SIXTY KILLED AND HUNDREDS WOUNDED

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 1 .- Private let ters received here from Tashkend, a town of Asiatic Russia, in Syr-Darya, report that the news in regard to the serious riots which occurred in that place on July 6 in connection with the cholera epidemie has been suppressed by the Government, the strictest censorship being exercised in the matter. From these letters it is learned thet the native Sarts, believing that the doctors were poisoning patients who were suffering from cholera, became greatly excited and determined to put an end to the murderous practices which they imagined were being employed in the cases of the unfortunates stricken with the terrible dis-

The wildest rumors were current of the cruelties inflicted by the medical men in causing the immediate death of the patients, and these stories had the effect of arousing the fury of the people to the highest pitch. Five thousand of the Sarts suddenly invaded the Russian quarter of the town and attacked and wrecked the residence of Deputy Governor Poutinstoff, who fied on the approach of the howling mob. His flight was discovered, however, and he was pursued and overtaken in the street by a large and infuriated crowd of the attackers who mercilessly vented their fury on the helpless official.

Surrounded and Stoned to Death,

He was surrounded on all sides by enemies hungering for his blood and was maltreated in a terrible manner. He pleaded with his assailants for mercy, but his appeals were in vain and at length he was flung to the ground and after being trampled upon by the desperate rioters was assailed with a shower of stones until the life had been beaten out of him and his features had been mutilated beyond recognition.

The authorities having become aware of the state of affairs in town took immediate steps to suppress the disorders and protect the other endangered officials. A body of troops was hurried to the scene of the attack on the Deputy Governor and they were given orders to adopt the most rigorous measures in dealing with the rioters. Arriving at the place where the defiant Sarts were assembled, the troops opened fire on their ranks, killing several of them.

The Sarts were armed with pistols and daggers, and nothing daunted by the deadly fire poured into them, held their ground and made a desperate resistance to the soldiers. The two forces closed in on each other and a furious hand-to-hand fight resulted, the maddened Sarts, when their stols had been emptied, slashing furiously about with their daggers and doing much execution with these weapons. The drilled and better armed soldiers were unable to overcome their fanatical opponents and additional troops had to be sent to their as-

Rioters Capture the Mosques,

They were reinforced by a body of Cossacks, and with the valuable aid of these soldiers they finally succeeded in quelling the riot and dispersing the Sarts in all directions. The Sarts were not disheartened by this repulse, and soon took steps to resume their attack. They collected around the mosques, and taking possession of these edifices, at once set about the work of converting them into temporary forts, and defied the authorities to do battle with them. A large number of soldiers were dispatched to the scene of the new manifestations on the part of the rioters and attempted to dislodge them from their strongholds.

This was no easy task, however, as the Sarts were strongly enseonced behind the protecting walls of the mosques and could shoot down the soldiers, while they themselves were in a practically safe position. The Sarts made a sturdy resistance to every effort of the soldiers to drive them from the building, and fired from loopholes with telling effect upon the invaders. The troops at last concentrated their forces, and, making a grand assault, they triumphantly carried the mosques, and a scene of carnage

Desperate and Sanguinary Fighting. The fighting inside the structures was of the most desperate and sanguinary char-scier. Although the Sarts found they could not cope with their military oppo-nents, no quarter was asked for, nor was any given, and they fell by scores before the weapons of the soldiers, their desperate courage being unwavering and their defiance unceasing to the very end. The character of the struggle may be imagined when it is known that 60 of the Sarts were killed and that hundreds of them were wounded, many of them most grievously.

The soldiers, too, suffered heavily, the Russian loss being 15 killed and many wounded. Tremendous excitement was caused in the town by the terrible affair, and the authorities found it necessary to make the support of the place both day and strongly patrol the place both day and night. Many arrests have been made of persons concerned in the disorders and there is no doubt that an example will be made of all those convicted of complicity in the

It is feared that there may be a renewal of the troubles, and precautions are being taken accordingly by the officials. The troops are being largely reinforced, and everything is being done to put a summary and effectual end to any further uprising on the part of the Sarts.

Cowes, Aug. 1.—At an early hour this norning the harber of Cowes was alive with warships and yachts, gaily decorated with bunting, which had gathered to receive Emperor William of Germany, whose arrival here was hourly expected. At 9 o'clock the Admirality yacht Fire Queen, having on board the Earl of Clanwilliam, Commander of the Portsmouth station, and all the Admirals and captains stationed there, steamed mirals and captains stationed there, steamed out of the harbor to meet the German Imperial vacht Kaiser Adler, on which Emperor William sailed from Wilhelmahaven.

When off Sandown the Kaiser Adler and her escort, the German ironclad Beowulf, were sighted and the usual salutes were fired. The Emperor was seen on the bridge of the Kaiser Adler. The flotilla passed Ryde at 11:25 and arrived here at noon. When off Spithead they were given a royal salute by the warships stationed there. The Emperor was received at the landing stage by Count Von Hatzfeld, the German Ambassador to England, and his suite.

