THE BIG SHOW OPEN,

Pittsburg's Great Exposition Is Started for Its Fourth Season.

EVERY SIGN OF SUCCESS.

LEVY HAS A MUSICAL OVATION.

The Fcarlet Coated Band Futhuses the Lovers of Music.

MANY RICH AND HANDSOME DISPLAYS

Scintillatingly successful was the opening of the Pittsburg Exposition last evening, for its fourth season. The big buildings were scenes of light, life and beauty. Five thousand people went to see the fine displays and to hear Jules Levy's scarlet coated band. The displays were gorgeous and the band a musical triumph. Manager Johnston was bubbling over with gratification, and Mr. Levy was a symphony of melodious smiles. Everybody about the great exhibition seemed to radiate a consciousness that they were the partakers in one of those rare affairs in this life-an unqualified success.

The exhibition gives sure promise of its best season. For 40 days it will be open to edify and delight the people of Western Pennsylvania and the neighbor States. There have been several important changes since one year ago. One that first strikes the vision of the visitor is the enlargement of the concert facilities. The gallery for the big band is the same, but over across from it a large audience gallery has been built out over the floor, and below, in the main hall, the seating capacity has been multiplied. Three thousand persons can now sit and listen to the music, about four times as many as could find resting places formerly. Very many who go to the great show go to hear the music. The manager has been wise in providing for their better accommodation.

The New Lecture Hatt, The eastern section of the main building, in previous years devoted to the art galleries, has been made into a large lecture hall. It is one of the prettiest places for that purpose in the city. The ceiling is high and the whole interior finished in hard wood. The halt is finely lighted by many incandescent lamps. There are easy chairs for 800 people. The hall was open last evening for the people to look at it. Prof. G. R. Cromwell reached the city yesterday morning. He will begin his illustrated lectures at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Four lectures will be given daily, at 2, 4, 7 and 9 P. M. They will treat of foreign lands, great cities and noted historical events, and form an entertaining and instructive series.

The exhibits by merchants and manu-facturers are this year exceptionally fine The booths and pagodas are decorated with unusual taste, and under the electric lights torm resplendent pictures. Special potice will be given to the displays by the great drygoods houses. Their large glass booths are arranged with a taste which does great credit not only to the firms which carry such fine goods, but to the men whom they employ as expert decorators and window trimmers. In nearly all of them there are beautiful ladies arrayed in the prettiest gowns and most costly cloaks and furs. The ladies, of course, are of wax, but they are none the less beautiful and far less dangerous than the genuine articles.

I wo of the Unique Displays.

There are two unique displays by the bigretail firms. Jos, Horne & Co. show in one of their great glass cases a white elephant of natural size. It is covered with linen napkins, costly lace drapings and white passementerie and bead work. The great animal represents really about as much money value as a real elephant. His eyes are two glowing electric lamps. In his trunk he holds an orange, which he swings slowly to and fro.

The booth of Rosenbaum & Co. contains a pretty representation of the administration building at the World's Fair. It is 1-32 of the natural size, and even at that is quite a large structure. It is lighted within by electricity, which shines through the windows of stained glass. The exterior of the whole structure is covered with the whole structure is covered with pearl buttons, which in the lights at night glisten many hued. Before the domed building is the lagoon, with its fountains and swans, and before that are the 13 tall pillars, with their statues looking out toward the inland

On this first evening the displays cannot be noticed in detail. All are pretty and worthy of study. They show the varied lines of mercantile activity in this city and in Allegheny. The displays of furniture are particularly pleasing. There are planes, electrical fittings, sporting goods, notions, hardware, sewing machines, clothing, sil. hardware, sewing machines, clothing, silverware, pottery and all the useful and beautical things which Pittsburg merchants offer to their wide field of patronage. Brend and Cheese and Pickies.

