

QUAY RAISES A ROW.

The Senator's Fight for Sunday Closing of the World's Fair

Turns out to be a stiff one.

More Democrats than Republicans are opposed to closing.

The prospects of the amendment

From a staff correspondent.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The debate on the amendment of Senator Quay to the proposed appropriation of $5,000,000 for the World's Fair, providing that no part of the appropriation shall be available unless the Fair be closed on Sunday, has assumed proportions which were not anticipated by anybody.

On both sides the speeches have been remarkably earnest. If there be any partisanship in the matter it may be said, though there are exceptions on both sides, that the Republicans favor closing and the Democrats oppose it.

Demagogy of Different Kinds. When a similar amendment was before the House, a few weeks ago, the struggle over it was prolonged and bitter. Many of the speeches were plainly the ranting of demagogues.

One of the most forcible and practical arguments of the amendment was that it would give opportunities to tens of thousands to see the Fair, who would not otherwise see it without a loss of work and wages, which would be a serious consideration to them, but that it would keep the crowd in the city at the exhibition instead of driving them into the saloons, concert gardens, pool rooms, race tracks, theaters and baseball games.

This is an argument which the supporters of the amendment cannot answer, except with the general and lofty assumption that this is a Christian nation, that the Lord's Day is one of its institutions, and that Congress, in providing for its observance, does not assume responsibility for the conduct of the people who, on that day, will seek other forms of amusement if they cannot pass the day at church.

A Saloonkeeper Favors Closing. In connection with this phase of the matter ex-Congressman Lawler, who dropped down upon the Capital last evening, tells me of a prominent saloonkeeper who wrote to the management of the entire sympathy with the clergymen and others who urge Sunday closing, as it would not only set a high moral example for the whole country, but would send hundreds of thousands of dollars to the saloon to spend the money for liquor, while otherwise they would violate Sunday by passing their time in the exhibition.

Senator Quay said this afternoon that he had no idea his amendment would raise such a storm as it had. He had been in favor of Sunday closing from the first.

THE SILVER FIGHT ON.

The Preliminary Skirmish Looked for Today—Harrison Anxious that No Bill Be Sent to Him—If He Should Vote One It Would Help Him in New York.

From a staff correspondent.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The final fight over the silver bill will begin tomorrow in the House, and nobody can predict the result until a direct vote on the bill is reached, or until the aggressive opposition succeed in worrying the measure to death with obstruction.

Undoubtedly the amendment to prevent the demonetization of the silver certificates, which it is feared would result in the passage of the Stewart bill as it stands, will strengthen the bill in the House, but even if that added strength results in the passage of the bill, the fact that the amendment will send the bill back to the Senate to run the gamut of a new discussion and opposition, greatly weakens the prospect for the enactment of the measure into a law, admitting as a finality the possibility of the attachment of the President's signature.

Extended Obstruction Improbable.

It is not thought that the opposition will be able to interpose an extended obstruction. Only a few dilatory motions are possible under the circumstances, and it is not probable that there will be any extended debate. Should the measure be successful in the House, and go to the Senate for the adoption of the amendment, it is a question how far "Senatorial courtesy" will be permitted to obstruct a final vote in that body.

Unless Senator Stewart or Senator Morgan has the nerve to demand and insist upon the previous question, the opponents of the bill must talk it to death, or displace it with other measures until the necessity for final adjournment gives it a death blow.

Republican opponents of the bill do not desire that it shall reach the President. Mr. Harrison has notified his friends in the Senate and House that he is not anxious to be compelled to pass judgment on a free coinage bill.

A Way to Help Harrison.

While the Republicans of the House may not assist the Democratic opponents of the bill in any scheme of obstruction, they will, except the few free coinage men among them, vote solidly against the bill on its final passage, if it reaches that stage. In the Senate the Republicans, with a similar exception, will use every means to prevent the bill from reaching the President if it comes back to them for agreement to the amendment.

Some of the more conservative free coinage men say they do not care particularly whether the bill passes or not. The chief object is to get themselves properly recorded for effect on this point.

They believe the President will veto it should it reach him, and that this would greatly strengthen him in New York. Therefore, if they can but impress upon their constituents their own loyalty to free coinage, they will be satisfied, even if the bill fails in the House.

SHE LEAPED TO DEATH.

An Allegheny Woman Jumps From a Window Thirty Feet to the Ground.

In a fit of dementia Martha DeCoursey, of No. 11 West Diamond, Allegheny, committed suicide by jumping from a second-story window yesterday morning about 11 o'clock. The woman had been in a low mental condition for more than a week, and imagined that some one was pursuing her to take her life.

She hoisted the window and glanced up and down the alley. As she balanced herself upon the window sill, some one on the other side of the alley yelled to her, telling her not to jump, but, paying no attention to the call, she made a wild plunge toward the ground, a distance of 30 feet, and struck the cobblestones below, where she lay dying when Dr. Pitarini, of Arch street, arrived. He called an ambulance and had her removed to the Allegheny Hospital, where she died in a few minutes after arrival. She was never conscious after she struck the cobblestones. In falling she alighted on her back and was badly bruised and injured internally, though no bones were broken.

The deceased was 40 years old and has been well known in police circles during the last year. When only 15 years old she was married to a man named DeCoursey, who enlisted as a Union soldier in the Civil War and was never heard of again. The coroner was notified.

Charged With Stealing Money.

Lulu Adams, a young girl residing at Hilltop and Craig streets, Allegheny, was arrested yesterday on a warrant sworn out before Alderman Gripp by Mary Bergen, a neighbor, charging her with the larceny of $33. The two girls were friendly and often visited each other. It was during one of these visits that Miss Bergen left the room, in which the money was kept in a bureau drawer. She alleges that Lulu knew the money was there and took it. The defendant gave bail for a hearing this afternoon.

To the Public.

I have no hesitation in recommending Chamberlain's Cough, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy to the public, as I do to my friends and patients. I used it myself after my well-known remedies had failed, and it cured me in a few minutes. I recommend it candidly and cheerfully upon its merits, not from a financial standpoint, because I have others in stock on which I make a larger profit, but because Chamberlain's is the best remedy I know of for bowel complaints. There is no doubt about it, it does the work.
