

THE DUKE AND DUCHESS OF DEVONSHIRE.

One would hardly think, to look at the of this column, that the living original is 60 years of age. She has had the advantage of that quiet, unemotional life which is enjoyed by the British aristocracy mainly because they are above all sordid cares, and do not concern themselves with the details of the work-a-day world in the least. Thus she looks probably 30 years less than she is. The demands of society, great as they are supposed to be, do not sap the vitality so much, after all, when the votary takes all possible care of the health, and is always studying the means of repairing the ravages of late hours and constant amusement.

This 60-year-old woman, who looks not more than 30, is the Duchess of Devonshire, she having lately married His Grace, the Duke of Devonshire, whose portrait is also shown. He is 59, but he looks a great deal older than his wife. Men do not seem to possess the secret of perpetual youth in the upper classes of Europe, which is an explanation of the fact that the Duke looks his age and some years more. Her Grace was formerly the Duchess of Manchester, but her husband died in 1890, and she became a bride for the second time last week. The Duke of Devonshire was long a friend of the Duke of Manchester and his Duchess. The latter has figured many years in the highest social circles of Paris and Something unusual in weddings was seen in the marriage of Miss Helen R. Gillespie to Mr. Barker C. Willson, last Thursday. The officiating elergyman was a Methodist, but he used the ritual of the Episcopal Church, with the ring. The bride is also a Methodist, but she admires the wedding service of the Episcopalians, and it was at her request that it was employed to make her a

The result of the lawn fete at the residence of Hill Burgwin, Esq., Hasell Hill, Hazelwood, was even better than was anticipated by the ladies who managed the entertainment. They cleared at least $500, and think they made rather more, all of which is to go toward furnishing the new Church of the Good Shepherd, Hazelwood. This is a splendid edifice, and the ladies intend that the furniture shall correspond. While it is a difficult matter to introduce novel features into a lawn fete, the Hazel-wood ladles succeeded in doing so last week. There were many different kinds of amuse-ment, so that the guests were not allowed honor. Pittsburgers still here are enjoying the occasion in a fitting manner.

Miss Ada Connelly, of Ridge street, entertain was cool enough to make light wraps pleasant at night, but in the afternoon it ning, of Wilkinsburg, were married Thursloope last Monday evening, the occasion bewas as balmy as only a perfect autumn da in the shelter of the Alleghenies can be.

The marriage of Miss Jennie W. Dixon, daughter of Mr. John W. McElrov, to Mr. William Rene is dated for Thursday evening, the 27th instant. Rev. George Hodges, D. D., will perform the ceremon at the bride's home, Walnut street, East End. The wedding will be a very quiet

That was a charming notion of one of the brides of last week in this vicinity, to decorate the whole house with the colors of her college society. The colors were pretty in themselves-apple green and white-and draped by skillful heads into garlands and loops, they produced an effect of subdued loveliness that provoked general admiration. The bride, Miss Della M. Chester, was a pretty picture herself, and her surroundings were in perfect barmony with her own appearance. The bridegroom was Rev. Charles L. Smith, of the First M. E. Church, of Brownsville, and as he is the son Christian Advocate, he is well known in Pitts. burg, as is the bride, as well as in McKeesport, which has been her home hitherto.

Miss Minnie Anderson, daughter of Mr W. N. Anderson, will be wedded to Mr. H.
N. Power next Wednesday evening. The ceremony will be performed by Rev.
George W. Chalfant, pastor of the Park Presbyterian Church, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. E. Means. Lemington avenue, East End.

The engagement is announced of Augustus P. Burgwin, Esq., to Miss Mildred Carlisle, daughter of Mrs. James Mandeville Carliale, of Washington, D. C.

AUTUMN'S SOCIAL MENTION.

Events in the Two Cities That Serve

Usher in the Gay Season.

The change from summer to autumn has made log fires a necessity at Cressoh, and a beautiful sight is presented on entering the botel to see the glare of the old-time fire-place. Among those to return home last week were: A. E. W. Painter, Nelson Perrine, of Bastimore, who occupied a private cottage all season; Lawrence Dilworth and family, and Mr. and Mrs. John Moorhead. Mr. Joseph C. Hend, cashier of the First National Bank of Latrobe, and his family are guests of Charles Donnelly. Hon. John Dean is a frequent visitor of the Mountain House. On the register are: George Shiras, Jr. and wife, S. M. Felton, President E. T. V. & G., who arrived in a special car with his family; Stephen W. White and J. K. Snoemaker and wife, Mr. and Mrs. C. Scaife with their daughter, Representative Ed. T. McNeeles, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence, Robert Siegfred, T. J. Keenan, Jr., Gilbert Rafferty, Jr., and F. L. Shallenberger. J. M. Swank, Secretary of the Iron and Steel Association of the United States, hoved into the Carnerie cottage Saturday and will occupy it for the remainder of the season. He received a cablegram from Andrew Carnegie giving him this privilege. Mrs. George Shiras, Jr., wife of the new Supreme Judge, gave a delightful card party Monday evening. Among those present were Mrs. Harry Darlington, Mrs. I. W. Dalnell, Mrs. A. E. W. Painter. Usher in the Gay Season. lightful card party Monday evening. Thompson and Miss Le Moyne, of Washington, Pa., and R. S. Fietcher, of Wheeling, were among numerous prominent people from other cities.

