PROSPECTS OF A REALLY GOOD AUTUMN

SPECIAL TELYEGRAM TO THE DISPATOR. New York. July 31 .- "Financial Notes of the Week?" is the title of Matthew Marshall's artic' ie for to-morrow's Sun, which reads as fo' Hows:

The improvement in business on the Stock Exchan: se which marked the closing days of week . before last continued last week in spite of the hot weather, the number of shares comparing as follows:

5: 780 July 25: 104, 677 July 27: 210, 768 July 28: 28, 016 July 29: 27, 624 July 30: ____ 614,430 Total 846,989

These figures, don't include the unlisted stocks, which should considerably swell the aggregate and show a larger gain for last week. How mi any of the orders executed came from out of town, and how many were given here on it is spot, there is no means of compating, but this is unimportant. The great thing for the brokers is that the public is beginning to take more interest in stock speculation in spite of gold exports, labor transles, the anti-option till, and low prices for breads tails and cotton. Even the prospect of a disruption of the Western Traffic Association, as likely from the withdrawal of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, has had little or no effect upon the prices of Western milroad stocks. The crops, it seems to be supposed, will be sufficiently abundant to furnish business emough all around, without the rate cutting which in former years has been so disastrous.

Redundancey of Our Currency. The renewal of gold exports, just as the

The renewal of gold exports, just as the shipments of the new crop of wheat are beginning, bears eloquent witness to the redundancy of our currency, caused by the addition to it of the $4,00,000 and more every month in coin, issued under the act of July, 1890. The talk of obstructing the outflow of the metal by such feeble devices as charging an extra price for bars over coin, and of refusing to redeem greenbacks in gold when the gold is known to be wanted for export, is puerile. The only measure that could prove at all effective would be a simultaneous suspension of gold payments by the Treasury and by the banks, but even that obstacle would soon be overcome. Exporters would snapply themselves from outside sources, and whatever premium they would have to pay would be added to the price of imports. Thus we should ruin our credit to no purpose.

By the way, nobedy in Wall street seems to take Austra's requirements for gold to carry out its new financial scheme seriously into consideration as an element in the exports of gold from this country. It is true that the scheme has not yet been fully enacted by law, but a beginning has been made, and the rest is only a question of time. The Hungarian minister announced the other day to the Hungarian bet that he had already quietly secured his quota of the necessary gold, and it is quite likely that his Austrian collearue has been equally product in providing his snare. Hence the gold shipments, which it puzzles so many people to accountior, may have been partly made to supply Austria with gold, in a roundahout way, though the fact will be concealed until secreey is no longer necessary.

Wild ideas About State Banks.

In view of this foreign demand for gold.

Wild Ideas About State Banks. In view of this foreign demand for gold and of the rapid increase of the volume of our currency through the operation of the set of July, 1896, I cannot understand upon what sound principle the repeal of the prohibitory tax upon State bank circulating notes is demanded. Apart from the evils of a multifactions and insecure currency which afflicted the country before the circulation of State banks was suppressed, its issue now of State banks was suppressed, its issue now would upon another floodgate and let more notes into our aiready heavily watered stock of paper money. Some men, I know, have a wild idea that State banks, if allowed to issue currency, would do so only when it was wanted to move the crops, and would with draw it as soon as that demand ceased; but they evidently reckon without taking into account the capidity of bank officers. Currency once issued by the lanks would be issued forever, and would be a constant meance to the permanence of specie payments.

meance to the permanence of specie payments.

Another interesting currency complication has been created by a recent ruling of the Government fixing the actual value of the Austrian silver florin at a higher rate than its bullion value. The florin, when it was first coined, was worth, as builtion, about 48 cents. Since then, by the depreciation of silver, its builtion value has failen to about 32 cents. But, on the other hand, the column of the florin was suspended in 1879, and owing to the restriction thus put upon the volume of pieces in circulation, its exthe volume of pieces in circulation, its ex-changeaule value is now about 40 cents. It is at this value that the Austrian Govern-ment proposes to redeem it in gold, under the new mance laws now under considera-

Complications as to Customs

The Director of the Mint, looking only to the weight of silver in it, has officially pro-claimed it to be worth only $2 cents, and according to this rate importers of goods from Austria have heretofore been accus-tomed to pay duties. Our Government now contends that, inasmuch as the goods are contenus that, insanuen as the goods are bought and paid for at the rate of 40 cents to the florin, the duties on them should be collected at the same rate, which seems to be reasonable, though the importers make a loud outery against it, and talk of appealing loud outery against it, and talk of appealing to the courts for redress.

