A prominent politician in speaking of the new system to-night, said: "Even the large majority of the poll workers have not begun to grasp all the features of the Baker law yet. THE PROPER ADJUSTMENT OF WAGES

SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. NEW YORK, Aug. 21 .- "The Adjustment of Wages," is the title of Matthew Marshall's article for to-morrow's Sun, which is as follows:

Profiting, evidently, by the lesson of the Homestead labor disturbances, the authorities of this State have taken timely and effectual precautions against a similar outbreak at Buffalo. To the cavilers who comparities that the means employed are disproportionately large for the end, it is enough to reply that in such matters it is better to err on the safe side. When force is brought in to prevent or to subdue a riot it must be sufficient for the purpose, or it is worse than useless. Unless it can overawe and crush resistance, it only stimulates it and makes necessary in the end a greater effort than would have been successful in the first instance. The public peace at Buffalo has been preserved and the property of the railroad companies has been protected, and whatever the cost has been, it is not so great as might have been that of repairing a single night's damage by a mob. shall's article for to-morrow's Sun, which is as might have been that of repairing a single night's damage by a mob.

The discouraging fact connected with the troubles at Buffalo, as with similar troubles elsewhere, is that any force at all should have been required to maintain order. Strikers for higher wages always have the sympathy of the mass of the people, and if the demands of the Buffalo switchmen had been well founded, the inconvenience resulting from their attempt to enforce them by refusing to work would have been cheerfully endured.

Extendly Foreling Killed by Force.

Friendly Feeling Killed by Forc. When the men went beyond this, and b gan to burn cars, obstruct trains, and threat n to destroy tracks, they killed the friendly feeling with which they were at first re garded, and now that their acts have cor pelled some thousands of their fellow citi zens to leave their homes and undergo the hardships of military duty, they inspire positive enmity. If they shall, in addition, he able, by threatening demonstrations to intercept the food supplies of their seaboard fellow divizeus, they will make themselves

This danger of a revulsion of public sym This danger of a revulsion of public sympathy, whenever a strike produces wide-spread inconvenience, seems to have been overlooked lately by more than one Government official. The Sheriff of Allegheny county and the Governor of Pennsylvania both had to be impressively warned of it before they took the needful steps to restore order at Homestead. The Governor of Tennessee was so bound to it that he ignobly surrendered to the armed mob that was maksurrendered to the armed mob that was mak ing war on the State troops. The Sheriff of Erie conney needed, too, considerable urg-ing before he decided to do his duty. In cheering contrast to these examples is that of our Governor Flower, who has acted promptly an efficiently, and has thereby saved life and property to an untold amount, as well as the reputation of our State. Nothing Can Blot It Out, While, however, we have thus demon strated the possibility of restraining a strike of large dimensions within its legitimate limits, nothing can blot from the record the fact of the strike itself, nor repair the losses which have naturally resulted from it, both to the strikers and to their former employers. The strikers have lost the wages they might have carned and their employers the profits of the business which the strike has partially destroyed. Add to this the expense to which Eric county has been put, and the personal sacrifices of the soldiers, and it makes a total which it is not gratifying to contemplate.

In view of it, and in view of the losses Monday, the difficulty of the problem con-sists in the difficulty of conciliating the two diametrically opposed interests of buyer and seller, which, from the beginning of the world, have been in conflict. The buyer of labor wants to pay for it as little as possible, and the seller of it to get as much as pos-sible. In small transactions the difference is adjusted by some sort of compromise be-tween the extreme demands of the two parties, or by what Adam Smith calls "the higgling of the market."

Difference Between Labor Troubles. When a single workman throws up his employment because his employer will not pay him the wages he asks, or in some other respect refuses to comply with his demands, he is in principle as much of a striker as he is in principle as much of a striker as when he is one of a thousand men doing in concert the same thing. The only difference is that the single employe can talk over the matter with his employer, and if the two cannot agree, they usual y disagree amicably, whereas in the case of a large number of men this is impracticable, and the negotiation has to be conducted by a committee, which are not so easy to deal with.

