A PROHIBITION

At the Farmers' Encampment, With Cold-Water Addresses.

JUDGE BRIGGS A COOL SPEAKER,

Who Says a Word for Himself and Fcores the Barer Ballot Law.

ALL THE OLD PARTIES DENOUNCED

IPROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

MOUNT GRETNA, Aug. 22.-This was Prohibition day at the farmers' encampment, and the cold water advocates were out in force. The gathering was by far the largest and most enthusiastic to date. State Chairman Patton, ex-Judge Briggs, of Philadelphia, candidate for the Supreme Court, John Lloyd Thomas of New York, and Rev. J. H. Hector, the colored divine of York county, were the principal orators of the occasion. It was the formal opening of the campaign in Pennsylvania Practical politics was combined with the fireworks to an extent by having the nomination papers, made necessary by the Baker ballot law, ready for the signatures of the sympathizing crowd. This portion of the new voting system was vigorously denounced from the platform as both unjust and unconstitutional.

Another marked feature of the address was the evident desire to prevent the independent and reform vote being diverted to the People's party, The Prohibition platform was declared to contain all the vital demands of the younger organization, in addition to its cardinal plank of enforced

Victory Predicted by the Chairman. Chairman Patton opened with a brief address urging the members of the party to renewed efforts, and assuring them that the victory would ultimately be theirs. He devoted some time to the need of a more John Lloyd Thomas, of New York. Mr.
Thomas is a forcible, though rather rambling speaker, and secured frequent and emphatic condemnation from his condemnation from his audience. During the course of his remarks he said:

"It has come to the point that the banded liquor interests openly and admittedly name our chief officers. In the Empire State in 1888, in the slum wards of New York City, a Presidency was traded for a hip and the saloons delivered the goods. It was a bargain between Hill and Quay. I make this statement on the au-thority of Whitelaw Reid, now the Republican candidate for Vice President. In the Democratic ticket and Harrison ahead of the Republican ticket. Our politics and elections have been just like a sec-saw, with the organized liquor power throwing its weight to the side which promised best and determining each contest.

Change of Power as a See-Saw. "When the Democrats were in power the Republicans said to the liquor interests: "We will make your business respectable by our arrangement of the license laws, and our Vice President will himself open a bar at the Shoreham in Washington." This was the highest bid, and notwithstanding the frantic protests of the Democrats, who offered everything in their power, the weight on the see-saw changed, and the Republicans went into office again.

"The liquor dealers care nothing about "The liquor dealers care nothing about the Grand Old Party," the 'pointing with pride' and all that sort of gush. When they go into a campaign they do so for actual value received or in sight. The Democratic party makes little or no attempt to disguise the fact that it favors the open saloon. But the received or the representatives, notwithstanding their occasional temperance talks, are not a whit better. Ex-Governor Beaver has one favorite quotation in his speeches he makes to you farmers in this section. He never used it in Philadelphia or Pittsburg, but he was that the property of the tells you that 'rain makes corn, corn makes whisky and whisky makes Democrats.' Well, if the Republicans believe this why don't they put a stop to it? They can't stop the rain or the corn, but they can put amend to the whisky and thus, according to Mr. Beaver, demolish the Democratic party. Why don't they do it?"

Whisky Dropped for Calamity Cries. Mr. Thomas then abandoned whisky for a time and devoted his attention to the economic issues, raising a calamity cry very similar to that of the most approved Peo-ple's party orators. He denounced the distribution of the wealth of the country, and asserted that this condition was affected by neither high nor low tariffs. He said that McKinley spoke of the hard times of the fifties, caused by the revenue tariff of 1846, while Blaine and Allison called that the most prosperous period in the country's history. He then volunteered the statement that it was not the hard times of the fifties but the hard times of the nineties which demanded action at the present time. He then referred to the People's party as moving in the line of reform, but claimed that the Prohibitionists were better organ that the Prohibitionists were better organ-ized and had more definite purposes in view. Upon this topic Mr. Thomas said:

"The Prohibition party was the first one, twenty years 1820, to demand the Govern-ment control of railroads. Its platform was the first to contain a plank proposing to limit the ownership of land and was the pioneer to denounce the national bank system and demand a sufficient currency t conduct the business of the country on a cash basis. But we go further than this, and want to reform humanity as well as the Government, and prohibition is the first Prohibition as It Is in Kansas. "I met Senator Peffer at Cincinnati not long ago, and in the course of a conversa-tion I asked him: 'Senator, if there had been 5,000 saloons instead of prohibition in Kansas how many Congressmen, Senators and legislators would have been elected by the agricultural reform movement? hy the agricultural reform movement?'