The visitor must not fail to go into the balcony and look at the "bread and cheese and kisses—"no, not kisses—pickles. They amount to about the same thing sometimes. There are fine shows in the balcony. What are displayed there are chiefly the smaller articles of merchandise, but they are very attractive, and the booths are beautiful with their variegated drapings. Some people are accustomed to say that these exhibits are merely what may be seen in the windows of the large stores. This is not true. The very best—the richest, choicest and prettiest—are selected from a great stock, and in a pretty glass house they are arranged in the most pleasing and showy manner. They reveal the pick of Pittsburg merchandise, and besides show-ing that, they present pictures of beauty, pleasing to the eye and educating to the Machinery hall, with its engines, lathes, pumps, electric motors, glowing glass fur-naces and whirling cranks and flying belts, presents the great attraction for many of the male visitors. The general machinery was not in operation last evening, but it will go to-day with a rush and whirr. Some of the exhibitors supply their own motive of the exhibitors supply their own motive power, and they were furnishing enough action to satisfy those who like to see things "go." The glass furnaces, run by the Associated Giss Manufacturers of Pittshurg ware the same and the same a Pittsburg, were operated last evening, and the man who grinds names and flowers on colored glass souvenirs had his marvelous

Where the Children Congregate. In a bright, airy pavilion west of the main building there has been set up a fine main building there has been set up a fine merry-go-round, which attracted the younger generation in great numbers. It is the best affair of that kind every set agoing in city. It is new, strong and equipped with not only horses, but lions, camels, goats, deer, giraffes, zebras and even a gigantic rooster, all saddled and bridled, ready to be mounted and ridden in a whirl of pleasure by the most gentle child. The ready to be mounted and ridden in a whirl of pleasure by the most gentle child. The merry-go-round is equipped with a large orchestra, operated by a small steam engine. Its music is somewhat wild and weird, but it lends a sort of furious charm to the rush of the prancing steeds. The pavilion is brightly lighted, and outside, between it and the main building, are lights are suspended in the air, making the walks, rustic scats and greensward in that end of the grounds a favorite resort for the young.

Last evening, while the orchestra was pouring its music forth into the night, there stood outside of the iron fence inclosing the grounds looking longingly in at the lights and the gnyety a crowded line of the poor children of the Point. Here and there in the dusty street little ragged urchins, boys and girls, not over 10 or 12 years in ago, danced to the music of the waitz.

At this end of the grounds, near the river's bank, is the long frame building of the Pittsburg Cycle Company. This is headquarters for bicyclers, and all sorts of machines and appliances are shown. To those who love the wheel there are here all the latest improvements and fittings in which they are interested.

Jules Levy returned to his Pittsburg ad-mirers last evening. He came with a great and gorgeous band, and he received a royal and gorgeous band, and he received a royal welcome. The band plays at 2, 4, 7 and 9 o'clock every afternoon hereafter. Last evening it tuned up at 7.45. In the afternoon the band appears in undress uniform, and in the evening in full military uniform. This full dress is a gaudy giory. The cap, of German shape, is of blue. The frock coit is scarlet of the brightest hue, half covered with gold lace. The brocked were blue with a wide red stripe. When the 40 members are seated, their scarlet uniforms, multiplied by the big plate glass mirrors behind them, look like a broad shimmering plot of geraniums in a park. On Mr. Levy's uniform there is more gold than on the others. As he turns to the audience, to lift his cap and bow his acknowledgement of generous applause, the gold medals on his breast tremble and tinkle with rapture.

Lost evening the people rapidly filled the seats as the red-coated musicians entered their galiery. Jules Levy, roseate and rotund, smiling and confident, with his harmony compelling baton in his white gloved hand, bowed to the front, turned to his players, moved his hand softly, and there rolled forth the slow melody of the long meter doxology, "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow." That was followed immediately by the "Star Spangled Banner." The stated programme of the evening was then taken un, beginning with one of Wagner's marches. Rossin's "William Tell" overture was encored and the band played "For You Must Be a Lover of the Lord." The unengaged musicians sang the chorus, furnishing a pleasing break in the instrumental programme. The reminiscences of Meyerbeer were enjoyed greatly and a feature of the evening was Mr. Levy's cornet solo, Rossini's "Inflammatus."

The musical programme for to-day is as velcome. The band plays at 2, 4, 7 and 9

THE PITTSBURG CYCLE CO.

Their Magnificent Display of Bicycles, Triere es and Harness at the Exposition.

One of the most elaborate and the largest display ever made outside of the Philadelpnia cycle show is the exhibit of Philadeipnia cycle show is the exhibit of the Pittsburg Cycle Co., which occupies the two buildings erected last year for the Oil Well Supply Co., at the west end of the main building. This firm, although the youngest in the business in the city, by past and liberal advertising of their various lines of accessories, and, being themselves practical bicycle experts, are now the leading dealers between Chicago and New York. The exhibit of this firm is one of the features of the Exposition. It comprises the largest line of wheels, novelities and bicycle accessories ever shown.