Before coming ashore the Emperor took a steam barge and visited the Moltke. He was attired in the undress uniform of a German Admiral. The crew of the warship were drawn up on the quarter deck to receive His Majesty, and as he stepped aboard

He Is Able to Leave His Bed But Keeps to His Room.

LONDON, Aug. 1 .- Mr. Gladstone passed another good night. Sir Andrew Clarke, his physician, called upon him at noon yesterday. After his visit the physician was questioned by the representative of the Asociated Press, to whom he stated that he was satisfied with the progress toward re-covery made by Mr. Gladstone, but that the latter was not yet entirely rid of his cold, and must spend at least another day in his bedroom. He is permitted, however, to receive those of his colleagues who call upon him upon urgent business. At 4 o'clock this afternoon Miss Helen Gladstone was seen by the Associated Press representative and questioned concerning her father's condition. She said that Mr. Gladstone's progress thus far has been most satisfactory, that he had been allowed to leave his bed and dress, though he kept to his room, where he had received several callers during the day.

At midnight Mr. Gladstone was reported o be feeling well.

THE ARMY RETIRED LIST.

One of the Difficulties Experienced by the War Department.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.-The War Department authorities are treasuring up the four vacancies on the limited retired list of the army against the time when it will become absolutely necessary to use them. Once or twice since the law permitting the transfer of officers of 63 years of age to the unlimited list went into effect all the vacancies have been filled, and it was found vacancies have been filled, and it was found that the operation seriously embarrassed the department, for just about that time some officer would appear who was entitled to go upon the limited list, and there would be no place for him, and the fact that only a few days before some partly incapacitated officer was placed on the list as a favor smote the conscience of the sensitive department people.

There are now four or five officers who are awaiting retirement for various reasons, and as many more are before retiring boards.

HIGH TIME TO CALL A DEAD HALT

On Such Awful, Inflammatory Utterances as Are Allowed From

THE WORKINGMAN'S WORST ENEMIES

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.] NEW YORK, Aug. 1 .- Joseph Peukert and his group of Anarchists were in their glory to-night. For several days they have been distributing circulars announcing that a meeting of "workingmen" would be held to-night, in Military Hall, to discuss the Homestead troubles. Although the circular did not say so, the meeting was merely to glorify Berkman and anarchy.

Nearly all of the 300 persons who had crowded into the long narrow room by 8 o'clock were heartily in sympathy with Berkman and eager to applaud the inflammatory speeches prepared for them. A half-dozen policeman from the Eldridge street station stood at the back of the hall, trying to get a breath of fresh air now and then. Before the first speaker had appeared on the platform the room was crowded. The speeches were in English and German and Hebrew-German jargon. There was long table for the reporters be low the platform, and every speaker made a point of calling the reporters names. Berkman's Awful Deed Applauded. The first speaker was Dyer D. Lum, who neceeded Parsons, the Chicago Anarchist, as the editor of the Alarm. He looked eedy. He spoke in English, approving of Berkman's act. When an Anarchist like Berkman decided to leave this world, Lum said, he considered it his duty to take a good Christian like Frick along as his com

Joseph Peukert, the leader of the Autonomists, was greeted with applause as he walked up to the platform. He is a tall man with a very black beard. He addressed his fellow Auarchists in German. "This meeting," he said, "is an expression of approval on the part of the working class of the deed of Berk man. When the workingmen at Homestead were ground down by the capitalists one man elected himself the champion of the oppressed classes and tried to liberate them from slavery, not by shooting Frick, but by showing them where the source of their misery lay.

A Hearty Approval of Murder. "We approve of the act most heartily. You paid vassals of the press cannot stop the wheels of history. The people are awakening, and they will crush you with those who pay you, these murderers, these robbers, the capitalists. So long as there are people who are starving there will be a Berkman, and these Berkmans will shoot, without any conspiracy. We are proud of Berkman's act. We were associates with him, and we don't deny it. duty.

Dr. Merlino, the Italian Anarchist, followed Peukert, and worked himself into a terrible frenzy in the course of his spe waving his arms, skaking his head, and swaying his body at a great rate.

The Baser Passions Appealed To "Comrades and friends," he said, |in very broken English, "we stand for anarchy. Has this man Berkman committed a crime? Yes, legally a crime, but in the present society it is necessary to commit crime to prevent greater crimes. Frick has shown himself a criminal and we demand the right to fight crimes in any way we can. Our crimes are necessary, while theirs are actuated by greed.

"This is the first attempt made to hit at the real enemy of the workingmen, and it has awakened workingmen to realize that a revolution is inevitable. Frick was robbing the poor workingmen of Homestead. They sought protection from the courts in vain—they tried political alliance to zave them in vain—labor organization was defeated, and they lay struggling in the fear of death at the hands of the tyrant robber. There was only one course left for the workingmen to only one course left for the workingmen to rid himself of the monster, and that was to use the weapons which common sense directed."

