TWO SOUTHERN EVENTS.

Pittsburgers Going to New Orleans for the Fights-Army Reunion at Nashville,

As the time for the pugilistic encounters in New Orleans draws near, the interest in the slugging matches in Pittsburg is rapidly increasing. It is surprising how many people are going to Louisiana. C. . Baird, traveling passet Queen and Crescent road, was in the city vesterday and completed arrangements for a carload out of Pittsburg. They will occupy a special Pullman car, and as the hotels will be crowded they expect to live in the sleeper at New Orleans. The Queen and Crescent road has agreed to Ireate the car in a convenient place. The Pittsburg people will leave here Saturday evening, September 3, and are scheduled September 3, and are scheduled to arrive in New Orleans at noon on Monday. Mr. Baird says his line is offering a greatly reduced rate. The Pennsylvania declined to make a rate out of Pittsburg. The various roads interested have been assigned sections of seats for the fights to sell to their patrons. The Q. & C. has left section B. and the seats can be bad by applying to John Staley or Superintendent of Police Roger O'Mara, who are members of the Pittsburg party.

Another event of interest in the South is the reunion of the Army of the Cumberland at Nashville September 15 and 16. The railroads have made a rate of one fare for the round trip. Mr. Baird says a large number of people from Pittsburg and other parts of Pennsylvania are going. The lines of the Chickamaugua battlefield will be laid out. The monument for Wilder's brigade will be unveiled September 15.

A White Woman Mourns Over the Body of the Murdered Man Moselev.

RUMPUS AT THE FUNERAL

And the Police Are Called in to Quiet the Mourners.

M'ALLEN IS HELD FOR MURDER.

A Game of Craps Alleged to Have Caused the Fatal Fight.

OFFICERS ARE WORKING ON THE CASE

Gabriel Moseley, the colored man who was killed by Edward McAllen last Wednesday, had a large and lively funeral yesterday afternoon. He had no relatives in Pittsburg, and the buriat services were held in the morgue office on Webster avenue, where the body had been since Wednesday

All day there was an almost continual procession of people, principally colored, who called at the morgue and viewed the remains. As the hour for the funeral drew near the number of visitors increased. Just before the services began there came into the morgue office a little, yellowskinned woman, who wore an expression of anxiety and who mysteriously asked for one of the men in charge. When he appeared she led him to one side, and with an evident attempt at impressiveness, said: "That's not Moseley you've got in that

"Oh, yes, it is," was the reply.

Had Seen the Ghost Walk. "But I say its not," she insisted. Then dropping her voice almost to a whisper and pointing dramatically with her right index, she continued: "Last night Gabe Moseley was in my house, in my room, a-rapping on my windows, a-rapping on my door, atalking to me. Don't you s'pose I know when Gabe Moseley's round? I knows him. That's some other man in the coffin." It was thought at first the woman had been drinking, and she was told to go away, but finally her manner was so earnest she was allowed to go in and take a last look at the dead man's face before the casket lid was put in place. When she had gazed long enough she turned and ex-"It might be Gabe's body, but I don't be-lieve it! If it is his, then his spirit was to see me last night. Something's wrong! God help me!"

She walked out then and disappeared. No one seemed to know her, but all who had heard her, practicularly the few colored people who were present, were deeply im pressed by her words. It is supposed she is some Southern girl, full of superstition and who is possibly a sweetheart of the dead man, and has been mentally unbalanced by his death.

Two Wives Claim Him,

This little incident had scarcely passed This little incident had scarcely passed by when the hour set for the services hav-ing arrived, Rev. G. W. Chnton, of the Wesley M. E. Church, began his remarks over the dead man. The friends and sym-pathizers of the decased filled both the morgue offices, the little yard in the rear and the sidewalk in front. Most of them were colored people, but here and there a white tace could be seen. The minister fact that Moseley was a stranger here, thousands of miles away from home and people, with no mother to guide and direct him, and though a big-hearted, good fel-low, was far away from God. The words were uttered with deep feeling and with a peculiar pathos which visibly affected many of

Over by the wall, in the rear of the room, sat a young woman, who had probably been drinking and who was deeply touched by the preacher's words. Finally she could restrain her feelings no longer. Rising, she exclaimed:
"He was a dear, good friend to me, poor, old Gabe! I loved that man! I was a good

The Police Called In.

