IN GRAY CANTERBURY.

Rev. George Hodges, of Pittsburg, to Preach in the Cathedral.

LAYING OF TWO CORNERSTONES,

An Addition to the Home of the Little

Sisters of the Poor. TOPICS TOUCHED UPON BY PASTORS

Rev. George Hodges, rector of Calvary Episcopal Church, East End, is the first Pittsburg pastor to be honored by a request to preach in Canterbury Cathedral. At the invitation of Canon Fremable, Mr. Hodges will next Sunday occupy the pulpit in that historic and magnificent structure, the seat of the Archbishop of all England.

Mr. Hodges, whose contributions to THE DISPATCH in addition to his labors as a pastor have gained him many friends, went to England a few weeks ago to attend lectures at Oxford University. He is a deep student, and in addition to being a clever writer he is a brilliant lecturer. For these reasons his congregation is looking forward to the return of their pastor. They expect this winter to share in the fund of intermation he is now gathering, and which he imparts with so much grace. Last year Mr. Hodges vis ited the Passion Play at Oberammergau Upon his return he delivered a series of much favor that he found it necessary to repeat them four or five times. Mr. Hodges return is looked for next month.

THE PROMISE TO ABRAHAM.

God's People Are to Be Blessed and Blessing. Rev. J. S. Hutson, of the Nixon Street Baptist Church, Allegheny, preached yes-terday from the text: "And I will make them and the places round about my hill a blessing, and I will cause the shower to come down in his season; these shall be showers of blessing."

Mr. Hutson referred to the call of Abraham and the assurance given him that in nim all nations should be blessed. Con-"This promise has been and is being fulfilled. What is true of Abraham is true of all of God's true chil-dren; true of His children in all ages and all lands." Moses and Paul were referred to in order to show that God's people are a bless-ing to the world. They become such by divine choice and calling, by divine endowment, and by God's providential guidance and direction. "Arise, go into the city, and and direction. "Arise, go into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou must do."

"All this," said Mr. Huston, "is true of us personally and collectively. It means you, my poor brother—you, my rich brother—you, my old brother—you, my poung brother—you, my brother with two and one.

"God's people are not only to be a blessing, but they are to be blessed. God's 'wills' and 'shalls' never fail. If we fulful the conditions blessings will surely come. Bring ye in all the tithes into the storehouse and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

"Whenever this is done the blessing abundantly follows, for He is able to do for us more than all we can ask or think—not one blessing, but showers of blessings. God knows when to bless His people, when they most need His blessing. 'Blessed are they that hunger and thirst atter right-cousness for they shall be filled.' 'He satisfies the longing soul and fills the hungry soul with goodness.' Are we weak? He gives us the blessing of strength. As thy days, so shall thy strength be. Are we tempted? He makes a way of escape, so we shall be able to bear the temptation. Are we sinful? The precious blood of Jesus cleanses from all sin. Are we ignorant? His holy spirit guides us to all truth.

Fountain of grace, rich, full and free,

Fountain of grace, rich, full and free, What need I that is not in Thee? And all this He does for His people, that they may become a larger and still greater clessing to the world."

MAKING MORE ROOM.

Adding a Wing to the Home of the Little Sisters of the Poor. The corner stone of a new wing of the house of the Little Sisters of the Poor, Penn avenue and Rebecca street, was laid vesterday afternoon. The services began shortly after 5 o'clock under the direction of Bishop Phelan and were of the usual impressive order provided by the ritual of the Church During the day the institution was thrown open to the public and over 1,000 visitors passed through the building. There are passed through the building. There are now 130 old people in charge of this charity and the number is steadily increasing. For some time past the management has been hampered by overcrowding and it was on this account that the new wing was decided upon. It will be a building 30x101 feet, and will have the height of a three-story building. The ground floor will be used as a dining hall. Above this will be a chapel, with palieries surrounding three sides. By this arrangement the inmates, many of whom are so feeble that going up and down stairs is a task, will be enabled to go direct from their rooms to the chapel. The second floor halls will open into the main body of the chapel and the third floor halls into the galleries. The building was designed by J. G. Breunen. It will be of brick with stone trimmings and will cost $2,000. It will be completed this fail.

The main building cost $87,000 in 1882. The money to pay for it was all raised by the sis-ters before they undertook to build the ad-

THE CHRISTIAN'S DUTY.

Many Burdens to Be Borne by the Followers of Christ.

The services in the Southside Presbyterian Church yesterday were conducted by Rev. F. S. Miller. He took his text from Hebrews xii: I and pointed out the difficulties an sacrifices of the early Christians, especially those of the Hebrews who embraced Christianity, to whom the words of the text were addressed. The encouragement that these words brought to them as they struggled against great odds cannot be fully realized against great odds cannot be fully realized by the brethren of the present time. But they had what we do not have now, a personal knowledge of their Savior.

