Brokers' Opinions

Watson & Gibson to Oakley & Co.: "With the silver bill settled, the English elections out of the way, gold shipments largely reduced and but few more in pros-pect, labor troubles in hand and crops largely reduced and but few more in pros-pect, labor troubles in hand and crops promising, there is a growing conviction and sentiment that the stock market will be better. We believe 'it, and advise our clients to buy good stock. There is money to be made in judicious purchases now. We see some financial prophets say no rise can be looked for in the holiday season or in the dog days, but it is just ex-exactly then that some of the biggest booms of the past have begun-early birds, foresee-ing what was coming, getting in betimes. We think it will commence this month, and we advise intending purchasers to buy at once, especially those who are prepared to pay for and hold their securities for the next two or three months. In the course of that time we expect to see the prices of that time we expect to see the prices of American railroad stocks at a much higher level all around,"

From Sproul & Co.'s market letter: "The advance in the price of coal caused some scattered buying of Reading stocks and bonds. Drexel & Co. bought the third preference bonds in Philadelphis and their buying induced speculation in both cities. All the Reading securities seem slowly working to a higher plane. It is probable that for the balance of the year on the Coal and Iron Company will show very beavy pet increases. The last half of the year is when most of the business is done, and this year it will be done at much higer figures."
