The Federal Officials Unable to Override a State Officer's Orders.

A SURPRISE FOR MANY.

Was Jenkins' Announcement That He Would Do as He Liked

ABOUT QUARANTINE MATTERS.

None of the Government Officials Are Willing to Talk of It.

GREAT CONFUSION BOUND TO ARISE

[FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.] WASHINGTON, Sept. 2-The President, the Secretary of the Treasury and other officials who were consulted before the issue of the order for the 20 days' quarantine of all vessels carrying immigrants were considerably surprised to-day when they were informed that Health Officer Jenkins, of New York, had declared himself to be a bigger man than all of them, and that he would ignore the order from the general Government and use his own judgment in regard to the admission of passengers, whether they are immigrants or not.

Of course these august officials admitted that they had no power to interfere with the petty officials or the quarantine regulations of a State, and so confessed in the order. It was not expected, however, that the officials of any State would find fault with the order, or that they would attempt to vitiate it. The President has consulted with a number of the Cabinet officials today in regard to the matter, but all seemed to think that the general Government could do nothing more than had been done and that if the governing power of the State of New York, or of any other State, could afford to permit its employes to render nugatory a proclamation that was plainly in the interests of the protection of the country from the introduction of the plague, the responsibility would rest with that govern-

Nobody Willing to Talk. None of the officials would talk about the matter for publication. Assistant Secretary Spaulding, who has special charge of arrangements pertaining to the cholers, said this afternoon it was a very delicate question, and that it would be manifestly improper for him to say anything, as the slightest discussion might result in widening any differences between the Federal and the State authorities. He hoped that sober second thought would induce the health officer at New York to see that all the powers of all the governments should work ogether to the same end.

It is expected here that Governor Flower will take some action to prevent at least any less rigid supervision than that suggested in the Government order, as, in case the cholera should effect an entrance under such circumstances, the condemnation of the State authorities would certainly be somewhat uncomfortable.

The action of Dr. Jenkins is generally criticised as particularly foolish, as the public up to this time had criticised no one but the President for his indifference and tardiness, but now the President was largely relieved, as he had done all that could be done under the law except by the calling of an extra session of Congress.

How Jenkins May Be Equelched. As to the report that the Collector of Customs at New York had declared that every vessel carrying immigrants that arrived at New York should be detained 20 days, regardless of the action of the health officers, the highest authorities at the departments assert that he has that power, and that he will be quietly ordered to ex-ercise it. It is expected, however, that the immigrant business will be reduced to a very small proportion, no matter what is done, as the doubt in regard to the admission of immigrants will impel steamship lines to refuse to carry immigrants for an

It seems that beyond the immigrants nothing is to be done, and that both the Federal and State authorities are agreed that passengers of other classes may come on and proceed to their destinations all over the country, without let or bindrance. One of the most regretted features of the friction between the Federal and the State officials is the confusion that will arise in regard to the restrictions at the various ports, as, at some of them, immigrants may be held in accordance with the Federal order, while at others they may be admited as other passengers are, thus vitiating, possibly, the more rigid regulations.

A Muddle That Was Overlooked. It is a muddle that ought to have been foreseen long ago, as everybody now con-fesses, and therefore the mass of the people still insist that the only proper and sensible proceeding is yet to call an extra session of Congress, and at once enact a law that will give the general Government absolute con-trol of the quarantine. Those who oppose this view hold that Congress could not at any rate enact a law that would have any important bearing on the matter before the time of regular meeting in December, but this is manifestly a weak argument, as no one can tell what immeasurable good might be accomplished by the enactment of such a law, as no one can foresee the extent to which a conflict between the Federal and the State authorities may be carried.

Still another class takes the hopeless view that the cholera germs have undoubt-edly already been sown broadcast, and that it makes little difference what is done now. It is very certain that if the plague does make its appearance in the United States there will be no end of criminating assertions as to the place where the responsi-bility belongs. The New York port is but one of many, and any lax enforcement of preventives there by the State authorities will not palliate the tardiness of the administration, unless it should be plainly evident that the presence of the contagion is due to the political jealousy and antagon-ism of the New York government through Health Officer Jenkins.