The sermon contrasted the slight trials of the present with those of the early Christians, and showed why they seem so heavy to our childish strength. Two questions were proposed and their answer attempted: Why, as Christians, are we so weak? Why is the Christians way so broad and loose for us?

Then the fact was emphasized that there are trials for us, but we shrink from them. This comes from our love of reputation, friends and wealth. He closed by saying: "But there are martyrs to-day and they have still greater encouragement than the early still greater encouragement than the early fathers. For to that assembly of witnesses is added all those who have conquered in the Christian martyrdom. May the sight of them and of the Leader of our faith cast shame upon our shrinking and enable us to come off more than victors."

LAYING THE CORNERSTONE

Of St. John's English Evangelical Luthers

Church, Oakland, The corner stone of St. John's English Evangelical Lutheran Church, corner of Forbes and Jumonville streets, was laid yesterday afternoon. The exercises were opened at 2 o'clock, prayer being offered by Rev. F. P. Bossart, the pastor. Addresses were made by Rev. J. Q. Waters and Rev.W. were made by Rev. J. Q. Waters and Rev.W.
A. Passavant, Jr. Each spoke of the benefit done by churches, and of the influence that spread from them. The congregation of the new church was present in a body and turnished music for the occasion.
The building when finished will be an ornament to Fith avenue. Its cost is estimated at $35,000, and it will be constructed from white store. The architect is S. T. Mefrom white stone. The architect is S. T. McClarren, and the Chairman of the Building Committee is Rev. Dr. Passavant

WILL KNOW FRIENDS IN HEAVEN.

The Scriptures and Our Own Nature Prove This to Be So. Rev. S. T. Mitchell, D. D., pastor of the Main Street Methodist Episcopal Church, preached yesterday on "The Recognition of Friends in Heaven." His text, "I shall go to Him," is found in 11. Samuel, xii:23.

sumptive and direct. As the presumptive he first pointed out the indestructible character of memory as indicative of a knowing existence after death. The universal faith among mankind, and the testimony of the departed were also considered as supporting this position. As the direct he referred to the scriptures as proving the resurrection of the body, and also the retention of memory and conscious identity. The scriptures prove that the resurrected have been identified or recognized by the living. As examples of these he mentioned Christ; those who were brought to life and returned to Jerusalem during the convulsions of the earth attending the events on Calvary, and also Moses and Elias—each of these cases proved that friends would be recognized in heaven.

Mr. Mitchell went on to say that faith determined conduct. It led the heathen mother to cast her child into the Ganges; the men to cast themselves before the juggernaut cars, and religious innatics of the Middle Ages to martyr those who differed from them in religious belief.

From these he argued that with this as the existing state in the future, men should be induced to live more carefully and have more respect for life. It should encourage them to deal more leniently with their neighbors, so that the comfort of a future intimacy would be more assuring.

ON CONSECRATION.

Rev. S. W. McKorkle Preaches a Sermon On God Not as a Sovereign, but as a Father Pleading With His Children. Rev. S. W. McKorkle, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Allegheny preached yesterday on "How the Heavens are Opened." He spoke from the text: "Bring all the tithes into the storehouse and prove me now herewith, and see if I will not onen the windows of heaven and pour you out such a blessing as ye shall not beable to receive it "

"The foundation of the text," said the preacher, "is the methods used by the ancients to raise funds for the establishing and carrying on of the Church. The ancient Hebrews tithed everything-their produce and the wine and oil and their flocks and herds; but we wish this morning to study the text in its spiritual signification rather than its material. We are impressed first, with the conditions which the text imposes. Spiritually, it is a lesson on consecration, that being the chief condition of the text.
"Our Savior said: "He that will be my disciple, let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow me." The meaning of that text, gathered into one word, is consecrated service. The second great thought of the text is that which reveals God not in the character of a sovereign, but as a lather and the wine and oil and their flocks and text is that which reveals God not in the character of a sovereign, but as a lather plendling with his children for their good, to put him to the test as to the fulfillment of his promise. He says: 'Test me: prove me now herewith and see whether I will not open the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing. God often speaks as a sovereign, as when He said, 'Let there be light and there was light; as when by his simple edict worlds and constellations pursue their onward course in space without the variation of a hand-breadth. But here we have the sublime sight of divinity pleading with humanity for its own sake.

"This principle is manifested in all nature. It is true in mechanics as well as in the divine way." "Ins principle is manifested in all nature.
It is true in mechanics as well as in the divine laws. The lesson to us is obvious. If our needs are great our source of blessing is great. For us as well as for those of a former time the windows of heaven will be

GUIDED BY THE CHURCH.

