Name Literary Society, Knights of St. George and two branches of the C. M. B. A. slowly followed the hearse bearing the beloved remains after the enormous body of foot mourners, and then the long line of carriages, which extended for several blocks in length. The Sisters of Meroy attended in a body, and were driven to the cemetery of the Most Holy Name in car-riages that followed the priests.

The services at the grave were of such impressiveness that the very air seemed to cease its murmuring. In one immense circle the vast body gathered about the yawning grave and listened with moistened yawning grave and listened with moistened eyes and quivering lips while the voice of Father Wall repeated the prayers of interment. Then a hush fell over the assembled multitude, there was the harsh, dry sound of hollow wood being struck with pieces of dirt, a slight slipping noise as the coffin was lowered and then, after the lid to the box had been placed, and the cruel clods rattled on the receptacle, an involuntary shudder swiftly passed over the forms of the swiftly passed over the forms of the mourners, and the sad work was over. The body had passed from view, but the memory and monuments of sanctity will live on.

"In case," said he, "the will is not discovered the property will pass into the hands of the relatives who are now in Holland. But I believe a will is in critical to the said of the relatives who are now in Holland. land. But I believe a will is in existence and will come to light within a short time."

THE COURT INFANTRY.

That Famous Body of Brave Soldiers to Hold a Reunion—How They Guarded a Strawberry Patch-Only Two of Them Were Injured.

The noble remnant of that famous body of oldiers known as the Court Infantry, of Pittsburg, will have its annual drill and parade at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning. This brave body of men, who battled for two days on the heights of Mt. Washington to protect a strawberry patch—for themselv will again meet and retell the stories of the dark days of strife and how they drove back the rebel horde of the South.

These sons of Mars and disciples of Coke and Blackstone will formin the Court House yard and will march through the principal streets of the city. The members are to wear their new uniforms and side arms, and with their new flagons and canteens it is expected they will present a magnificent martial appearance. partial appearance.

The history of the organization and its military achievements are found in the Legal Journal in the Law Library. The Court Infantry was organized in 1863 by Major General Brooks. Generals Jubal Early and Jackson were reported as coming West to take Pittsburg and destroy the cannon in the Allegheny arsenal. The court guard got its orders early one June morning and marched to Mt. Washington to the tune of "The Girl I Left Behind Me." The officers were Captain W. B. Negley, The officers were Captain W. B. Negley, Lieutenants, Samuel Cluley and Judge Mellon; Sergeants, James I Kuhn and R. Mellon; Sergeants, James I. Kuhn and R. B. Carnahan; Corporals, S. H. Geyer, John Mellon and D. W. Bell. Some members did not report and Captain Negley ordered Corporal Geyer to bring in the missing members. He marched to the District Court and took Judge Hampton from the bench and also captured some of the attorneys. The legal soldiers were stationed in Knox's strawberry farm, and all they had to do was to guard the berry farm and eat the fruit themselves. Several ate too many strawberries and were incapacitated many strawberries and were incapacitated for duty.

Only one man was placed in the guard-house. A pig pen was used for that purpose. The prisoner had a bottle, which the guard afterward became possessed of, with the result that the prisoner fled and the guard was found in the pea. The record advises that as the guard is now a leading member of the bar, he should be investigated. It is believed that when the rebels heard of the court guard, they at once turned back for fear of being compulsorily non-