A sudden temporary drop was caused in the price of sugar stock, Thursday morning, by a rumor that the duty on imported refined sugar was about to be repealed by Congress. The rumor was soon discovered to be fairse, and a moment's reflection ought to have shown everybody that a measure of such importance could not possibly pass even the House of Representatives at this stare of the session, much less the Senate. Still, the effect produced by it is valuable as a warning of the precarious condition of the sugar-refining industry in this country, and of its liability to serious injury, if not to supar-refining industry in this country, and of its liability to serious injury, if not to roun, from legislative caprice.

At present raw sugar comes in free of duty and the product of American refineries is protected by a duty of 1½ cents per pound. To compensate the Louisiana planters for the loss of the protection they formerly enjoyed from the duty on foreign-grown raw sugar, as well as to encourage the growth of sugar from beets and from sorghum, the McKinley tariff gives a bounty of 2 cents a pound on all home-grown raw sugar, amounting to about $15,000,000 a year.

Fossibility of the Bonney Record.

Possibility of the Bounty's Repeal, It is quite possible that, in view of the the national revenue for the year just ended, and which will probably be larger this current year, the duty on raw sugar may be restored next winter and the bounty repealed. This would involve a re-adjustment of the duty on imported refined sugar, the result of which might be a serious diminution of the profits of American re-diminution of the profits of American refineries.

Evidently the public in general is not yet convinced that any of the industrial stocks, sugar included, can be counted on to pay dividends at the rate they are now paying for any length of time. Otherwise they would give much more for them that they do. With good railroad stocks and bonds, bank stocks, trust company stocks and nunicipal bonds selling at prices which yield the purchasers is per cent per annum and less, the selling of 8 and 10 per cent industrial stocks at about par is explainable only by a lack of confidence in their future. The sagacious investors who can discern this future with accuracy, and who have the courace to act upon their convictions, will undushedly can leave profits but how to

New York shopkeepers have not yet risen in a similar manner against Stern's, Macy's, Ridley's and other mammoth establishments, but they may perhaps be moved to do it by the example of their brethren in Paris.

BITTEN BY A WOLF.

A Kentucky Mountaineer Who Thought He Had Tamed One of the Animals—It Turned on Him One Day and Tore His

Gerald Jerome, a Kentucky farmer, who lives in the mountains near Knoxville and Middleborougn, was in the city yesterday selling some horses. He was a fine specimen of the Southern mountaineer, but had an ugly soar on his right cheek that extended from the ear almost to the mouth. The ugly mark gave that side of the face a fierce appearance, and more than one person asked him bow he had been cut. one person asked him how he had been cut.

St. 205, 206 It looked as if some outlaw in a hand-tohand encounter had slashed his cheek with a knife. Jerome was talkative and not ashamed of the scar.

"I received the mark on my cheek," he said, "in a peculiar way. One day while out on the mountains I captured a young wolf. I confined the beast, and was determined to make a pet of it. For a long time the little brute would have nothing to time the little brute would have nothing to do with me, but as it gradually grew up it became tame, and I frequently caressed it. The animal followed me around like a dog, and his impulses seemed to be good. About three years ago the waif and I were out in the woods. I suppose his instincts for a wild life, which had been lying dormant, were suddenly aroused, for when I tried to pat him on the head, as I had often done, he sprang at me and buried his sharp teeth in my cheek. His incisors passed through the flesh into the mouth, and in releasing the hold he tore the right side of my face badly. Then the animal darted my face badly. Then the animal darted into a thicket and disappeared. I haven't seen him since, though I have searched the mountains often.

"My face became very much swollen, and my friends were afraid I would have an attack of hydrophobia. It was about the time that Pasteur discovered his antidote, and my physician advised me to visit the French doctor. I went to Paris and took the treatment. I soon recovered, however, and I don't believe I was ever in danger of going mad. Pasteur was very much interested in my case, but I never had the slightest trace of hydrophobia."

THE REDS IMPROVING.