Training Young People for the Great Battle

Rev. W. P. Varner, pastor of the Trinity M. E. Church, Twentyfifth and Smallman streets preached to a large and interested audience last night. His subject was "The people are capable of making the most of life until they have placed themselves under some teacher. Seldom does a man rise to any prominence in the world except he place himself at the foot of some learned and wise instructor. In the case of the present generation the Church should be chafing of unlawful actions. Gospel training and teaching may be compared with a chain of which every means of grace, is a link. This chain binds us to the eternal throne of grace, and the least neglect of our church and Christian duty makes it imperfect, hence those must suffer in the last hour when life shall end. The life of the Church depends on the rising generation. It is they who will take the place of their aged sires, and shall buckle on the armor of Christ and labor for the cause of God. The moral and religious teachings which the young receive from the Church is the only means by which this end can be accomplished."

CHRISTIANS SHOULD BE FRIENDLY, The Benefits of Close Christian Associa tion Pointed Out.

"The Helpfulness of Christ" was the theme of Rev. W. H. Rodenbaugh's discourse yesterday at the Duquesne Heights Metho dist Episcopal Church. He compared the life of a true Christian with that of Christ. and claimed that the friendly ass one Christian with another would result in great good. It was the next thing to direct contact with the Savior. He then pointed out the attractions of such an association and the many benefits resulting from it. The Scriptures advanced this idea. Christians should more fully adopt it. Many illustrations were then drawn from some of the great paintings of the master's, exemplifying the many graces resulting from a perfect life and one patterned after that laid down in the teachings of Christ.

Lessons were drawn from the conversation with Nicodemus, the walking of Christ on the sea and the prayer in the Garden of Gethsemene. The promises as revealed to Israel were linked to the promises made to the shepherds on the hill. He mentioned the biessings of these promises, and closed with an appeal concerning the purity of the end, which is life etermal. The Scriptures advanced this idea. Chris Funeral of Miss Bessie Young. The death of Miss Bessie L. Young, daughter of Ezra P. Young, at her home in Edgeworth, on Saturday, cast a gloom over the Sewickley Valley, a gloom such as has seldom been known there before. The fun-eral services were held at Mr. Young's house last evening. All the churches in Sewickley and Edgeworth were closed in order that those who desired might show their symthose who desired might show their sympathy for the bereaved family. In consequence the services were attended by probably 500 people, representing every walk in life in the valley. The services were simple and yet profoundly moving. Rev. Robert Benton, of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Dr. Campbell, of the First Presbyterian Church, and Dr. James Allison took part in the services. Two hymns were sung by Miss Gerald Carothers, Miss Marge Irwin, Mr. Abercrombie and Mr. George Gibb. The burinl will take place to-day at the Sewickley cemetery.

Owing to the hazy condition of the reather last night, Prof. Keeler, concluded not to make any observation of the planet Mars. Yesterday morning, however, after the crowd had left the observatory, the professor had an excellent view of Mars and had an opportunity to spend two hours studying the peculiarities of the planet While the star was considerably to the southward yet it gained sufficient ascen dency to be plainly visible through the

The observations taken last night com pare most favorably with those which have been made from the great Lick observatory and go far toward confirming the reports made in recent years regarding the habitation of the orb. The singular mists which have heretofore characterized the planet were considerably cleared away, and it was viewed to the best advantage it has been seen during the season of observation While the vapors, apparently in the valleys, still hang close to the surface of the star, yet the ranges of moun tains and the valleys are more discernible tains and the valleys are more discernible than ever. Prof. Keeler admits that he has had no better view of Mars from the Lick Observatory than he had from Allegheny early yesterday morning. His only regret is that the lenses were not more powerful. They would afford him a better opportunity of settling many points which are now being discussed by the scientific world. The problems, however, may be solved before the panet recedes beyond the focus of the glasses.

Many English, Frerch and German astronomers have journeyed there in hopes of making some revelations. A good view of Mars can be had both from Terra Del Fuego and the Cape of Good Hope throughout the entire night, while at points above the equator it is only visible for three or lour hours.

To-night Prof. Keeler is in hopes of making some new discoveries. He will be assisted by Prof. Very. The planet will be focused when it has gained ascendency and the reflection will be photographed and used for future reference. Prof. Keeler has already secured several photographs of the

The invitation to the public which was extended by the Professor is still in force, and it is expected that a large number of people will take advantage of this rare opportunity to view the famous planet. Prof. Keeler wishes it understood, however, that no view of Mars can be had before 10 o'clock.