Berkman's Sweetheart Rants and Raves. There was a momentary disturbance as a drunken listener called for three cheers for the speakers, but quiet was restored, and Emma Goldmann, Berkman's sweetheart, Emma Goldmann, Berkman's sweetheart, who had been sitting near the reporters' table got up to speak. The crowd applauded her boisterously. She gesticulated all through her speech, which was delivered rapidly in German. Carnegie, she said, paid the press to speak in his favor. Berkman did a great and manly act when he shot Frick. His pistol was pointed at the source of the workingman's misery, in the hope that others might do likewise. "The press says that Frick is recovering," she said, "the capitalistic press, but I don't believe it. Fricks will arise in the tuture, but Berkmans will arise to shoot everyone of them. We have unnatural causes before us, and we must confront them with unnatural means. All is not yet over with Frick. There are 1,000 bullets waiting for him yet." She spoke of Berkman as "that here at Pittsburg," and dared anyone to arrest her.

Comrade Timmerman, who lives in Fifth street with the Goldmann and the others of her group, said that all the Anarchists hated the law. He praised Ravachol and Berkman in the same breath.

Not Considered a Stain on His Race.

The last speaker spoke in Hebrew, Polish and German mixed. He said that many Hebrews thought it was a stain on their race that one of them had tried to assassinate Frick. It was as an Anarchist, and not as a Hebrew, that he committed the deed, and he should be honored for it.

As the speaker closed a man jumped to the platform and said: "The meeting's adjourned." The crowd got out of the hall in a hurry, and Emma Goldmann and her "group" made for "Tough Mike's," in Fifth street.

Itself Wildly. COLUMBIA, S. C., Aug. L.—[Special.]—George Kinard, a negro who assaulted a white lady at Irmo, about ten days ago, narrowly escaped being lynched last night, and a bloody battle between a well-organized mob armed with rifles and dynamite and the Sheriff's posse guarding the Lex-ington jail was averted by the coolness of Sheriff Drafts.

Ever since the arrest of Kinard the people of Irmo have openly boasted of their determination to storm the jail and wreak summary vengance upon the pris-oner. Sunday night was chosen for the bloody deed. The lynchers were well organized and numbered over 150 men. They were determined to have Kinard, if it They were determined to have Kinard, if it became necessary to kill the guards and blow the jail up to get him, and they carried the dynamite with which to carry out their purpose. They proposed if they found the jail guarded to pour hot shot into it from both ends and front with Winchester rifles, and to use the dynamite in the rear, which they could approach with more safety.

A triend of the Sheriff heard it. He straightway hastened to the village and notified the Sheriff, who determined to assume the responsibility of bringing Kinard to Columbia. He accordingly got him ready and sent him by two trusted deputies on the midnight train and lodged him in the State penitentiary for safe keeping.

About 2 o'clock Sheriff Drafts was awakened from his slumbers and the keys demanded of him. Knowing what was

They doubted, and he told them that if they would select six good men to act for them he would show them through the jail and let them convince themselves of the truth of what he said. This was done, and after going through every cell and the cage they expressed themselves satisfied and left, giving wild vent to their wrath and chagrin by loud oaths and firing their guns in the air.

A PECULIAR SUPERSTITION

Which Prevails Throughout the Southern

Part of Washington, SEATTLE, WASH., Aug. 1 .- [Special.] -C. W. Loomis, who has just returned from a horseback ride through the eastern part of the State, tells of a peculiar superstition which prevails among the Okanogan Indians. Near the town of Conconully, in Okanogan county, is a lake called Con-conully entirely surrounded by steep cliffs with neither inlet nor outlet, the road, which follows the shore for four miles, being cut out of the banks. No Indian will camp on its shores or taste of its waters. Many years ago five or six members of the Okanogan tribe who were camped by this lake mysteriously disappeared, none of their brethren knew whither.

The rest of the tribe believed that they had been swallowed by some huge antediluvian monster which inhabited the lake and the tradition has been handed down to the present generation as that ellipse.

A FLEEING CASHIER CAPTURED. He Was Charged With Embrazing $35,000

From a Chicago Newspaper. MILWAUKEE, WIS., Aug. 1.—Charles V. Whaley, formerly business manager of the Chicago Evening Journal, was arrested in this city to-night on a charge of embezzling funds belonging to the Journal Company. About a month ago Whaley and the former cashier were arrested cojointly charged with embezzling $35,000 of charged with embezzing $35,000 of the company's money. Whaley gave $20,000 bail and disappeared, as also did the cashier. Since that time detectives have followed Whaley in the East. When found to-night he was registered at a hotel as C. H. Wilson. His present arrest is made upon a caplas in a civil suit brought to re-cover the $35,000, although the sum alleged to have been embezzied is $150,000.
