

TWAS ONLY A TRICK.

Randolph Waldouski Is Said to Be Alive and Kicking.

HIS CREDITORS ARE AFTER HIM.

He Only Took a Bath and Then Leaves on a Train for Apollo.

CONSIDERABLE MONEY ON HIS PERSON

Randolph Waldouski, the Breton avuncine house and sign painter, is still in the land of the living. Notwithstanding the fact that he was seen to plunge into the Allegheny river, he is to-day said to be alive and well, and his clever ruse, it is alleged, was only to throw his numerous creditors off his track.

As was reported in THE DISPATCH last week, Waldouski was hard pressed by creditors and that in order to rid himself of them he proceeded to the Sharpesburg bridge, where he dived and found rest in the translucent waters of the Allegheny.

Waldouski did not commit suicide. On the other hand, he simply exchanged his working suit for a suit of tailor-made garments, after which he boarded a West Penn train eastward bound. The report of Waldouski's suicide created a sensation in Lawrenceville, owing to the fact that he was considered a well-to-do tradesman. When the rumor of his suicide became known, it was reported that he was in debt many thousand dollars.

Ten Judgments Issued.

During yesterday not less than ten judgments were issued against Waldouski by men who claimed that he was in debt to them for labor and purchases which he had contracted with them.

On last Saturday a judgment was obtained by Armstrong & McElveen for the sum of $250 for material which had been bought from them. A judgment for a similar amount was also given to the house which he had dived into at the Sharpesburg avenue. His numerous creditors out Penn avenue are confident that he has not committed suicide.

On last Saturday, the day of his alleged suicide, he went into the store of Solomon Goldstein, at Twenty-seventh street, purchased an entire outfit excepting a pair of shoes, which he bought from Abraham Pearlstein, the shoe dealer at No. 283 Penn avenue. When asked if he had any proposition to renew and extend the charter, he pointed rights and franchises of the bank. By order of the board. JOHN F. COPEL Cashier.

THE WAGON WENT OVER HIM.

Schell & Led the Horses, Fell and Met the Weight of the Wheels.

The plowies out the Perryville road on Sunday are becoming very loud, and the attention of the Allegheny police has been directed to them because of the large number of men who have recently been injured in one way or another. On last Sunday there was a big picnic in Gilday's grove, and as a wagon load of picnickers came out of the grove, all being full of jollity, Fred Schell, who was leading the horses, fell down in the highway and the wagon passed over his legs. The right thigh bone was broken by the wheel, and Fred was carried by car to the Allegheny General Hospital. He will there be confined for about eight weeks, during which time Fred District will do without his gardening services.

ALMOST FOUR SCORE AND TEN.

Death of a Lady Who Carried Water to Soldiers in the War of 1812.

The funeral of Mrs. Rachel L. Bateman an old resident of Pittsburgh, took place yesterday from the residence of her nephew, Dr. Edmundson, of Fifth avenue. She was in her 87th year, and was born Baltimore in 1806. During the war of 1812 she made a child of 6 years who carried water to many American soldiers. In 1836 she came to Pittsburgh and has resided here ever since. Three of her sons were soldiers in the late war. She has been a widow many years, and had 13 children, 5 of whom survive. She raised her nephew, Dr. Edmundson, with whom she made her home.

More Sunday Carousals.

Superintendent Muth, of Allegheny, is congratulating himself on the good order that now reigns on Sunday out East street. That part of Reserve township recently taken in by the city is where the Sunday disorder generally occurred, but since the annexation extra police are put out there, and now silence reigns supreme.
