Two Years' Intense Itching.

by Cuticura Remedies.

When about seven years old, my son was afflicted with a skin disease which was very distressing. The first appearance was of little pimples accompanied by intense litching, soon spreading into sores covered with scabs, excent when scratched off. The entire body, except head, was covered. He almost lost the use of his limbs and was so light I could earry him about like an infant. Used all remedies I could find recommended in medical works for itching without benefit. Applied to different physiciaus, receiving temporary relief, but the disease was sure to return. I sent for your pamphlet, read it, purchased a set of CUTICURA REMEDIES. I annointed him with the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I annointed him with the CUTICURA REMEDIES. The CUTICURA SOAF, and gave small doses of CUTICURA RESOLVENT. Oh, the soothing effect of that CUTICURA! After two years' search for something to alsay that terrible liching, what a relief to see him sleep sweatly without any inclination to scratch, Less than two boxes of CUTICURA, one cake CUTICURA SOAF, and one bottle of the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, performed a cure, with no returns. Is now a strong, healthy boy of thirteen. We consider it a remarkable cure, as he had inherited scrofulous humor.

A WAR WARDED

By the Prompt Discharge of an Over-Officious Policeman at Jeannette.

FRANCE EASILY PLACATED.

Another Instance of Shrewd Diplomacy Coming Out on Top.

GRAVE INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

Arranged With Cleverness to Avoid Serious Complications.

A SOUTHERNER'S WAY OF DOING IT UP

PROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.1 WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 .- At last another international difficulty has been adjusted, and the United States is again relieved of the apprehension of a foreign war. It is only a few weeks since Dr. George, an attache of the Swiss legation, was arrested and roughly handled over at Bay Ridge, on the Chesapeake, through an absurd mistake of a lady who thought she had been robbed be the semi-diplomat. A solemn and formal correspondence ensued, and the trouble was adjusted and the incident declared closed only when the Swiss Government had been assured that the rather stupid officer who made the arrest had been dismissed. The latter affair was more serious, for involved a quarrel with a more powerful nation, and was no less offensive than an insult to the flag of France. On last Fourth of July, when all nature was rejoicing or count of the Stars and Stripes and the Declaration of Independence, some felllow away off in Jeannette presumed to fly the French tri-color instead of or along with the American flag.

An Officer's Over-Officiousness. Certain citizens of Jeannette, baving more natriotism than sense, deemed it an insult to America to float any other flag on the natal day of the Republic than the recognized banner of the country. They excited a revolt against the admirer of France, and they were so violent in their eloquence against the intrusion of the foreign mg that they encouraged a policeman, who had not even as good an excuse for his net as that officer at Bay Ridge had for his, to enter the domicile of the offender, make way to the flagpole, and by force and erms tear down the banner of our sister Republic regardless of the complicamight be the result of the act.

Of course the affair, in all of its terrible and humiliating details, was made the subnotre, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary from France to the United Sintes. M. Patenotre, in turn, cabled the facts to his Government.

An Ersy Settlement of the Case. The French Cabinet sat upon the case and again communicated with M. Patenotre, begging that gentleman to convey to the United States Government their concern on account of the occurrence, and asking what was the purpose of the United States Government, by way of reparation for the insult to the French flag. State Department communicated with the Governor of Pennsylvania, asking to be informed of all the facts of the case. The Governor reported, and at the same offending policeman had been dismissed from employment at the town of Jeannette This important action, due to the interference of the Government of the sovereign Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, was duly transmitted to the high authorities of the State Department a day or two ago, and this morning, just before the departure of Monsieur Patenotre for his beloved France Assistant Secretary Grinnell, of the State Department, gave the envoy, etc., the joy ful news to carry to his Government that the offensive policeman had been dismissed.

and could the Envoy, etc., say whether such action would be satisfactory The envoy, etc., felt that he could promise that the reparation was all that his Govern ent would demand, and that this secon slarming incident might be looked upon a plused. Thus another war is averted by bard-headed and skillful diplomacy, and Pennsylvania escapes the crime of plunging two sister Republics into a bloody fray. Another Threat of War Spoiled. The State Department seems to feel very little concern in regard to the story that comes from Venezuela of the invasion of an American vessel and the forcible deion of five members of the Venezuelan Congress by revolutionary soldiers. The es through the medium o captain of the vessel that was boarded, a ship of the "Red D" line, and not officially from the Consul at Porto Cabello, the port where the incident occurred. The Captain asserts that an officer of the revolutionary force came aboard his vessel with a squad of soldiers and demanded the surcommunicated at once with the Consul, who haspens to be one of the most famous of the many famous "judges," "colonels" and of the palmy days of these gentlemen in Washington. He is "Judge Riley, of Account, by Gad, sir," a Judge of the United States District Court of Virginia inder Grant, and one of the most flu iving men, who, as Consul at Porto Cabello, would put on the demeanor, in a diplomati conflict, of a minister of the first class. It was predicted when the judge was sent here, to get him where he could not for awhile ask for another office, he would have a hand in some sort of a diplomatic broil before many moons, as he would not allow his light to be hidden under a thousand