Harrison Very Much Worried. The President was much worried over the situation to-day, and was in doubt as to whether it is not his duty to stay at the capital instead of trying to enjoy himself killing fish and birds at Loon Lake. At last accounts the fascination of the rod and gun seemed to have gained the ascendency over his qualms of conscience. It is pre-dicted that he will meet the cholera on his way back to Washington, when he is forced to return to play his part in the performances attending the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The Treasury Department to-day re-ceived a dispatch from the New York Ship-ping Company asking whether London comes under the 20 days' quarantine circular, and whether freight boats will be quarantined when they have only cabin passen-gers. Secretary Foster replied that vessels not carrying immigrants will not necessa-rily be detained 20 days at quarantine, but that all vessels from foreign ports will be held long enough to assure the health offi-cers that there is no danger of their introducing cholers. Asking the Government Questions. Mr. D. B. Gamble, of Cincinnati, inquired by telegraph whether the 20-day quarantine applied to vessels carrying first and second class passengers only. The department, in reply, telegraphed that the 20-day quaran-tine did not apply, but that such passengers should be detained until the health officer is satisfied that there is no danger of the introduction of cholers from their ad-

The people on the Canadian border are betraying some anxiety to know whether or not the provisions of the quarantine circular apply on the border. To-day the Collector of Customs at Detroit telegraphed to the Treasury Department asking whether the circular applied to immigrants from Quebec and Montreal. He was informed in reply that they were not subject to its provisions, but that immigrants from the two places named should be detained until all danger was passed.

The officials of the War Department feel The officials of the War Department seen the necessity of having every army post in the country put in such good sanitary con-dition that the disease if introduced shall not spread on account of bad hygienic con-ditions. To bring about this desired result Adjutant General Williams to-day sent to each department commander and each inde-pendent post in the country certain mem-orada submitted by the Surgeon General and approved by the Secretary of War re-lating to cholera precautions.

KILLED HIS WIFE FOR 5 CENTS.

A Woman Murdered by H-r Husband for Breaking a Salt Shaker.

EAST PEPPERELL, MASS., Sept. 2-Special. ]-The breaking of a cheap glass salt shaker which could have been purchased for not more than 5 cents was deemed by Farmer William Lively to be a sufficient reason for killing his wife this morning. When, after his fit of anger had assed, he notified his neighbors that his wife was sick, he went home and shot him-self while standing over his wife's body. When the neighbors arrived a bloody scene was presented. On the floor were three large pools of blood, and between the bodies lay a 32-caliber revolver with two of the six clambers empty. Au examination showed that the ball had entered near the center of the back of the head of the dead woman, penetrating the brain. The shot in Lively's head caused a ragged wound and penetrated the brain, parts of which were oozing from the wound. Mrs. Lively died without regaining conousness at 6:40 o'clock and the man is still unconscious, with about even chances of recovery. Farmer Lively was 38 years old and his wife was a year younger. They were a hard-working couple, and in the last five years had paid all but $100 of the $4,000 debt which they incurred when they bought the form Hardward was a state of the state of tragedy this morning, when his wife acci-dentally dropped the salt shaker.

Bakers as a class are not particularly progressive in a business way. There are exceptions however, and one of the most not able or these is the Marvin bakery of this city. Mr. Marvin never lets slip an opportunity to please the public. Even the issues of the Presidental campaign have received his attention, and the result is a "Grandfather's Hat" cake that has made its appearance within the last few days, and which no doubt will be found at all the leading grocery stores. It is said to be a delightful cake, and, if a name goes for anything, it ought to be immensely popular.

the finding of several bodies washed ashore. Stewart will be detained here for some days to identify the remains.

Stewart was seen again this morning, and the only additional fact obtained was that the Western Reserve went down with her engines going. As the crew pulled away they could see the monster puffing and plunging into the waves until she sank out of sight. There is no way of identifying the place where the steamer went down. It was out of sight of land, and there is no way of locating the wreck. The yawl was capsized at the first shoal from the shore by the breakers. the breakers.

It is not probable that any of the occupants survived the cold and waves long except Stewart, who had on a heavy knit close-fitting jacket, which he says alone saved him. He was entirely exhausted when he struck shofe, and lay almost unconscious for an hour before he could move; and then he could hardly walk and had to half crawl the ten miles to the life saving station, where he was rubbed and well taken care of until the tug brought him here.

A dispatch from Manistee, Mich., says: Two tugs with hawsers and a diver are at work on the schooner City of Toledo, trying to right her. The body of Lizzie McMillan, the captain's daughter, was found yesterday morning about seven miles north of here. None of the others has been seen yet. Parties at Pier Port claim that four persons Parties at Pier Port claim that four persons were seen in a boat about two miles out at 7 o'clock on the evening of the capsizing of the schooner Toledo, but that the sea was running so high at the time that no assist-ance could be rendered. The boat came ashore empty with the cars in the morning.