The interruption caused a commotion and there were cries of "Put her out." One man said the white woman was Moseley's wife. She did not contradict him, but an tralian woman who was on the edge of the crowd did, claiming she was his wife. A commotion ensued. The minister waited, but the confusion increased when Coroner McDowell entered and, recognizing the woman, sent for a policeman. Officer Nate Gibbons soon came and placed the woman under arrest amid the protestations of her Italian claimant and a number of colored friends. In spite of her entreaties to be allowed to look for the last time on "dear old Gabe," she was hustled away to the patrol wagon and taken to Central sta-tion. There she was recognized as Mary Savov, who has been arrested several times for drunkenness, though little is known about her. Whether she was the wife of Moseley the police do not know. The Coroner's inquest on Moseley's death resulted in the holding of McAllen for murder. The murderer was brought from Wheeling yesterday by an officer from that city. After leaving this city he went to Homestead, walked back over the hills to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and took a freight train to Washington county. Before reaching the town of Washington he got off the train, walked around the town pursued by dogs, and got another train which carried him to Wheeling. There was no evidence of fear or regret in his manner, and he laughed heartily over the murder or anything else talked of. He was arrested ust as he alighted from the train at Wheel ing, but his story to the officer secured his release. An hour later he was arrested again in a saloon while reading of the mur-

Getting at the Facts. The testimony taken at the Coroner's in quest contained few important points not covered in THE DISPATCH story of the covered in THE DISPATCH story of the murder. Magistrate Gripp, who acted as Coroner put some leading questions to Edward Brooks, proprietor of the restaurant, where Moseley was killed, tending to bring out that Brooks' house was a gambling den, a resort for women, a disorderly place generally, and that the murder resulted from a game of craps. Brooks denied all these implied accusations.

A TEXAS chuck wagon by Alles MacGowan in THE DISPATCH to-morrow. these implied accusations

In telling of the affray Brooks, who was the only eye witness, said: "Moseley and McAllen quarreled upstairs over a statement that McAllen had made that I had to protect Moseley to save him. When Moseley went back to the kitchen he declared he would knock McAllen down with a poker if McAllen down with a poker if McAllen came back there. McAllen came back. Mosele called to him not to enter the place, but he walked into the kitchen and at the door Moseley hit him with the poker and threw it at him. McAllen then picked up the bread knife, plunged it into Moseley, pulled it out half way and then pushed it back in again. Then he turned and ran out."

The police are working on the case and the police are working on the case and say they have several witnesses to prove that the murder resulted from a game of craps and that Brooks keeps a gambling house. There are several other important points the police expect to turn up before the trial of McAllen comes off in court.

A GENERAL REVIVAL.

Reported Agreement Between the Standard and the Rothschilds

CHEERS BROKERS AND BOOMS OIL

Several Think the Alleged Combination

Means Higher Prices.

ABUNDANCE OF NATURAL GAS PROMISED

Oil brokers and the local oil trade generally have been stirred up recently by the indications of a general revival of the oil usiness, and it is asserted on all sides that the bulls and bears will within a short time be struggling in their old-time warfare about the Exchange ring.

Next week dealings are likely to be active in petroleum certificates if the details of an agreement signed yesterday at the Standard Oil office become public.

The above paragraph, clipped from a late issue of a New York financial paper, undoubtedly contains much of importance to everyone interested in either branch of the petroleum business, as well as to those who have been looking and longing so long for a revival of speculation in petroleum cer-tificates. It is an innocent-looking little paragraph, but to those who have been keeping close tab on the general situation in oildom, it is full of significance. Briefly, according to the oleaginous oracles, it means that the Standard Oil Company has con cluded some sort of an agreement with those in control of the Russian oil producing and refining business which they say will tend to enhance the value of crude oil, stimulate production and revive speculation.

An Oil Man Explains,

Just exactly what the agreement is that is referred to, in the above clipping is not definitely known, but some light was thrown upon it yesterday by J. W. Craig, than whom there are few men better posted on the oil business in Pennsylvania.

When shown the clipping he said that it undoubtedly referred to a deal with the Rothschilds, who are the financial backers of the Nobel Bros. in the producing and handling of Russian oil. "There is no doubt," continued Mr. Craig, "that Russian competition has seriously "that Russian competition has seriously interfered with the American product in foreign markets, and has had much to do with keeping the price of crude in this country at a low figure. In 1890 the Russians had secured one-third of the English refined trade, and a fourth of the Asiatic market for Russian oil. They had also made heavy traced on the market of Furence and in inroads on the markets of Europe, and in 1891 they had considerably increased their trade in those countries. It seemed only a matter of time until the American oil would be crowded out entirely, and a short time ago John D. Archibald, of the Standard Oil Company, went to Paris, where I think he had a conference with some of the Bothschilds and possibly entered into the Rothschilds and possibly entered into an agreement with them at that time.