D du't Care a Rap for Uncle Sam. It is reported by the Captain that the judge came promptly aboard when he was appenied to, and declared that the Captain had acted strictly in accordance with tresty stipulations, and would be upheld by his Government. He faced the revolutionar atthroats and warned them, as only Judg Riley could warn them, of the danger they would incur if they dared to interfere with the liberty of any who claimed the rotection of the American flag, but the origands, who will probably soon be in session of the Venezuelan Governm say they did not care a continental for the United States Government, and as for the pompous Consul, he could go to the mischief and say the Venezuelan party sent I asked an official at the State Department what would be done in the premises, until an official presentation of the offense ad arrest were the act of persons who were enemela, and it was not clear, therefore w that Government could be held respon At any rate, Judge Riley would be heard from before any formal steps to demand reparation could be made.

It is safe to say the story will not lose any of its thrilling details when it comes fres from the eloquent pen of Judge Riley, of Dawes' Refusal of a Re-Election. The announcement by United States Senator Dawes, of Massachusetts, that he will not be a candidate for re-election, comes as a great sorprise to all who know him in Washington, and that means all Washington. years and of the "unpopular branch" for almost as long a period, must, of necessity, be well known. Moreover, Mr. Dawes was never timid at forging to the front. He was always ready to take a hand in debate, and, as he grew old in years, was somewhat too ready to enter the arena of discussion.

ready to enter the arena of discussion.

Much as he is entitled to of praise for the earnestness and integrity of his career, his resignation will be received without much regret in the interests of the introduction of the younger blood and ideas which have outstripped the slow movements of the grand, but aged, men who live in the past and find nothing so much to their mind as and find nothing so much to their mind as the glories of the stirring days when they were in the completeness of their vigor and always in the thick of the fray.

I fancy if a vote of the people of Wash-ington could be taken, Mr. Henry Cabot Lodge would be the choice for Senator to succeed the successor of the great Charles Sumner. Mr. Lodge stands in the forefront of the younger race of statesmen of the old and classic Bay State, being only 42 years old. Among them he has not at this time his equal for vigor of thought and diguity of bearing in the ranks of either

Principal Candidates at Present. Speaker Barrett, of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, who will contest for the succession to Dawes in the Senate with Mr. Lodge, is also very popular here, especially with the newspaper correspond-ents, of whom he was one for years and by whom he was highly esteemed for his bright, hearty, attractive manner. In thought and expression, however, he would hardly be called the equal of Mr. Lodge, even by his most faithful admirers. Mr. Lodge has served two terms in his home Legislature and is now in his sixth year in Congress, which is a valuable experience Congress, which is a valuable experience for so young a man and one who may be advanced to the highest and most dignified parliamentary body in the land.

Mr. Dawes' voluntary retirement may be called the beginning of the breaking up of the old men of national repute who have grown gray in the service and who have, most of them, been actors either in the field or in Congress, in the great tragedy of 30 years ago, and in the days that tried men's souls during the preceding years when this old guard was split in two and fighting the preliminary battle of words for

CUT WITH A RAZOR.

Brother Strikes His Sister-Her Beau Retaliates and in the Quarrel That Ensues the Bean Is Cut and Nearly Bleeds to Death.

Lewis Johnston, colored, struck his sister last night. The girl's bean, William White, took her part and in the quarrel which followed White was so severely out with a razor that he nearly bled to death.

About 7 o'clock last evening White called on his girl. Lula Johnston, at her home in Our alley. While they were conversing her brother Lewis appeared in the back yard and held a conversation with a neighbor. Lula Johnston walked out to the couple and asked her brother not to talk to the girl. Her brother hit her in the lace. She ran crying into the house and told White. He went into the yard and attacked Johnston.