When, too, a single sceeding employe includes himself, as sometimes happens, in assault and battery, malicious injury to property, or arson, he is universally pronounced a criminal, and punished accordingly. When, on the other hand, a number of men join in committing similar crimes, it of men join in committing similar crimes, it seems to paralyze the sense of justice, and an effort to punish the criminals is by many regarded as persecution. Arbitration in most cases is suggested only after a breach of law and order has been committed, and not before, in defiance of the plain common sense of the fact that men who have severed their relations with their employers and have commenced hostilities against them have no valid claim to the benefit of a proceeding, the very foundation of which is a willingness to settle a dispute in a friendly manner. of men join in committing similar crimes, it

Beside the difficulty of adjusting disputes about wages where large numbers of men are concerned, caused by the very fact of their numbers, a further complication has of late arisen, growing out of a dissemination of the idea that the wage-earner is in some sort a partner in the enterprise for which his services are purchased, and entitled to a share of its profits, either in the form of a percentage of these profits or in that of an increase of wages beyond those that he would otherwise receive. Thus senator Palmer, of Illinois, propounded upon the floor of the United States Senate chamber the astonishing doctrine that the Homestead mill men had become, by virtue of their former services, part proprietors of the Carnegie Steel Works, and had a right to their numbers, a further complication has of their former services, part proprietors of the Carnegie Steel Works, and had a right to the Carnegie Steel Works, and had a right to the possession of them as against the company that built them and paid for them. This same proposition was in a less extreme form advanced by the Christian Union of this city. It is also formally recognized by President Ingalls, of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company, who, in his annual report to the stockholders, gravely suggests that the employes of the company should receive of its surplus earnings a percentage upon their wages equal to that paid upon the capital stock.

The idea upon which all these propositions are founded has long been familiar to labor agitators. It is expounded at length by Karl Marx, the German Socialist, in his jamous work, "Capital," and I noticed only a normal strike management strike management. a day or two ago a prominent strike mana-eer is reported as saying that "working men, as the producers of wealth are insisting upon being larger sharers in it."

No Adjustment as to Profits. The proposition is true so far as the demands of workingmen, for higher wages and shorter hours can only be met out of increased profits, but that wages are properly to be adjusted by reference to those profits i peremptorily deny. That a wage-earner is in no respect whatever a part owner in his employer's property is so plain that I will not discuss the point. That he is almost a partner with him is evident from the very terms of his hiring. He puts his strength and skill at the disposal of the man or the company which employs him, and agrees to follow their directions. Having ruiffiled the contract on his part, he is entitled to be paid his wages, no matter what may be the outcome of the business, and if he does not pet them he usually makes trouble, and with entire justice. The switchman who has faithfully turned his switches according to orders surely cannot be denrived of his pay because the railroad company fails to earn dividends. The ironworker who sweats over the furnace fire need not, before he asks for his week's earnings, first learn whether the iron he has turned out has or has not been sold at a profit. Bricklayers, plasterers, carpenters, plumbers, in like manner are in nowise concerned with the success of their employer in to be adjusted by reference to those profits plumbers, in like manner are in nowise con-cerned with the success of their employer in no pain, no nausea; easy pill to take.

LEARNING A LESSON. Betting for his houses more than they cost him.

Since, therefore, the wage-earners do not share losses, they must, in all justice, forego a claim for a share of the profits. Where there is no responsibility for the one there can be no right to the other. To advocate a contrary doctrine is only to inspire envy and discontent without reason.

Some Cases That Are Exceptions.

There are, indeed, cases in which wages are properly adjusted according to percent-ages. Thus on many railroads a fixed amount is alloted to each engine per mile run of fuel, oll and waste, and the engineer who succeds in using less than this amount is rewarded with a portion of the saving so salesmen in commercial establishments receive in addition to their regular salaries, and even in place of them, percentages upon the sales they make. In many banks and other financial institutions the profits of which depend upon the vigilance, fidelity and zeal of their employes, a bonus is paid to them at the end of every year in addition to their salaries, proportioned to the profits of the year, which they have helped to increase.

IFROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT. HARRISBURG, PA., Aug. 21.-A large portion of the force in the Secretary of the Commonwealth's office is at present engaged n answering queries relative to the modified Australian system and sending out sample ballots to those requesting them. The form of these sample ballots has called forth a protest from Chairman Reeder, of the Republican State Committee. His objections have not yet been officially considered,

THE HARRITY BALLOTS

Are Based on a Disputed Section of the Baker Law but the

owing to the continued absence of Secretary Harrity from his Harrisburg office. The officials here, though, are very con ident that the form which has been adopted by them is the correct one. Here is the section of the Baker law upon which Chairman Reeder bases his point: The names of candidates shall be presented in the following manner and order: In the case of certificates of nominations made by a convention of delegates or other-wise, as described in section 2, representing a political party which at the election next preceding, polled at least 3 per cent of the highest entire vote cast in the State, or electoral district, or division thereof, for which such nominations are made, as de-scribed in section 2, the names of all the candidates so nominated by such political party shall be arranged in groups as presented in the designation of the office, with the party, the designation of the office, with the party, descriptive words, or political appellation at the head of the group; such groups shall be printed in the order of the voice polled by each political party at the last preceding election, beginning with the party which secured the highest vote.

In all other cases of nomination by nomination papers the names of candidates for each office shall be arranged under the designation of the office, in alphabetical order, according to their surnames. There shall be let at the end of the list of candidates for each different office, or under the title of the office itself for which an election is to be held (in case there be no candidates legally nominated therefore), as many blank spaces as there are persons to be elected to such offices, in which the voter may insert the name of any person whose name is not printed on the ballot, for whom he desires to vote as candidate for such office, and such insertion shall count as a vote without the cross mark (x) hereinafter mentioned.

Reeder's Obj-ctions Criticised.

In the sample ballots arranged by Secre-tary Harrity and sent broadcast throughout the State all of the candidates are arranged under the heading of the party which they represent, Republicans in one column, Democrats in another, etc. Reeder's idea is that the law is that the ticket should be arranged by grouping all the candidates for each separate office together. In discussing this subject, Secretary Harrity's chief clerk said:

"We are very sure we have made no mistake as to the intent of the law in prepar-ing this form of ballot. The wording of the section quoted by Mr. Reeder is not quite so exact as it might be, but taken in conjunction with other parts of the statute, its meaning is plain. For instance, I regard he following section as placing the matter beyond dispute:

beyond dispute:

"Provided, That a voter may designate his choice of all the candidates of a political party or group by one cross-mark in the margin to the right of the party name or political designation of such group, and such mark would be equivalent to a mark against every name in the group?"

"Now," he continued, "it would be impossible to carry out this feature of the act with a ticket such as Chairman Reeder suggests, as the candidates would not be grouped by parties in separate columns. The form of the ample ballot is the one used in every by parties in separate columns. The form of the sample ballot is the one used in every State where the Australian system or a modification of it has been adopted. The ticket proposed by Reeder would be about three yards long this year, by the time the Prohibition and People's party candidates, with the necessary blank spaces, were all duly placed." Slow in Complying With the Law.

"Have you any information whether the People's party will secure enough signa tures to entitle it to a place on the ticket?" was asked.

"Of course we know nothing about the matter officially, but I understand the members of the new organization are laboring industriously to that end, and they are likely to succeed. No nomination paper—that is one requiring signatures—has yet that is one requiring signatures—has yet been filed by any party from any section. The People's party, of Beaver county, have filed certificates of nomination for their local ticket, as they polled a sufficient per-centage of the vote last year to entitle them

"How rapidly are the regular nomina-tions of the old parties being filled?"
"The work is not pearly so far advanced