Giving American Oil a Chance, "When he returned to New York he was accompanied by a representative of the Rothschilds to sign the agreement for his firm. Just what this agreement is I do not, of course, exactly know. I am only surmising, but it may be that the Standard has induced the Rothschilds to keep out of certain territory or markets and give the American oil full swing.

"Whatever was done it is apparently producing an immediate effect on the price of American crude, and will have a beneficial effect on the producing business, and will no doubt tend to revive speculation."

J. A. McKelvy, President of the Oil Exchange, said he did not know of the agreement, but from what he had heard he thought it likely that the Standard and the Rothschilds had reached an agreement either to curtail the output of the Russian fields, or to divide up the European and Asiatic refined business. He also said he thought there would be a steady advance in oil for some time to come. A Brighter Outlook,

"It is beginning to look brighter," Mr. McKelvy said. "There were sales to-day at the close at 57% and the market was strong all day. From 15,000 to 20,000 barrels changed hands. New orders are coming in and it looks very much as if we would soon get back to the old run of things.

H. E. Wilson said: "There is one encouraging feature about this market. It is not going up by long jumps, but in a steady, solid way that gives faith to the timid. It is a speculator's market, and has been for several days. It is working up gradually, and I believe it will soon be in the upper

E. H. Jennings, of the Kanawha Oil Company, and who, with J. M. Guffey and others, had the largest production in the McDonald field, was feeling good over the outlook. "I believe it will not be long before we have 75-cent oil, and it may possi-bly go higher. There is every reason in the world for it to advance. The Mc-Donald bugbear has disappeared, and there is very little work being done in the old fields that is adding to the new production. Another factor, I believe, is the new pipe lines, which are being built. One has al-ready started to pump oil, and another will be completed within the next three months. These have a strong tendency to built the

When, in 1872-3, oil was down to 40 cents a barrel Sam Justice went to Mr. Rockefeller at Oil City and said: 'Mr. Rocketeller, don't you think oil ought to go up?' and Mr. Rockefeller re-plied: 'There is plenty of room for it, Samuel.' I also believe there is plenty of room for it to go skyward."

M. Finegan, President of the Devonian Oil Company, was a little doubtful, and did not want to place too much confidence in the stability of the present advance. It has been reported that a representative of the Standard is to be placed on each of the exchanges, and this alone would indicate that there is to be a revival in specu-

NATURAL GAS GALORE.

The New Fields Being Opened Show More of the Famous Fuel Than All the Other Territory-The Snee Well at Elizabeth

Pittsburg is again a great gas city. Never since the early days of natural gas has this precious fuel been so abundant. The prediction by THE DISPATCH at the discovery of the Pinhook field that there was an abundance of gas for ten years has more than been fulfilled. With the additional discovery of the new field at Eliza-beth gas experts claim the outlook was never brighter. The Philadelphia Company, it is said, is even reaching out for contracts from manufacturers, a thing it has not done from manufacturers, a thing it has not done for several years.

The men best posted claim there will be more gas in Pittsburg this winter than any time since the palmy days of the Murraysville and Grapeville fields. Though gas is again plentiful the value of it is thoroughly understood. The prices now paid are the greatest ever known in the history of the business. The femous Shee well has business. The famous Shee well has been purchased by the Carnegie Steel Company, Limited. The exact amount paid by the company for this territory is not known, but the price asked by Mr. Snee for his famous well and the lease of 3,500 acres of land was $150,000 land was $150,000. The Famous Hes Well, The far-famed Hess welf, which was the first discovered in the great Pinhook field, is now practically supplying all the Philadelphia Company's lines. From this one well is drawn the supply for the Brilliant and Herron Hill pumping stations and all the towns along the Allegham, river from Theorem 1997. gheny river from Tarentum to Pittsburg Notwithstanding this tremendous strain i is claimed 20 per cent of the gas is blowing off at the well. It is like the early days of natural gas when the pressures were so high it was impossible to hold the full volume in the lines. A remarkable fact in regard to the Pinhook wells is that they have been constantly increasing in a resource they hook wells is that they have been con-stantly increasing in pressure since they were first drilled. This is especially true of the Pinhook wells that have been drilled near Milltown. They now gauge double what they did when completed. The Hess well is now acknowledged the largest gas well and greatest volume well that has ever been struck in any field. This is proven by the fact that it supplies nearly all the Philadelphia Company's lines. The well is actually doing more than any six wells the Philadelphia Company ever had in either the Murraysville or Grapeville fields were ever able to do. At 6 o'clock on the evening of August 5 there was a line pressure of 987 pounds at the well

The Enormous Line Pressure. The Philadelphia Company has never had a line pressure equal to this since the days when the Murraysville and Grapeville fields were at their height.