The latter drew a razor, and while White had his arms about him Johnston slashed him on the back, making two swift strokes, from the shoulder to the hip. One of the wounds exposed the ribs on the left side. White attempted to get the rasor and grabbed the blade with his hand, and that member was nearly severed in twain. Johnton ran away. Lula Johnston had called for assistance during the quarrel, and when aid arrived the injured man was attended to. He was already weak from the loss of blood and was carried down to Dr. Loughrev's office on Fitth avenue. His wounds were bandaged, but the doctor said the cut on the hand had severed an artery and was probably fatal. An immense crowd of people collected at the doctor's office, and the police had to be stationed there to keep the street clear. The police of Station No. 2 were started out to arrest Johnston, and about 10 o'clock Officer Elmore heard that he had a lady friend at No. 41 Mahon avenue, in the Thir-teenth ward. Here he was found and placed under arrest and taken to the Eleventh ward station. The excite-ment among the colored people on the hill over the event did not abate until midnight. White was removed to his home, 390 Webster avenue, about 11 o'clock, and was pronounced out of danger.

ROBBED ON THE BRIDGE

Dr. Tates Assau ted While Crossing the Liberty Street Tracks. Dr. W. S. Yates, the dentist, at No. 802 Penn avenue, was assaulted and robbed ast evening on the Washington street footoridge over the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks to Liberty street. Dr. Yates had been visiting on the hill, and about 10:30 o'clock was on his way home. As he was crossing the bridge at the foot of Washington street a man stepped up behind him and struck him a blow on the back of the neck. The weapon used was evidently a sandbag, and Dr. Yates was knocked insensible.

It was several minutes before he came to, and when he did he discovered that he had been robbed. His gold watch and chain had been torn from him, but the hieves had not stopped to go through his pockets, the number of people nearby evi-lently having caused them to get away as quickly as possible.

Dr. Yates, when he recovered, reported the affair to Officer Costello. The police made a search for the thieves, but, beyond learning that they had run down Fountain street, found no trace of them. Dr. Yates, after reporting the case, proceeded to his home. He valued the watch at $175. The scene of the robbery is in the vicinity of the old stamping ground of the Owl gang of a few years ago.

A CLERICAL SCANDAL SETTLED,

Charges of Intermperance Against Lutheran Pastors Investigated. WARREN, PA., Aug. 27 .- [Special.]-The norning session of the Lutheran Conference was consumed in considering the report of the committee on the alleged misconduct of certain clerical members of the Synod at the meeting in Greenville last

Your committee would report that careful inquiry has shown the rumors of such conduct misleading, and the new-naper reconduct misleading, and the new-major re-ports grossly exaggerated; but while no in-temperance could be truthfully alleged against the 12 or 15 members of the Synod who spent a social evening at the Taylor House, yet, in our judgment, that meeting was indiscret at such a time and place, and the consequent absence from the evening meeting of the Synod was contrary to good order and proper respect for the Synod. Rev. Professor Titzel read the report or education. Sixteen young men have re-ceived aid during the last year. There were eight new applicants for aid. The sum of $796 50 was returned by former beneficiaries; the amount expended for beneficiary education during the year was $2,350; estimated amount needed for ensuing year, $3,500. The prospect for additional beneficiary students is increasing.

ON THE DAY OF THE DOUBLE MURDER FALL RIVER, MASS., Aug. 27 .- The testimony in the Borden murder trial was continued to-day. The Mysterious Cases of Sickness Bridget Sullivan was examined. Witness said somebody was sick at the house Tuesday night. Mrs. Borden said she and Mr. Borden were sick all night. They had been vomiting and looked sick. When Lizzie came down she said she had been sick, but Bridget did not notice that she looked poorly. Bridget got wood and coal from the cellar. There was a woodbox in Miss Lizzie had been moving about eight or nine minutes when she went upstairs to her room. When witness came down stairs Miss Lizzie said she told her she heard her father groaning while she was in the back yard. When she came in she said the screen door was wide open. She recognized a laugh in the upper hallway as that of Miss Lizzie Borden. Since the tragedy occurred she never saw Lizzie Borden crying.

This ended Mr. Knowiton's questioning. The witness grew a little paler when she faced Mr. Adams to undergo her final crossexamination. She said she had told her story on the Tuesday after the murder to two or three persons at the inquest. After the hearing yesterday the witness went to he Marshal's office to wait for a carriage.

The Food Which Made Them sick. Emma and Lizzie went away the Thursday before the murder, and Lizzie came back the following Tuesday. Bridget did not think Lizzie left the house on the Saturday after the murder. The day before they were sick she had fried fish for dinner and were sick she had fried had for dinher and warmed it over for supper. Wednesday morning she warmed over the mutton soup which they had the day before. It was the next day they complained of being sick.