Particularly prominent is the largest practical tricycle machine ever built or ridden. There are also a number of curiosities shown in the way of antique, English and American wheels. Bicycles are there in all styles and mukes, as well as portions of machines, showing the different parts in the many processes of manufacture. many processes of manufacture. THE HARNESS DISPLAY.

The display of the Pittsburg Harness En porium, which is located directly under the band stand, will, when completed, be one of the most attractive in the building. The proprietor, Mr. Harry D. Squires, who is also the largest stockholder in the Pittsburg's Cycle Company, is one of Pitt-burg's sucthe largest stockholder in the Pitteburg Cycle Company, is one of Pitteburg's successful young business men. He has by indomitable pluck, energy and push placed imself in the front rank, eitht years as the manager and buyer of the Squires Hardware Company having given him a thorough business training. April 1 he severed his connection with that concern and purchased the harness, trunk and saddlery business of G. W. Ache, at 428 Wood street. By shrewd and energetic business management, though in business less than a year, he is now one of the largest manufacturers and wholesale and retail dealers in fine hand made harness in Western Pennsylvania. The exhibition in the main of complete lines of English long-tug coach harness, English coupe and Rockaway Road and track harness, English coupe and Rockaway Road and track harness, English and Whitman, ladies' and gents' side-saddles, hollow and Malaca coach whips, assorted fur robes, horse clothing for track use, breast protectors and horse covers, square-shaped and quarter blankets.

The exhibit as a whole is undoubtedly second to none in its line ever witnessed in Pittsburg.

FURNACES, RANGES, ETC.

J. C. Bartlett's Two Fine Exhibits.

There are two very handsome displays this year made by J. C. Bartlett, of 203 and 295 Wood street—one in main building and one in mechanical hall. The space in main hall is attractively decorated, and is devoted to the Bartlett wrought steel warm air furnaces and wrought steel ranges, the Cinderella ranges and Jewett hot water heaters. The "Bartlett" furnace is adapted for any kind o fuel—nard or soft coal, coke, wood or natural gas—and it has acquired since its introduction in 1847 the reputation of being the most effective, simple, safe and durable furnace now before the public. Any servant can control and regulate it, and it is guaranteed free from gas or dust, and very economical of fuel. The Cinderella ranges are justly celebrated for their great durability, convenience and superior working qualties. The Jewett "Expert" hot water heaters exemplify the highest grade of apparatus for heating houses by hot water. The "Expert" will work equally well with hard or soft coal, wood, ooke or natural gas. 205 Wood street-one in main building and

THE MECHANICAL HALL DISPLAY At west entrance is mainly devoted to the exhibition of the excellent Jewett gas ranges, which are now being used with satisfaction by over one hundred householders of Pittsburg and vicinity. The Jewett cooking appliances are exclusively for gas as Inel, and embrace wrought steel ranges, portable stoves, combination broiler and cake griddles, and sad iron heaters. People interested in fitting their houses with stoves and heating appliances can obtain from Mr. Bartlett thoroughly expert advice, and will be given every information as to the saving in cost of operation of these improved ranges, stoves and furnaces.

A SPECIAL EXHIBIT.

Hopper Bros, & Co.'s Exposition Folding

Passing along the north gallery the visitors come to the familiar stand. Hopper Bros. & Co., the Wood street house furnish-Bros. & Co., the Wood street house furnishers, who are always foremost in presenting to the public the very latest improvements in furniture, have started with the opening of the Exposition with an elegant line of combination folding beds. Being a new feature in this market, this firm, with its usual sagacity, has taken advantage of the Expo. and the enormous crowds that will attend it to introduce this particular bed, making it a special exhibit, arguing that by so doing the public will more heartily enjoy and appreciate the novelty.

The different combinations of this bed are so various that a less hurried description will have to be given in the near future which will do justice to such an important factor in house furnishment.

Characteristic of the promptness which actuates this firm in all business matters, and as at all openings of the Exposition in past years, this stand is ready on time for the inspection of these beds which are carried alone by Hopper Bros. & Co. in all the varieties of makes and finish.