One of the Choctaws Speaks of the Devel opment of His Tribe. Henry Moon, a Choctaw Indian, was in the city yesterday bound for Washington to attend to some legal business. He was a fine looking man, of swarthy complexion, and is an example of what educa-tion will do for the reds. Moon is a full-fledged Indian, and his father before him was a chief of the tribe. The young man was educated at Carlilse, and since he returned home he has studied

In speaking of his race he said: "Our people are fast becoming civilized, and I am proud of the progress they are making. The Indians in the territory adopted peacesee, and in time we got to be much re-spected. There is still plenty of good land in the Territory that has not been settled. "In the last rush in Oklahoma the In-

United States Troops, SPOKANE, WASH., July 31 .- There is rouble brewing among the Indians on the Colville reservation, and United States troops may be called out to queil the threatened uprising. The Indians are in arms against the white invaders and have fired the reservation in order to drive them off. T. C. Chaplin, who arrived in Spokane to-day, says prospectors have been clubbed and driven out. One party was stoned Tuesday and driven clear to the Columbia river ferry.

Large fires are raging over the reserva-tion, and it is believed the Indians have turned incendiaries to compel the white men to leave the coveted land. The Indians are sullen and are said to be holding a pow wow, which will possibly lead to trouble. Chief Arpacken has gone toward Fort Spokane with 25 tribes, and has expressed the determination of clearing the reserva-tion of all intruders.

Pulaski Springs Growing in Favor With All Who Spend Their Vacations at Summer Resorts.

Plenty of Game in the Surrounding Woods-Large Fish in the Shenango River-Elegant Medicinal Baths-The Rooms Well Equipped-Natural Mineral Water for Medicinal Purposes-Large Hotel Undergoing Completion -To Receive Guests Before Aug. 15.

The new summer resort, known as Pulaski Springs, which bids fair to become the most popular resort in this part of the State, has recently passed into the hands of a number of gentlemen who reside in Pittsburg and Eastern Ohio, and who are rep-resented by Mr. John S. Parrish of the mortgage department of Charles Somers & Co., Fourth avenue. The resort is located at Pulaski, Lawrence county, Pa. The Pulaski natural mineral water has for a number of years been used extensively within a radius of 20 or 30 miles of Pulaski and has made a repu tation, among those who have used it, for its medicinal qualities and as being superior to any other mineral water on the market. The medicinal qualities of the spring were first discovered accidentally some years ago. The sale of the water has so far never been extensively pushed. In connection with the bottling works, medicinal bathrooms have been established, the building and equipment for this purpose being very complete. These bathrooms have become quite famous in that part of the country, because of the good results obtained by those who have patronized them.

The Natural Beauties of Pulaski, The Hotel Pulaski, a new summer resort about to be opened in connection with the natural mineral springs, stands on an emi-nence commanding a magnificent view of natural mineral springs, stands on an eminence commanding a magnificent view of the Shenango river and valley, and within a square of two lines of railroad. There are excellent facilities for boating on the Shenango river. At this point the water is broad and deep, and the fishing is unsurpessed, the river having been stocked with pike, bass, sunfish, eels and other kinds of fish. Fist have been caught in this river weighing 25 pounds. Game, also, is plenty in the surrounding woods. This is one of the most delightful locations in which to spend a summer vacation. It has no equal in this part of the State.

The building is L shaped, the left wing being 134 feet long, and contains 45 guest chambers, 21 of which contain grates, and communicate with other rooms by sliding doors. The right wing is 100 feet long, and contains the office, 33x29 feet, dining room 36x33, ladies' parlor 19x25, gents' sitting room 16x18, besides baggage, sample, toilet rooms, etc., on the first floor, and 28 guest chambers on the second and third floors, 12 of which are furnished with grates and communicate with other rooms by sliding doors: thus making suites of rooms for families or others who may desire such accommodations.

A Handsome Hotel Building. The gents' sitting room is located on the corner where the windows in the round tower furnish a fine view up and down the river. Next to it, on the right, is the large office room from which a fine oak staircase leads to the halls above. The office is furnished with a large fireplace of the old-fashioned type, built of pressed brick. Next to the right is the large dining room in which can be resided at one time should in which can be seated, at one time, about 80 guests. In the rear of the dining room are so guests. In the rear of the dining room are the serving rooms, kitchen and laundry; and at the right the ladies' parlor, tollet room, etc. From the ladies' room stairs communicate to the halls above. There are bay windows in the four large rooms in front, that on the dining room extending the entire height of the three stories, and a 10-foot porch extends across both fronts, furnishing the front chambers with a wide balcony.
