FIGHT FOR THE FAIR.

The House Becomes the Scene of the Debate for Assistance.

NEW YORK NOT AT ALL JEALOUS,

Put Her Representatives Think Chicago

NEARLY A ROW BETWEEN SENATORS

Should Foot the Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 16 .- The World's Fair appropriation was the subject of debate in the House to-day, but, as usual, when it is known that no final vote will be reached, the speakers were not complimented by a large attendance. At no time during the day were more than 100 members present, and the galleries could not muster that number of spectators. The press gallery was deserted, and the press gallery is the thermometer of the House. When business is brisk the press gallery is crowded. When it is dull, the "printers," as Mr. Culberson, of Texas, terms them, are absent. They were absent to-day.

After routine business the House went into committee of the whole, Mr. Lester, of Georgia, in the chair, on the Senate amendments to the sundry civil appropria

Mr. Taylor, of Illinois, offered an amendment which he said he would hereafter call up, providing that if the World's Fair be kept open on Sunday no machinery shall be run nor any labor not absolutely necessary performed, and that a hall shall be provided for the conduct of religious services by ministers of all denominations. Chiengu's Claims for Assistance,

Mr. Hopkins, of Illinois, earnestly urged the adoption of the Senate amendment making an appropriation of $5,000,000. No pledge, he said, by the city of Chicago had been unfulfilled. The House should follow the lead of the Senate, and say to the low the lead of the Senate, and say to the people of Chicago that they had done nobly, and that Congress would patriotically and ungrudgingly aid them in making this the grandest Exposition ever held.

Mr. Livingston, of Georgia, denied that the proposed appropriation was a question of patriotism. By a private contract the liability of Congress was limited to $1,500,-000 for the Government exhibits, and there was no precedent for the Government going into partnership with a private enter-

Mr. Henderson, of Iowa, said that the House was called to face a question which touched its reputation and that of the American people and their great Government. There was but one question involved in this debate—the honor of the American Republic. He did not care whether the $5,000,000 was a loan or a gift. The only question was: "Shall we make a success of the great Exposition to be given under the For modes of faith let graceless zealots fight; He can't be wrong whose life is in the right. Not a Party Question at All,

For the particular form in which the appropriation was made he cared not. This was not a party question, and he was proud of his country that he was able to say that. A decided majority of both parties was in favor of the Exposition. Let members band together, with hearts instigated only by patriotism, to consider what was their duty on this occasion. If the Exposition was a success every untion would honor the flag a common interest, and he prayed that Congress would lift it outside of the narrow channels of partisan debate.

Mr. Covert, of New York, referring to a remark made by Mr. Hopkins, of Illinois, that New York was jealous of Chicago, entered an emphatic denial to the statement. He pointed in turtherance of his denial to the action of the New York Representatives in the last Congress, and to the course which that city had pursued since the location of the fair had been selected. Imperial New York did not municipality on this continent. But New York stood to-day jealous of this—a faith-tul performance of a sacred compact, sacrediy and solemnly entered into. New York had no word except that of kindness toward Chicago, but on behalf of New York he said now that Chicago, having assumed the obligation of making the Fair n success, and of doing all necessary in the way of financial aid, the compact should be adhered to and the contract should be kept. [Applause].

Speculation Frowned Upon. If it were true, continued Mr. Covert, that the Government agents in charge of the Exposition had gone far beyond their authority, it would be a dishonor to bolster up what they had done in violation of law. The time had come to put a stamp of disapproval to these attempts at speculation. The next thing would be that Congress would send a committee to Wall street to take part in the speculation there. He failed to see how the honor of the Government was assailed when it refused to become a partner in a stock speculation. The func tion of government was to give exact justice to all and special privileges to none. [Applause.] Mr. Atkinson, of Pennsylvania, offered an amendment prohibiting the sale of intoxi-cants on fair the grounds, except for medical, mechanical and scientific purposes, and he spoke in favor of the adoption of his propo-

Mr. Dolliver, of Iowa, favoring the appropriation, welcomed the opportunity to do what should be done to make the fair a great national success, and to give the man-agement the encouragement which it required.

Mr. Chipman, of Michigan, opposed the Senate proposition to close the fair on Sunday and Mr. Atkinson's amendment to prevent the sale of liquor on the grounds.

After further debate the committee rose and the House adjourned.

Saturday Work of the Senate. The last of the appropriation bills—that to supply the deficiencies for the fiscal year ended June 20, 1892—occupied about one-half of to-day's session of the Senate. All the amendments reported by the Committee on Appropriations were acted upon, and the bill was then opened to general amend-ments. Only a few such, however, were of-fered up to the hour when, by general con-sent, the bill went over till Monday.