Thursday morning Mrs. Borden came down and asked Bridget what she had for breakfast. Bridget told her, and then she wild that Mr. Morse was in the house, but

Lizzie sat in a big armchair near the window and ate her breakfast. There are some books and papers in the kitchen, and witness had seen Lizzie come in and read them, but was sure that she did not read any that morning. Bridget drank me of the milk. She didn't know whether the others did or not. The next morning witness felt a little sick and went out in the back yard to vomit. It was at that time that Lizzie was eating her breakfast. Witness didn't know whether Mr. Morse passed out while Lizzie was ent-ing or not. Bridget did not see Mr. Borden Mrs. Borden was dusting in the sitting room, where she told witness to wash the windows. Bridget went to the barn to get the pail. Coming back from the barn, witness saw Miss Lizzie at the screen door. She snoke to her about locking the door Witness told her she did not need to hook the door, as she (witness) would be in the

She went into the kitchen for the dipper after she had used the brush on all the windows. She did not see Lizzie at that time. She had finished washing the windows nearest the hall when she heard someone at the front door. She could not say that the door bell rang.

When Mrs. Borden was in the house she answered the bell. When Mr. Borden was in he always answered it. When witness went to wash the inside of the windows she could not say that Miss Lizzle was ironing downstairs. She began to iron when witness was at work washing the inside of the dining room. All the locks of the front door were tastened when she went to open it. The exclamation she made in trying to open the door was, "Oh, phsaw!" and it was this exclamation that caused Lizzie to laugh in the upper hallway. Lizzie said very slowly to her father that her mother had gone out in , response to a note received early in the morning. Mr. Borden's safe was kept in the room eading from his bedroom. Witness knew that the house had been entered and money and watches taken. Miss Emma was in the house at the time, and the robbery occurred in broad daylight. The barn had also been entered and robbed.

Miss Lizzie was ironing handkerchiefa. She saw them on the table. Miss Lizzie asked her if she was going out, and, if so, to be sure and fasten the door, as her mother had been called to see a sick friend. The defense took unusual notice of this statement. It was 10:55 o'clock when witness went upstairs. She said she could not have been in her room more than 30 minutes when the City Hall bell rang 11 o'clock.

Lizzie Not Overwhelmed With Grief.

She was there almost 10 or 15 minutes when Lizzie shouted to her. Lizzie was standing near the screen door leading into the yard when witness went downstairs, and was not wringing her hands nor giving any other signs of great grief. SINGULAR DOCTRINES PROMULGATED.

PERSONAL TRUNCHES TO THE DISPATOR I NEW YORK, Aug. 27.-Mme. Hyacinthe Loyson, wife of the celebrated Charles Loyson, better known as Pere Hyacinthe, arrived in this city to-day and is at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. She is here in the interest of the work which she and her husband are at present doing in France.

The life story of Mme. Loyson is a curious one. An American girl, born of Puritan stock, raised in the Methodist faith, and for many years a communicant of Henry Ward Beecher's church, she became, by her persistency and ability, a prominent figure of the Roman Catholic Church, and, indeed, she was no stranger within the Vatican

Mme. Loyson first married Captain E. R. Merriam, of Ohio. Two children were born of this union, a daughter, who died in early youth, and a son. Mme. Loyson was one of the first women in America to do Three massive pieces of naval artillery newspaper work, and continued it long after her marriage with Captain Merriam. When he died she went abroad, and while in Rome espoused the Roman Catholic faith. She quickly developed into a poli-tician, however, and entered actively into were transferred from the West Penn to the Fort Wayne Railroad, in Allegheny, at 3 o'clock this morning. The gigantic guns were securely braced upon ponderously built flat cars, and in their immensity looked like great tree trunks. The cannon were in charge of a

Her Marriage to Pere Hyacinthe. She was much sought after, and had maintained the plans for a woman's college at Rome, when there appeared on the scene the broad-shouldered, sweet-voiced Pere Hyacinthe, who, despite his priestly avocation, became enamored of the brilliant American, and his affection proved recip-The priest finally renounced the deep asceticism of the barelooted Carmelite friar, asceticism of the barefooted Carmelite friar, snapped his fingers at the vows which stood in the path of his happiness, and married the woman of his choice. It is hardly necessary to add that the marriage shocked the Catholic world, and the press of Europe was outspoken in its condemnation. In all the years that have followed their marriage, Pere Hyacinthe and his wife have worked together in their self-assumed mission—the reform of the Catholic church. Speaking of that mission to-day, Mme. Lovson said: "Bear in mind that ours is not a new sect; it is far from Pere Hyacinthe's inten-
