The President Is Apprised of His Nomination by a Committee.

WHOSE SPOKESMAN IS M'KINLEY.

Felicitous Remarks Accompany the Tender and its Acceptance.

DALECLL SPEAKS IN GOTHAM TO-NIGHT

WASHINGTON, June 20.-Governor Mc-Kinley, of Ohio, Chairman of the committee to notify the President of his renomination, arrived in this city this morning. The Governor proceeded at once to the Red Parlor of the Ebbett House, where the other members of the committee had assembled to await his arrival. He was warmly greeted as he entered the room, and after shaking hands with many of his friends be called the committee to order.

The Governor said that, if the committee desired it, he would read to them the address which he would deliver to the President. The address was brief and was received with enthusiastic applause. Governor McKinley called to the Chair Colonel Elliott F. Shepard, who invited the members of the committee to be his guests at a dinner to be given by him in their bonor to-morrow evening at the Manhattan Athletic Club, New York. This invitation was to be present at a mass meeting to be held of slavery, says Pearson's Workly. at Carnegie Music Hall to-morrow evening. At this meeting addresses will be made by Burrows, of Michigan, and Dalzell, of Pennsylvania.

The Notification Committee Received. At about 1 o'cleck the committee proceeded to the Executive Mansion. There were about 200 guests assembled in the simple yet beautifully decorated East Room of the White House, when at 1 o'clock the Notification Committee entered and ranged themselves in a semi-circle, Governor Mc-Kinley being the keystone of the arch. A few moments later the President, leaning on the arm of Secretary Foster, and fol-lowed by the other members of his Cabinet, cutered, and, without any preliminaries Governor McKinley made his brief speech, officially notifying the President of his renomination. He spoke as follows:

PRESIDENT HARRISON - This committee, PRESIDENT Hamisson — This committee, representing every State and Territory in the Union, are here to perform the trust committed to them by the Republican National Convention, which convened at Minneapolis on June 7, 1892, of bringing you official notification of your nomination as the Republican candidate for President of the United States.

We need hardly assure you of the pleasure it rives us to convey this message from the Republicans of the country to this chosen leader. Your nomination was but the registering by the convention of the will

In conclusion, we desire to extend to you our personal congratulations and to express our gratification at the rare honor paid you by a renomination, with a firm faith that the destinies of this great people will be confided to your care and keeping for another four years.

The address was delivered slowly, and at the beginning in such a low tone that it was bardly audible; but the Governor's voice strengthened as he proceeded. He was warmly applauded at its close. The Presint, in accepting the renomination, said: President Harrison's Medes' Response. Governor McKinley and Gentlemen of the Com-

When, four years ago, on the anniversary of the Declaration of our National Independence, a committee designated by the Republi can National Convention heid in Chicago came to my home in Indianapolis to notify me of my homination for the Presidency, it is sense of gratitude, great as it was, was forced into the far background by an overendership in a civil contest that involved so leadership in a civil contest that involved so much to my country and to my feilow citizens. I could not hope that much would be lound when the record of a quiet fife had been brought under the strong light of public criticism, to enthuse my party followers, or upon which an assurance of adequacy for the highest civil affairs might be rested. No one so machas I realized that the strength of the campaign must be found in Republican principles, and my hone was that nothing in life or word o mine might weaken the appeal of our American policies to the American heart. That appeal does not sfail, A Republican President and Vice President and a Republican Congress were chosen. a Beamblican Congress were chosen.

The record has been made, and we are now to submit it to the judgment of a patriotic people. Of my own relation to the ninistration, which must be the basis

I cratefully accept, sir, the assurance given by the Republican State conventions and by the National Convention, through you, that no charge of inadequacy or delinquency to principle has been lodged against the administration. The mithful and highly successful work done by the able heads of the executive departments and by our representatives abroad I desire most cordially to acknowledge and commend.

The general re-sults of three years of Republican control have. I believe, been highly beneficially to all classes of our people. The home market for farm products has been retained and en-larged by the establishment of great man-urecturing industries, while new markets abroad of large and increasing value, long obstinately closed to us, have been opened on favorable terms to our meats and bread-stuffs, by the removal of unjust discriminating restrictions and by numerous reciprocal trade agreements under section three of the McKinley bill. These acts of administration and legislation can now, fortunately, be judged by their truits. In 1800 it was a conflict of predictions; now our adversaries must face trade statistics and prices current.

But it is not appropriate that I should at this time discuss these public questions. I hope, before long to be able by letter to convey to you a more formal acceptance of the nomination which the National Republican Convention has tendered me, and to give briefly my reasons for adhering to the declaration of principles adopted by the convention and which you have so admirably summarized.

Will you accept, sir, for yourself and your associates upon the committee and for the whole body of the great convention, whose delegates you are, my profound thanks for this great honor; and will you, sir, allow me to express my most sincere appreciation of the gracious and cordial terms in which you have conveyed this message.

At its close the members of the committee pressed forward and congratulated him on his renomination. He shook hands cordially with each member of the committee, and when all had been received invited them to luncheon. The party proceeded to the State dining room, the President leading with Governor McKinley. Other invited guests to a considerable number followed.

FOR TREASURY NOTES.

Act of 1872 Be Extended. THE DEPARTMENT HAD DONE SO,

Until the Attorney General Said That a Special Law Was Needed.

NEWS FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, June 20. - Secretary Foster has sent the following letter to the Senate, recommending that the provisions of the act of June 8, 1872, be extended to the Treasury notes authorized by the act of

Under the act approved July 14, 1893, there have been issued in payment for silver bul-lion purchased as shown by the statement published June 1, 1892, treasury notes in the amount of $97,391,986. It has been the policy of this department to encourage the general distribution of these Treasury notes by issuing them in the smaller denominations, so far as possible. In pursuance of this policy, and in order that there might be no ground for discriminating against them, my prede-cessor directed that the outstanding Treasary notes be treated in all respects the same as the United States notes.

