The extraordinary mortality from various form of infantile indigestion this summer has led to careful inquiry, and the best authorities on the subject in this city have freely expressed their opinions. Several of the best-known physicians in Pittsburg were interviewed yesterday, and the following question asked: 'In view of the large death rate this summer o infants in Pittsburg, what do you recommend?" The general sentiment of the profession was voiced in the following statement from one of the most successful practitioners among children. He "There is nothing equal to lactated food, and its use is fast becoming general among the profession We find that it is retained on the stomach where other things are not retained. and I generally give small portions often repeated when called to attend such cases. In almost every case where mothers are unable to nurse their infants, I find that lactated food answers well." Many happy mothers in Pittsburg have used lactated food successfully where everything else failed. They say that this food has kept their children strong and well during the dangerous summer season and many of them have recommended it to friends, who have had the same happy experi
