FREE TRADE FALLACY

Thrown Into the Senate by Carlisle, the Kentucky Democrat.

ANSWERED BY SENATOR PROCTOR,

Who Attacks Fome of the Figures on Tin I late Produced by the Men

WHO BOLDLY FIGHT THE M'KINLEY ACT

WASHINGTON, July 29.-The anti-option bill did not figure in the Senate proceedings to-day, but in its place the Hale resolution as to the relutive merits of the Republican policy of "protection" and the Democratic policy of "tariff for revenue only" was taken up and debated the whole

The first Senator to enter the lists and to take up the gauntlet thrown down by Mr. Aldrich, some days ago, was his colleague on the sub-Committee of Finance, Mr. Carlisle. The drift of Mr. Carlisle's speech (which was tortified by facts and figures) was that the McKinley tariff act had not, within the 27 months covered by the investigation of the sub-committee, reduced the prices of commodities or increased the wages of labor, but had on the contrary, interfered with and obstructed the operation of the natural laws governing the subject, He instanced 15 general occupations in unprotected industries where the average rate of wages had gone up and 15 other trades in highly protected industries where wages had gone down.

He was followed by Mr. Proctor, who attacked some of Mr. Carlisle's positions by quotations from an interview with Mr. Rogers, the managing partner of a Welsh tin plate manufactory—the principal point of which was that the election of Mr. Cleveland would be a victory for free trade, and that its effect would be to reduce American wages to the level of English wages.

The Mckinley Act Defended. Mr. Sherman and Mr. Allison defended the McKinley act, and Mr. Hawley obtained the floor to carry out the fight on

After the tariff debate ceased the anti-option bill was laid before the Senate as the "unfinished business," and was then laid aside informally when the President's veto of the bill submitting to the Court of Pri-vate Land Claims the title of William Mc-Garrahan was read and its consideration postponed till December next.

After some difficulty in obtaining a quorum, and a brief silver speech by Mr.

Stewart, Mr. Carlisle addressed the Senate on Mr. Hale's resolution as to the relative merits of "protection" and a "tariff for revenue only," and in response to the speeches of Messrs, Hale and Aldrich.

If, said Mr. Carlisle, higher prices were injurious to the community at large and if low prices were beneficial, then everything interfered with and arrested the natural tendency toward a decline in the prices of commodities and a rise in the makes of labor, anything that tended to make it harder and more expensive for the masses of the people to live—whether it were war, pestilence, famine or a McKinley ct-was a public calamity, to be deplor by every man who loved his country. A List of the Lucky Fifteen.

His purpose was, said Mr. Carlisle, to show that the tariff act of 1890 had inter-tered with the natural tendency to a decline that the tariff act of 1890 had interin the prices of commodities and to a rise in the rates of wages, and that it had made it harder and more expensive for the masses of the people of the United States to live. He said the 15 general occupations in unprotected industries were bakers, blacksmiths, bricklayers, cabinetmakers, carpenters, common laborers, farm laborers, machinists, masons, iron mold-ers, painters, plumbers, stonecutters, tailors and tinsmiths. The average increase of wages in these occupations during the period covered by the investigation of the Finance Committee had been 75-100 of 1 per cent. The 15 highly protected occupations were bar iron, boots and shoes, cotton goods, The 15 highly protected occupations were bar iron, boots and shoes, cotton goods, cotton and woolen goods, crucible steel, flint glass, green glass, lumber, machinery, pig iron, steel ingots, steel blooms, steel rails, window glass and woolen goods. In these occupations the rates of wages had fallen, since the McKinley act, an average of 88-100 of 1 per cent, as grainst a rise of of 89-100 of 1 per cent, as against a rise of 75-100 per cent in the 15 unprotected indus-

Mr. Carlisle then went into a detailed statement as to the cost of imported goods and as to tin plate. On the latter point he said that the McKinley act had paid, not to the importer, not to the Government, not to the dealers, but directly to the Welsh tin plate manufacturers, $4,629,750, or more than half the value of the plant of the 508 tin plate works of Wales. The McKinley act as to tin plate had proved to be, not for the benefit of the American consumers, but of the Welsh manufacturers.

Departure of the Democratic Party.

Mr. Carlisle was followed by Mr. Proctor. and he by Mr. Sherman, in a brief speech, lie argued that the policy of the Democratic party of the present day had departed far from that of the Democratic party in the days of Washington, Adams, Jefferson and Monroe, which tavored the encouragement of American industry. He commended the particular the sample obtained the property of the commended the particular of the commended the results obtained through the action of the McKintey act in relation to sugar, tin plate and other industries, and spoke of the benefits which the farmers of the country had derived from it. He believed that when the question of protection was discussed be fore the people, and when the Democratic party had taken its bold position in favor of free trade, the judgment of the people would be in favor of the policy of protection, as approved by Washington and Adams and Jefferson and Madison and Monroe, as favored by Jackson, and as only lost sight of in the lights of modern Democracy. The people would stand by the old doctrine of the fathers. of the fathers.