G. C. VAN KIRK & CO.,

125 Third Avenue - Exposition Display Near the Music Stand, There has never been a display in any Exposition here that equaled this firm's re-fined exhibit of combination gas and electric fixtures. The styles shown cover all of the different periods of interior decoration as applied to fixture work. The finishes, which are especially fine, embrace mat gold, oxidized sliver, rich gilt, oxidized copper, dark polished steel, black from, polished brass, old brass, etc., etc. The electroliers and chandeliers will delight those who are searching for forms that are new and attractive and comprise the latest novelties. The head of the firm has brought to bear on his pusiness the ripe experience gained in a quarter of a century's connection with this line of goods, and has supplied many of the finest residences of Pittsburg with chandeliers of exclusive design, securing the contracts in competition with leading Eastern houses. The exhibit includes many original patterns of electric chandelier, ceiling frieze an ibracket lights, drop lights for parlor and library use and a splendid array of fine shades and reflectors.

FURNITURE AND CARPETS.

Pickering's as Usual to the Front With a Handsome Display. In the south gallery of the main building, directly facing the musicians—is the exhibit of Pickering's—Pittsburg's leading house furnishers, corner Penn avenue and Tenth street. The display consists of furniture, carpets, draperies, folding beds, etc., arranged in a manner that is alluring to the eye and reflects much credit upon the taste of the decorators. While the different goods shown are of the most elegant and substantial character—yet nothing is in sight which is not carried in stock. As many visitors to the Exposition come with the intention of purchasing household goods, Pickering's exhibit will so we to remind them to visit the store of this firm, where prices and terms will be made as satisfactory, to their purse as the goods are to their eye. In the south gallery of the main building, RAWSTHORNE ENGRAVING & PRINT. ING CO.

94 Fifth Ave, and 168-170 Second Ave. In the south gallery this firm makes an exposition of the actual process of wood en-graving (showing how fine book illustra-tions are made) and also the method of elections are made) and also the method of elec-trotyping. These matters, while of the greatest utility, are comparatively little known by the general public, and the Raws-thorne Company being the largest concern in those lines is best equipped for showing the processes in actual work. Their print-ing and binding establishment is one of the most complete in Pittsburg, and has ac-quired a reputation for first-class work, de-livered when promised, and able to compete in price with any.

AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHIC SUPPLIES.

W. S. Bell & Co., North Gallery, Those who enjoy the fascinating practice of amateur photography will be fully repaid by an inspection of this exhibit. Cameras and by an inspection of this exhibit. Cameras and lenses and all accessories are shown in many styles, embodying the most recent improvements and discoveries in the art. The firm has the agency for the "Kodak" and the "Knack" cameras, and the Eastman Company's photographic goods. Their store is 431 Wood street.

OPTICAL GOODS.

Bandsom - Exhibit of the Chessman Optica In the west end of the gallery this company shows an assortment of artificial eyes, opera and field glasses, microscopes, eyeglasses and their specialty, "the best $i speciacles on earth," which has made their company's name known through Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia. Nowhere can a time be more pleasantly spent, and those whose sight is not good will finit a visit to this exhibit or else to the store, at 42 Federal street, beneficial and proficable.

A Picture of the Exposition. Although not represented by an exhibit the work of the Pittsburg Photo-Engraving Company attracts considerable notice by the numerous pretty cards, artistic souvenirs and catchy little brochures presented to the visitors by most of the prominent exhibitors. Prominent among these is a fac-simile of Rosenbaum's Administration Building, printed in photo brown and gold.

Has an exhibit in the South gallery of photographs and portraits which are gems of photographic and portraiture arts. Mr. Dabbs has made a display at every fair and Exposition held in Pittsburg for 25 years. Close observers always notice an improve Close observers always notice an improvement in his pictures each year, although it cannot be marked or startling, as his work is invariably first-class and refined; but he is studying and learning all the time and his conceptions are certainly truer each year. No portrait painter that ever lived nor any photographer have shown better judgment as regards the best likenesss of the human face. The best portraits in the city to-day are either by himfor copied from one of his photographs. The crayon portraits of Judge Shiras and Major A. M. Brown are speaking likenesses.

Fire and Burglar Proof Safes,
The National Safe and Lock Company, of Cleveland, O., represented by Mr. W. E. Kelley, who is agent for Pittsburg, have on exhibition in machinery hall a full line of their different styles. These safes are of the latest designs and are practically smoke, fire, water and burglar proof. The spging packing plate of the doors is equivalent to an inside door.