The drill has proven the enormous extent of the Pinhook field, though it has as yet set no limit to its richness. It is from 15 to 20 miles long, and no one yet knows how wide. With this field and the one at Elizabeth at the big Snee well, it shows more gas in sight for Pittsburg from these two new fields than ever before.

Though the Philadelphia Company was unable to come to terms with Mr. Snee, it ourchased a farm in fee simple close to the Carnegie lease. One portion lies so close to the Snee well that the company is now putting up a rig within 125 feet of the great gasser. The supply already assured in Pinhook with what is expected there puts not only this company but the Percentage. puts not only this company but the Peo-ple's company in as good condition as ever they were.

SIGNED A CHECK WHEN DRUNK.

low a Rich Alleghenian Was Worked by Two Acquaintances

About two weeks ago two well-dresse gentlemen entered the Second National Bank of Allegheny and presented for payment a check for $500, signed by a rich young man of that city. The signature seemed to have been written by the right man, but there was an unsteadiness about it which did not look right, and the cashier hesitated to pay the check. While questioning the gentlemen who presented it Detective McDonough passed on the street. The cashier rapped on the window and called the officer inside. As McDonough entered the men took the check and went out. The detective was hastily told of the circumstances and was told to follow the men. He did so and saw them enter another bank near at hand. There also they were refused payment, and as they came out were arrested. They soon obtained bail for hearing.

Inquiry the next day developed the fact that the signature to the check was genuine, but that it had been made while the signer was intoxicated. It appeared to have been written for $5, and had been raised to $500. The arrested men belong to good families, and they succeeded in compromising the affair, so that further prosecution was dropped. The story leaked out only yesterday, but the names of the parties implicated are carefully kept secret by the

He Goes Away to Fish With Justice Shira -A Successful Negotiation With the Pleasant Valley Company-Devotion to

City Business Mayor Kennedy, of Allegheny, will leave this morning for a fishing trip on the Up-per Peninsula of Michigan. In company with Justice Shiras, who is already there he will spend two weeks angling for the frisky trout. The fishing camp is situated about 14 miles inland from Marquette. Mr. Shiras and Mr. Kennedy have been fishing there since 1864, the Mayor having missed only two summers in these 28 years. George Shiras III. also goes to this preserve, but his favorite time is in the winter, when the deer shooting is prime, and when fat black bears are abroad in the thickest forest.

Mayor Kennedy is an ardent sportsman and has spent many seasons hunting in the Rocky Mountains in Wyoming, Montana and Idaho. His residence on Cedar avenue is adorned with the heads of the larger game is adorned with the heads of the larger game of the United States. All were brought down with his own rifle. He has not yet added a grizzly to his collection, but looks forward hopefully to the time when he will be able to do so.

Yesterday, before his going away, he had a number of animal heads conveyed from his home to his snug little office in the City Hall where they now gazes the walls. The Hall, where they now grace the walls. The heads include one elk, two deer, a pronghorned antelope and a fine specimen of the big horn or Rocky Mountain sheep.

Before departing on his vacation the Mayor had the pleasure of concluding an arrangement with the Pleasant Valley Com-pany which will be gratifying to many people in Allegheny. He has succeeded in persuading the company to remove two of its four tracks on Federal street, between Ohio street and North avenue. When this company opened its line west on North avenue it already had on that part of Federal street the two tracks of the Perrysville avenue line. Instead of using them between Ohio street and North avenue for the other branches it laid two additional, thus occupying all of Federal street for three blocks. It has now agreed to take up the two out-

It has now agreed to take up the two outside tracks, and use the central tracks for all its branches.

The Mayor on his return hopes to see the police magistrate ordinance enacted, so that the burden of municipal work will be taken from him. A meeting of Common Council will be held next Thursday evening, and it is likely that the magistrate ordinance will the near that held. trate ordinance will then pass that body. It has already passed Select Council.

GETTING READY FOR WORK

The Conkling Club Appoint Comm Arrange for Their Fight.

The Conkling Club, of the Southside, held a meeting in its rooms, at No. 140 Carson street, last evening to make arrangements for the campaign. Liberal offers of financial aid were made by many of the members. Steps were immediately taken to perfect the organization and get uniforms. The Finance Committee, consisting of C. E. Succop, D. L. McDonald, John Hennesey, William Evans and J. L. Murry, was given power to make all arrangements.