Among the provisions of law affecting the latter is that contained in the act of June 8, 1872, which authorized their receipt on de-posit without interest from National Bank-ing Associations, in sums of not less than $10,000, and the issue, therefore of certifi-cates of deposits in denominations of not less than $5,000. The Act of June 8, 1872, Extended.

Soon after the issue of the Treasury notes began, it was found that their distribution in small denominations would be facilitated by extending to them the provisions of the act of June 8, 1872. This was, accordingly, done after consultation with the proper officers of the department, who were of the opinion that such action was not in conflict with any statuts.

In view of the fact, however, that the act of July 18, 1890, did not specifically provide for the receipt of the Treasury notes in this manner. I deemed it advisable, when my attention was called to the matter, to consult the Attorney General on the subject, and that officer, under cate of February 15, 1832, informed me that, in his opinion, such Treasury notes are not so receivable. As this opinion was at variance with that under which the department had acted, it was thought advisable, after careful consideration, to discontinue the receipt of Treasury notes as special deposits, and refer the subject to Congress for such action as it may deem proper. done after consultation with the proper eem proper. No Treasury Notes as Special Deposits. At this time there are no Treasury notes of 1800 in the Department held as special de-posits. This condition is the result of steps which were taken as soon as the conclusion. which were taken as soon as the conclusion above indicated was reached. As the cropmoving period is near at hand, it is thought that the continued issue of the smaller denominations of these notes will, for the present, be acceptable and will not be immediately checked by the discontinuance of their receipt as special deposits; but as soon as the return flow of money to the business centers is established, the addition of new currency in small de-centers is established, the addition of new currency in small denominations without privilege of special deposits hereto ore allowed will prove embarrassing alike to the public and the department, and in my opinion will eventually result in an increase in the proportion of notes of large denomination.

Entertaining this view, and being desirous of furnishing to the people for their everyday use an adequate supply of such denominations of money as they may demand, I do not hesitate to recommend that the provisions of the act of June 8, 1872, be extended by appropriate legislation to the Treesury notes authorized by the act of July 14, 1890. It is proper to suggest that "the practical effect" of these arrangements cannot be measured by the commerce of a month or a year for the result must depend not alone upon the character of the concessions secured by diplomatic negotiations, but by the degree to which they are utilized by private commercial enterprise. Before the full result of the reciprocity arrangements can be realized we must provide the means of transacting our own business, independent of the ships and banks and capital of our commercial rivals.

That the advantages are recognized and appreciated is already apparent by the interest that has been awakened among the industrial and commercial communities of this country. Although it is useless to conjecture the results that, have or pay come from the advantages afforded by the reciprocity negotiations, it is gratifying to note that there has already been a considerable increase in our exports, and that there is good reason to expect that it will continue and be permanent. It is equally noticeable, too, that the exports from Great Britain to the Latin-American countries are falling off with even greater rapidity; so much so as to excite the apprehension of her commercial organizations and impel them to seek some means of protection from the Government.

The enactment of the reciprocity section of the tariff act of 1899, in connection with the meat inspection act, conferred upon the executive the power through negotiation to very promptly secure the repeal of the prohibition upon American pork, which, for 19 years, had practically excluded that important product from most of the continental countries of Enrope. But, it not only brought about this result; it likewise enabled the Executive to negotiate a reciprocity arrangement, first with Germany and afterward with Anstria, by which, in return for the admission into the United States of sugar we obtain in return the admission into those countries at reduced duties of a large list of American agricultural and other products. Negotiations upon the lines of section 3 of the tariff act have been in progress in the City of Mexico etween the United States Minister and a special commissioner of the Mexican Government, but so far no satisfactory esult has been obtained.

Shortly after noon the exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. Cochran, of the Presbyterian Church of Coraopolis, followed with singing by the choir of the same church of the hymn "Some Sweet Mr. Cochran then made a short ad dress. After the sermon the choir sang "Rise Up and Hasten," both hymns being favorites of the two eldest Pittock children. When the services had been concluded the bodies of the dead Pittock children were carried to a flatboat at the very spot where they had been drowned, and it was towed they had been drowned, and it was towed across the river to Dixmont station, the parents following in skiffs. A special car received the funeral party and at Federal street, Allegheny, stood four white hearses in which the caskets were placed. Fifteen hundred persons gathered at the depot to receive the train. The funeral cortege then wended its way to Uniondale Cemetery, where after a short service by Rev. Dr. Verner, the four little bodies were lowered into the grayes. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pittoc's the graves. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pittock had sufficiently recovered to attend the funeral.

The body of Edna Richardson was carried to the little cemetery on Neville Island from the Pittock residence, being borne by four uncles of the dead girl. The services at this lonely grave were conducted by Rev. Dr. Cochran. Mrs. Richardson is still con-fined to her bed and was unable to attend

Against Opening Forbes Street,

The heirs of the late David Steen yester day filed exceptions to the report of the Board of Viewers on the opening of Forbes street through to Diamond street. They state that the opening of the street will take a piece of property, leased by them from the Schenley estate. The lease runs to 1896. They assert they are damaged $4,500, but the viewers allowed them nothing.

The Coroner Beats the Record. Coroner McDowell broke the record of Allegheny county in the number of inquests held on one day, the total being 22. The number of sudden deaths during the past few days has been exceptionally large, and of these the children drowned at Neville Island counted five. Fourteen of the inquests were held by himself per-sonally, and in the other cases were held by