Not one, replied the Senator. I put the same question to Ralph Beaumont of the Knights of Labor, who stumped Kansas for, six weeks during the memorable campaign of 1890. during the memorable campaign of 1890, and his answer was identical. He said that in the prohibition State he could always secure an audience and an attentive hearing. When he crossed the line and entered Missouri the saloon at once interfered. If there had been 5,000 saloons in Kansas each one would have been a political club house devoted to the interests of the old parties, and neither Senator Peffer nor any other farmers' reform candidate would have been chosen to office. For the same reason the Prohibition party takes precedence of the People's party, and is the one that must carry out all permanent reforms."

Judge Briggs the Last Speaker. Ex-Judge Briggs, of Philadelphia, the cold water nominee for the State Supreme cold water nominee for the State Supreme Court, was the next speaker. In opening he said: "We are told that prohibition doesn't prohibit, but it does. It prohibits in Pennsylvania as far as it goes. At present there is an average of one license to every 500 inhabitants. The other 439 of us are prohibited from entering the business. are prohibited from entering the business, and we obey the law. Is there any one to say that the five hundredth man will not have to obey the law if the prohibition is extended to him, and the special monopoly he now enjoys abolished? High license encourages the liquor habit and engratts it upon our business, political and social system, and forces the dealers to work for increased business to get back the license. increased business to get back the license fee. The Republican party is a rum party, and the Democratic party is a rum party from the cradle to the grave. License or no license is the only difference. The women are all with us, and the reason is the same as that which made the slaves of the South pray for the success of the Union forces during the war. The women are now the victims of the rum power, but they will yet Judge Briggs then turned his attention to the new voting system and said: "Wi must not forget to denounce on every occasion the pefarious provisions of the Baker ballot law.

The Judge Speaks for Bimself. "Single-handed, I wrenched from the Supreme Court the ruling that the Prohibitionist or People's party man may take a sticker into the election booth, and paste is ticket over the blank space or the o his ticket over the blank space or the of-ficial ballot. It will then count just the same as the new-fangled cross mark op-posite the ring candidates. I secured this decision without any assistance from my professional brethren. But let us make our vote large enough this fall so that we can get regularly on the official ballot without going hat in hand as for a favor, which the constitution decrees as a right. I appeal to you fair-minded Re-publicans here, if you feel you cannot vote publicans here, if you feel you cannot vote this year for the Prohibition electors, to cast a ballot for some one on our State ticket, so that we can secure the requisite number to be hereafter on the official blank without dispute. If I were not the candidate for Supreme Judge I would say that was the proper office on which to make the special effort," concluded the Judge, modestly.

Rev. J. H. Hector, who was a slave in the antebellum days, followed in an impressioned cold water address, which, while not pretending to any great degree of logic, aroused a vast amount of enthusiasm. Tomorrow is scheduled as People's party day, with George Francis Train as one of the star attractions. An effort is being made to secure the presence of Governor Meto secure the presence of Governor Mc-Kinley on the closing day, which has been set aside for the dissemination of Repub-lican doctrines. Both Mills of Hughes & Patterson Now ! Operation With Non-Union Men.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 22.—In their fight against Hughes & Patterson, the Amalgamated Association has probably been defeated. The firm operates two mills. Some time ago they succeeded in obtaining enough men to run one of their mills, and the mill has been steadily worked for several weeks. This morning the fires was lighted in the second mill and about 20 men put to work.

The new men will be granted police pro-The new men will be granted police pro-tection while going to and returning from work until it is known that they will not meet with harm at the hands of the locked-out men. The firm is hiring competent men each day, and expects in the course of this week to have a sufficient force to op-erate the mills to their greatest capacity.

MILL MEN ARRESTED.

Three Non-Union Workmen at the Upper Mills Apprehended.

Policeman Palmer, standing at the Forks of the Road yesterday, arrested Timothy Fitzpatrick, Mike Murphy and Michael Ansher. All of them are non-union men employed in the Upper Union mill. Ansher left the Thirty-third street works yesterday and has been drinking freely ever since. Running out of cash, he went to the Amalgamated headquarters, where he offered to desert from the Carnegie Com-pany's employ if the Press Committee would give him $4. On their refusal to do so he became disorderly and was taken into
