Complaints Made Against the Express Companies That They

CHARGE FOR DELIVERING GOODS.

Drawing Dead Lines Around the City's Business Center.

ONE EFFECT OF CLOSE COMPETITION

Complaints are made by the East End people of having to pay extra charges on express packages. The companies draw certain lines through the city, and beyond these boundaries they do not deliver free. The business is turned over to a local ex-press company, that charges from 10 cents to $1, or more, according to the number and in of the number and the 'Frisco on Wednesday, with full size of the packages and the distance to be

The claim is made by many patrons that when an express company takes a package it contracts to deliver it at the exact place of destination; that Pittsburg is Pittsburg whether it be the West End, Southside or the extreme East End, and that the companies have no right to draw lines beyond which they will not deliver goods. This argument was promptly knocked on the head, from the expressmen's standpoint, by the Adams people, who said that the free delivery is only made for accommodation, and that the companies when they take packages agree to carry them from office to office. The name with the number of the house and street is put on so that the companies can notify the consignee by mail that certain goods have arrived and he can call and receive them. They stated that the courts had frequently rendered decisions to this effect. In other words, the free delivery system is the result of competition.

And One Was Frozen Out.

There are three express companies in Pittsburg, the Adams, United States and American. The Wells-Fargo was trozen out last April when the B. & O. road took possession of the Pittsburg and Western. For Pittsburg proper the lines of free delivery are to Thirty-third street on the Southside, the market house out Fifth Southside, the market house out Fifth avenue and Butler street in the Lawrence-ville district. Up to last April free deliv-eries were not made beyond Thirty-third street on Penn avenue, but at that time the American Express Company extended its line to But-ler street, and the other companies were compelled to follow or lose the business. The credit for the extension belongs to M. E. Vaillant, manager of the American com-pany.

pany. The Adams Express Company has offices at Shadyside and East Liberty with agents in charge. Superintendent Glenn's au-thority is now confined to Pittsburg alone. He used to be responsible for all the offices in Alixons. An agent is also placed in to Altoona. An agent is also placed in Allegheny. An effort was made to find out Aliegneny. An effort was made to find out what the boundary lines are from the Snadyside and East Liberty offices, but nobody with the Adams down town could remember. They said they never went to the East End, and the lines are being constantly changed. It is known, however, that the Adams does not deliver good from the lines are to the is known, however, that the Adams does not deliver goods free to all parts of the East End. In many sections the packages are turned over to the Wilkinsburg and East End Express Company, and they charge extra for the delivery. M. E. Vaillant, manager of the American Express Company, said frankly that it didn't pay his company to make free deliv-eries in the East End, and with its com-petitors, the American turns the East End mackages aver to the local express companies.

packages over to the local express companies. He remarked that beyond the market house on Fith avenue the city is built up with homes. There are not many stores as along Penn avenue to Butler street, and it is the business houses that support express com-panies. He said he might put on an extra

The packages to deliver would not be numerous, and the driver would return often empty handed. He added that whenever the business out Fifth avenue would warthe business out Fifth avenue would war-rant it the company would be glad to put on wagons. The managers of the Ameri-can couldn't understand the topography of Pittsburg. They came to the city and took a drive through the hill and eastern sections. When they saw how the stores and business interests were concentrated down town in the narrow triangle, they de-cided to draw the delivery lines where they are. Other cities differ from Pittsburg, and the stores are widely scattered. A gentleman cited a case where he had sent a package from another town to East Liberty. Instead of leaving it there the Liberty. Instead of leaving it there the Adams brought it into Pittsburg, and then Adams brought it into Pittsburg, and then gave it to a local express company to deliver. An extra charge of 25 cents was made. The patron axid he had paid the charges in ad-vance, and it was definitely understood by the Adams that it was to be delivered at his home for what had been paid. This is only a sample of some of the complaints that are wade.

made. It is claimed also by the public that the companies are slow in collecting parcels in Pittsburg. In reply to this all the com-panies' agents stated that they aimed to be be prompt, and they were willing to wager that no other eity in the country had a quicker service than Pittsburg. The American has no offices in the East End, like the Adams. The United States has an office at Glenwood and in Allegheny. The American has two wagons to deliver and collect parcels in Allegheny. The exand collect parcels in Allegheny. The ex-press companies have different wagons to do the work. One set watches the stores and makes the collections, while another does the delivering.

Beaten by an Italian.

Antoney Barrinio, an Italian, was arrested on High street yesterday afternoon for beating and abusing Mrs. Eliza Dyer in a terrible manner. It is said that Barrinio went to Mrs. Dyer's house in Poplar alley, yesterday morning, and because she refused to loan him some money, he picked up a chair and struck her over the head, knocking her down and inflicting an ugly gash on the side of her head. While she was lying on the floor he kicked her several times in the side. Late last night her condition was very critical