Among the committee amendments was one requiring the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to the Pacific Railroad Companies the sums that he should find due to them for Government transportation. The amount carned on the aided lines is to be paid into the Treasury on account of the indebtedness of the companies, and the amount earned on the unnided lines is to be paid to the companies. No objection was made to the amendment, and it was agreed to without question.

An amendment was agreed to appropriating nearly a half million dollars to pay judgments of the court of claims in Indian depredation cases. The only other important amendment of-fered was a provision for payment of the judgments in the French spoliation claims. These items aggregated about $1,000,000 and were spread over 40 pages of the bill, but action was deferred till Monday on had been referred to the Committee on Claims, which committee had not yet re-ported. All the items for the claims of the psurance company were struck out. Just before the adjournment there was, in relation to a District street railway bill. a display of angry teeling between Senators Harris and Sanders. The threatened storm, however, passed over without any serious

After a short executive session the Senate adjourned.

LIGHTNING MADE A TOY OF HIM. It Plays Queer Pranks With a Johnstow

Man With Fatal Effect. JOHNSTOWN, July 16-[Special.]-Light-ning played a queer freak at the bouse of John Bloom last night. It ran down the flue into the house and struck Mr. Bloom on the head, passing through his body to the floor. The sight of one eye was de-stroyed, his hair and mustache burned, and a mark down the side of his body to his knees shows where the bolt left his body. Above the knee a hole was burned in the flesh

His wife and child were in bed, and His wife and child were in bed, and when the bolt struck the father, the child began to ery, which awoke the mother, who was horrified to find her husband unconscious. He recovered in about an hour, and to-day he is able to move about, although quite stiff and sore. No trace of the lightning could be found after leaving his body.

MRS. BRECKENRIDGE'S DEATH.

The Distinguished Kentucky Statesman Loses His Devoted Wife,

WASHINGTON, July 16 .- Representative W. C. P. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, has the profound sympathy of all of his colleagues in both Houses in his bereavement through the death of his wife last night. She was a lovely and brilliant woman of many attainments and was her husband's best friend and most trusted adviser. She was his alter ego in business and political affairs as in every other respect. Her loss will prove irreparable to her husband and family. They left with the remains for their home at Lexington, Ky., at noon to-

Investigation of the Sugar Trust. WASHINGTON, July 16 .- Representative A. C. Hopkins to-day introduced a resolution in the House asking the Attorney General what steps, if any, have been taken to indict and punish the members of the American Sugar Refiners' Company, or sugar trust, and the Wholesale Grocers' Associa-tion of Pennsylvania and New Jersey, recently organized as an adjunct of the trust, "and thereby," says the resolution, "forming an illegal combination to raise, control and arbitrarily regulate the price of an arti-

The Lizards are Not Poisonous Most people are very much afraid of lizards, but the fear is entirely without reason, for there are no poisonous lizards in Missouri, nor in its latitude, nor are there more than one or two species of this venomous reptile known in the world. The objection to the lizard arises from its resemblance to the snake, which is so close as to cause an involuntary dislike, but the lizards of this country are timid and en-tirely inoffensive, and are even in some degree beneficial, for the most of their living consists of insects which are either mischie yous or troublesome.

IN A BLAZING WELL

PRESENCE OF MIND SAVED HIM.

A RESULT OF A GASOLINE IXPLOSION

PHILADELPHIA, July 16 .- William Ryan, a young man, is in the Episcopal Hospital so badly injured through a gasoline explosion that his life is despaired of. Even if he does recover the doctors say he will be disfigured for life. Ryan is employed at the Fourth and Eighth street car stables, at Eighth and Dauphin streets. Yesterday he was ordered to clean a well in the rear of the stables. The well is 45 feet deep, and there are at least ten feet of water at the bottom. He was lowered by other work-men, and carried with him a gasoline lamp. The latter came in contact with a plank just over the water and was broken, the oil covering the water. He at once signaled to those above to hoist, and in a few moments and for an instant the men lost their pres-ence of mind. Quickly realizing, however, that Ryan was either killed or in grave danger, they tugged with superhuman en-ergy at the rope and finally brought him up, a sight superhuman end the man leve of the superhuman enwere all gone, and the man lay quivering in able to tell his story. He said he did not think of the danger of taking down a lighted lamp on his second trip, but when the ex-plosion came he knew his only chance for life was in diving into the water. The sur-tace was a mass of blazing oil, but he yelled

Expensiveness of Handbooks,
