NO SIGNS OF MOURNING LEFT. Solemn Services Commemorative of the Blessed Sacrament.

MOST UNIQUE SCENES ON THE MOUNT

There was joy on Mount Troy yesterday despite the fact that the man upon whom nearly all its inhabitants looked with reverence and awe, the priest-physician, Father Mollinger, had been laid to rest only the day before. The habiliments of woe were thrown aside in order that bonor might be done to mightier than he, for it was the feast of Corpus Christi, or of the Blessed Sacrament.

There is no place in the United States where this feast is observed with more pomp and ceremony on each recurring year than upon Mount Troy, the old world ideas of its celebration, since Father Mollinger took charge of the parish of The Most Holy Name many years ago, having been brought and planted there. No matter what may happen there is always on this feast scenes which attract hundreds of people who are not Catholics, but who seem to evince almost as much interest in the ceremonies as the faithful themselves. While in all Catholic churches the day is observed with more than usual impressiveness, none preend to equal the ceremonies on the hill.

The Significance of the Festival. The Catholic Church holds that the proper time of the festival is Thursday, the eve of Good Friday, because on the night before His death Christ instituted the Eucharist, out as the sadness begotten by the commen oration of Christ's death is supposed to ab sorb every other seeling during Holy Week, so the first Thursday or Sunday after the Paschal season is chosen to celebrate with befitting solemnity the real presence of brist in the sucrament. Thus it is that in christ in the sacrament. Thus it is that in foreign countries and in Catholic cities on this continent there are always upon the feast of Corpus Christi a procession of priests carrying the sacrament, the way being strewn with flowers.

Without doubt any person who had visted Troy hill yesterday morning would have thought himself in some Catholic country, for the reason that it is seldom, or in fact not at all, such scenes are witnessed try, for the reason that it is seldom, or in in fact not at all, such scenes are witnessed within any other part of the United States, except upon this loity and beautiful mount. Few indeed were the houses which did not show in some way that a feast in the truest sense of the word was being held. The only stans left to show that but the day before there had been mourning on the Mount, were the bands of crape which swung from the front of St. Anthony's Chapel. Such emblems had been removed from all the halls and buildings belonging to the church Saturday evening and from the private houses. They were replaced by garlands of green, which were strung across several of the streets. On the street in which the chupel is situated were strung two large American flags a small Papal flag being suspended alongside one of them.

Groves Spring Up as if by Magic.

But the unique feature was the transfor eets. As everyone knows who has vis with shade trees, and that is one of the top. Testering, nowever, there appeared, as if by magic, another row of trees on many of the streets. They were not exactly full-fleaged trees, but a stranger could hardly tell the difference, for they were large limbs and they had been planted in the street just outside the gutters. Where branches of trees were not available those who possessed plants limed their sidewalks with ces were not available those who possessed outed plants lined their sidewalks with them. The plants which have for so long at beauty to the area in front of the late sidence of Father Mollinger were placed pon the sidewalk in front of the pastoral scidence and St. Anthony's Chapel. The flect was somewhat tropical and was enhanting in the extreme. It was not until o'clock on Saturday evening that the work decorating was begun, and before midgist it was completed.

The early masses at the church yesterday morning were largely attended, as hundreds knew that it would be impossible for all the members of the immense congregation to attend the principal service later in the day. It was 10 o'clock when the parade be gan to form on Hazel street in front of the parochial residence. The procession was in this order, the whole being led by a man carrying the American flag: The Procession of the Sacrament.

Three acolytes, one carrying a large crucifix while on either side were the other two with lighte

Father Daugeirer, carrying the sacrament followed by the other clergy.

Chotr of the church,

Mothers and young women.

As the procession moved the choir chanted the responses to the priests, and the scene was solemn in the extreme. Along the line of march to the church had been erected four altars, at each of which there was the exposition of the sacrament, the benediction being pronounced over hundreds of people as they knext by Father Dangelzer. Then the procession was continued to the church, which had already been filled with worshipers. The altars were a blaze of light, and with the banks of flowers presented a most entrancing sight. So soon as those for whom seats were reserved had taken their places solemn high mass was at once begun. The celebrant was Rev. Father Dangelzer; Dencon, Rev. Father Myers: Subdeacon, Rev. Henry McDermott, and Master of Ceremonies, Rev. Father Waendling.

A Tribute to Father Mollinger. As the procession moved the choir chanted

A Tribute to Father Mollinger. The sermon was delivered by the late Father Mollinger's assistant, Rev. Father Myers. He prefaced his remarks upon the meaning of the festival of Corpus Christi by meaning of the festival of Corpus Christi by telling the congregation how glad he was that the members of the congregation so grandly testified the love they bore their late pastor as shown by the magner in which they had honored his memory. He asked that during the Month's Mind, the 30 days following the death of their pastor, they should pray for the repose of his soul. This was the lass service held in the church for the day, as the clergy were so worn out that vespers was omitted. that vespers was omitted.
When the storm broke over Mount Troy is the afternoon, those who had put out decorations hastily got them under shelter orations hastily got them under shelter, and those who neglected to do so suffered considerable loss, for the fierce wind whirled the rain through the hilltop streets with great velocity. The newly planted tree branches were strewn in all directions, and it looked as if a veritable cyclone had struck the place. Notwithstanding the weather many people visited St. Anthony's Chapel, and those who had never seen the interior were admitted. Beyond the many hundreds of relies which does which their attention were the robes in their attention were the robes in h Father Mollinger had said his last which rather Mollinger had said his last mass, which were lying upon a side table. Sunday next will be another gala day on the Mount, for then 50 children will make their first communion. Each society has delegated six of its members to go with the priests and choir, and escort the children from the schoolhouse to the church.

BREAKING AWAY FROM HILL.

nator Said to Be Losing G Rapidly in His Own State. T. D. Mitchell, a contractor from Well ville, N. Y., is registered at the Central. He is drilling wells in the Mt. Morris oil field. His home is not far from Elmira, where Senator Hill lives. Mr. Mitchell thinks that Hill has Hill lives. Mr. Mitchell thinks that Hill has overreached himself, and that he is losing ground rapidly in New York. He cited the case of Senator Walker of Corning, who was counted in by the Hill people in the last element. Walker is now a delegate in Chicago, and he is making strong speeches in favor of Cleveland and against Hill. Other alleged friends of the Senator are breaking away from him, and his ranks are being decimated. Hill wanted Croker, the Tammany chieftain, to no to Chicago and say that Cleveland couldn't carry New York, but the Sachem refused. Mr. Mitchell is a Republican, but he thinks Grover can win out in the Empire State.