Their jewelry safes have an 8-inch door with a 6-inch body and door. The burglar chests in this company's safes have a 25-inch front and a 2-inch body. A written guarantee with each safe, warranting it absolutely fire and burglar proof, is given to each customer. The safes displayed are of particularly handsome designs, and the exhibit is one which will interest all, comprising, as it does, safes for business and home use.

The Stevens Chair Co.

Occupy their old stand at west end of building. As usual their exhibit of folding and ing. As usual their exhibit of folding and invalid chairs is unique and valuable. Added to these are the many styles in office desks, which are specialties of this company. These desks are in high grades and low grades, but all without exception the best of their kind; moreover, they are at prices which bring them well within the reach of all. They are in all styles, and the varieties in the tops make one wonder if any new kind could be invented; but one thing is inevitable, and that is that any device that will add to the perfection of either the chairs or desks will be at once adopted by the Stevens Company, who have their main store at No. 3 Sixth street.

H. J. King's

Splendid display is quite near the music seats, and it contains everything beautiful, dainty and serviceable in the way of footwear for men, ladies and children. An especial point is made in men's English enamel bluchers, and patent leather bals and congress boots, and the best of it is they are handmade. The exquisite specimens of fine shoes in the newest modes are very alluring, and then there are the handsome, stylish makes for those who prefer a quieter mode in foot covering than the ultra fashions now prevailing. An exhibit like this deserves close inspection, for everything about it is as rich and attractive as novelties and finest materials and workmanship can produce.

The Celebrated New Home Sewing Machines.

These celebrated light running sewing machines are exhibited in the gallery. There the superior qualities of the different atyles are displayed by the Pittsburg agent, Mr. H. Carter, who has headquarters at 19 Sixth street. For simplicity, durability, ease of management, capacity of running, etc., the New Home has no rival, and their price is no higher than asked for inferior machines.

More Popular Than Ever.

If last night's scene is any criterion, Baker's popcorn, confectionery and lemonade will, if such a thing is possible, be more popular than ever. Baker's glit-edged maracaito chocolate creams and chocolate-dipped caramels are the best in the world. Only so per glass for pure lemonade made from lemons, granulated sugar and filtered water. Young and old can eat, drink and be merry for the next 40 days and nights.

Taylor & Dean's Exhibit.

In the main building near the music stand is the attractive exhibit of Taylor & Dean, whose offices and works are at 201 to 203 Market street. Special features are ornamental iron and wire work and ariside grill work in iron and brass for banks and private residences. It is wonderful the different articles which can be made from wire, and on exhibition they attract much attention.

The Exposition Restauran'.

Popular prices, quick service, clean and cheap lunches called forth praises from all visitors to the Exposition last evening. The lunch pavilion offers a place for a rest and refreshments at prices within the reach of everybody. Delicious Oriental coffse made and was for 150 typewriters.

Now what has earned for them this proud distinction? It is its permanent and perfect alignment; compact, symmetrical design; unequaled speed, with less movements to operate; the ease with which work can be inspected; excellent and durable workmanship! the radical departure in the matter of the ribbon feed in which all the surface is used, and two to four days' continuous writing are required to transfer the ribbon from one spool to the other; the quick and certain type-cleaning device; its line line-spacing mechanism, and its marked efficiency as a manifold instrument. Better work was never accomplished by any typewriting machine yet produced, and those who know these Smith Premiers the best are those who are the most enthusiastic about them. Mr. A. W. Koch is the manager of the Pittsburg office.

A PALATIAL ESTABLISHMENT,

John Dimling's Restaurant and Lunch Rooms, 409 and 411 Market Street. Exposition visitors are fortunate in having the above restaurant located so near the Exposition grounds. Undoubtedly no finer restaurant than Dimling's exists in Western Pennsylvania. The dining in Western Pennsylvania. The dining and lunch room extends 240 feet back of the confectionery and bakery departments, and with its mirrored walls, handsomely decorated ceilings and with interest of the confection presents a beautiful appearance. The best of lunches and meals are served at popular prices and polite waiters are in attendance. Mr. Dimling makes a specialty of fine confections, and his assortment is the most complete in the city. Taking it all in all Dimling's has every reason to be the popular place that it is with the general public and especially with the Exposition visitors.