After a short speech by Mr. Allison, in defense of the McKinley bill, Mr. Hawley obtained the floor. The Hale resolution then went over until to-morrow, and the anti-option bill was laid before the Senate as the "unfinished business." It was laid aside informally, and the President's mes-sage vetoing the McGarrahan claim bill was read and postponed until the second Tues-day in December next, and the Senate ad-

CATTLEMEN LEADERS TO BE TRIED.

The Cases of the Rank and File of th Invaders to Be Dropped.

LARAMIE, WYO., July 29.-There are the best of reasons for believing that all the prisoners detained here who were concerned in the Johnson county invasion, except about eight, will be tried on the charge of murdering Nate Champion. The cases against 35 of the men will probably be nolle prossed, and only the organizers and leaders of the expedition will be called before the bar. These 35 will comprise mostly the hired army. One or two of the known killers may be tried.

It is expected that the prisoners will be taken to Cheyenne Saturday. Some of the defendants manifest much interest as to who will be the next Governor of Wyoming.

THE personal discomfort, and the worry of a constant cough, and the soreness of lungs and throat which usually attend it, are all remedied by Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant, a gafe remedy for pulmonary disorders and throat affections.

the successful survey of the Pennsylvania Railroad between Harrisburg and Pittsburg. The initial attempts to connect Eastern and Western Pennsylvania were very unsatisfactory. In the year 1847, after a number of fruitless efforts by other well known engineers, Mr. Clarke, then a resident of Blairsville, was put in charge of an engineer corps, with instructions to choose the best route possi-ble over the mountains. His lines, when tinished, were at once accepted, and form the present route of the Pennsylvania Rail-road. Among Mr. Clarke's assistants in this survey was President Roberts, at that time a youth who was rodman for the corps. Mr. Clarke, who shortly after the comple-tion of the Pennsylvania Railroad, followed the path of empire and located in Des Moines, Ia, is now on a visit to his old-time friends at Greensburg, Blairsville and Pittsburg.

Though well toward his four score years, his memory of the summers spent on the Allegheny Mountains in search of a suitable route to connect the extremes of this State is very vivid. The veteran engineer, who was on intimate terms with Milner Roberts, Edgar Thomson and Tom Scott, is well preserved for his years. It is a delight to hear him tell of the times long gone and the men who a half century ago were at the front in developing the resources of West-ern Pennsylvania. The father of R. W. Clarke was a canal commissioner of Penn-sylvania when the canals which joined Pittsburg and Harrisburg were constructed, and was re-elected to this position for upward of 20 years. He was the compeer of Thadeus Stevens and James Buchanan, and with them was a member of the first constitutional conven-tion of the State. Old timers will remem-ber James Clarke, who hailed from Ligo-nier, and who in his day was a great force in the politics of Westmoreland county. When representing Ligonier in the State Legislature, away back, he originated the Legislature, away back, he originated the term log rolling, which has become almost a necessity in political parlance.

In a speech in Harrisburg James Clarke illustrated a point by reference to the customs of farmers out in the Ligonier valley, when all had to combine for common interests. The leavests. when all had to combine for common in-terests. The log rolling idea at once took, and became a popular phrase which is not likely to die. The father was proud of his part in founding the public school system of Pennsylvania, and the son is noless proud in engineering the mountain division of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

THEY SIGN THE SCALE

Two Milis That Will Be Put in Operation

Monday. On Monday morning the fuel under the fornaces in the Greensburg Rolling Mills will be lighted, and the machinery of the entire plant will be put in operation. The firm has signed the new Amalgamated scale and will employ about 100 men. This plant was built some four or five years ago under the name of the Greensburg Steel Company, but recently it changed hands. The new owners intend introducing a new process. They will manufacture bolt and wagon iron under the Henry Harris method by which old rails and scrap steel can be made into new finished product. The Harris method is said to be a new idea and is remarkable for its economy. The process is covered by two patents and a secret and the Greensburg mill will be the only one in the country that has the right to manufacture. country that has the right to manufacture under the new process.

About the same time the Greensburg mill starts the plant of the Newport Iron Com-pany at Newport, Ky., will also be put into operation. Last evening it was an-nounced at Amalgamated Association headquarters that the Newport company had aigned the scale. They have eight single puddling furnaces, ten heating and four box annealing furnaces and five trains of rolls. roof and corrugating purposes and stovepipe iron. The annual capacity is 15,000 net tons and employment is given to 200 men.