An enjoyable surprise party was tendered Miss Stella Everson at her home on Fortyfirst street, Lawrenceville, last Friday even-ing. The affair was under the direction of Miss Annie Harris, and the result reflected great credit on that young lady's abilities as great credit on that young lady's abilities as an entertainer. About 15 couples were present. Dancing, with vocal and instrumental music, formed the pieasures of the evening. An excellent supper was served at misnight. Among those present were the Misses Harris, Keally, Everson, Becker, Noble, Gunnings, Collins, Schultz, Bishl, Aiken, Craven, Monniain and Messrs. Mc-Pike, Johnston, Collins, Kerr, Mundall, Hamilton, Everson, Murray, Noesser, Schade, Blackford and McBride.

An interesting little brochure has bee prepared by Simeon Bissell, the well-known planist and organist of this city. Accordpianist and organist of this city. According to the preface of the author, it contains a few hints to students and other music lovers in the way of a few general musical items of information, and is also a dictionary of such words shud phrases as are found in music which the average pupil should study. It is well known that Mr. Bissell is as well able as anyone in the city to treat of the matters in his book, and it can be honestly said that it is most useful to the musical student as well as to some who consider themselves competent to teach the higher branches of music themselves.

A surprise party was given to Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Evans Thursday evening at their residence, 159 Center avenue. Dancing, vocal and instrumental music, together with vocal and instrumental music, to zether with a well-served luncheon, made the evening a very delightful one. The guests included: The Misses Mamie Evans Daisy Bream, May, Nettie and Mattie Brown, Clara Conners, Annie Steed, Maud Cannon, Mazy Crummy, Anna Bowles, Edna Evans, Carrie Grey, Bessie, Mattie and Annie Johnston, Messra, George and John Evans, Frank Le Goullon, C. EXPOSITION—"Her bright smile haunts me still," as she thanked me for taking her to the Exposition. She told me her visit had given her no end of pleasure, and I could see from her manner that she meant what she said.

The above are the theatrical attractions for this week.

All Off in a Bunch,

The first week of the season, as it may be justly called, has ended without dazzling the eyes or over-taxing the receptive facilities of any theater-goers. If it is true that no very brilliant theatrical animals were entered for last week's handicap, the theaters can with one exception congratilate themselves upon retting away together. Of course it may be urged that Mr. Keene should not be included as an element of a mediocre mass, and it is only right to admit that the tragedian is in himself a considerable power for artistic work. He, however, clouds his own brilliancy and disfigures the superb dramas which his repertoire includes by entrusting important roles to actors of small ability and experience. There was hardly a performance last week at the Duquesne Theater which was not more or less marred by the incompetency of a part of Mr. Keene's support. I do not call attention to this fact with the least desire to injure Mr. Keene, but rather with the faint hope that it may, with the accumulation of protests which is sure to pile up in his path as he proceeds, induce him to consider how serious a mistake he is making in not employing actors of ability to assist him in his landable undertaking of keeping Shakespeare before the public. Mr. Keene is undoubtedly a good enough actor to excite a far wider and more appreciative interest than he now does, if people were not frightened away from him by reports of the meager character of much of his support. Of course, Mr. Keene knows his own business best, and will make a good living no doubt going on in his present rut, but I honestly believe that he would make twice as much money and find twice as much pleasure in his profession if he aimed a little higher in his productions. entered for last week's handicap, the theaters can with one exception congratdiate

Liberality Pays the Manager, One of the best ways in the theatrical pusiness to make money is to spend money. Mr. Vance has made a great deal of money that went into the piece taught a great many others to come out. I mean that the policy of mounting a piece liberally, getting the best actors available for its interpretation, and not expecting in a general way to ex-tract $1 out of the public for 50 cents' worth of entertainment, is pretty nearly always profitable. After all it is only repeating in a large way the simple adage that honesty is the best policy.

Money Thrown Away. The way not to spend money is exemplified in the thing called "Telephonia," which was produced at the Opera House last week. Somebody or other dropped a good many dollars into that large and not particularly dollars into that large and not particularly well-favored bag of inanity. It is not easy to see how any sane person expects the public to receive as an entertainment such a crude and purposeless play as "Telephonia." From a pecuniary point of view it could only have one basis for success, namely, pretty women. Without them such a show becomes a bore as well as an offense against art and good sense.

One of the novelties of the season that has ust begun will be produced at this house this week in the shape of "Larry the Lord." in operatic comedy written by Messrs. Scottparble and Fred Maer. It is said and to ome extent the Eastern press has borne out the assertion, that the comedy is a most amusing one, and it does seem probable to expect that a piece in which so good a come-dian as R. E. Graham is the chief figure will be full of laughter, at least. Mr. Graham is be full of laughter, at least. Mr. Graham is a quaint and original comedian, whose methods are the most legitimate, I think, of any of the actors who have made the humorous side of comic opera a specialty. He is said to have in this new piece just the sort of character which suited him. But the play is said to be just as strong in its musical numbers as in anything else, and one of the vocal features of which much is expected is the new tropical song composed by Mr. Graham, which will be sung by him. The company supporting Mr. Graham includes a number of good actors, including Miss Home Weldon, The costumes provided are said to be maryels in their way, and the Home Wetton. The costumes provided are said to be marvels in their way, and the scenery contains some novel electrical effects as well as general spectacular beauty. Altecher, it seems fair to say that "Larry the Lord," has an inviting appearance.

Mr. Mansfield has a clever article in the North American Review, but as usual this eccentric actor depends more upon a smart ppearance than a substance of truth. He says, among other things, that the native American actor has no show here, being rowded out by the foreign imported article The New York Mirror properly calls attention to the inaccuracy of this statement. The reverse of what Mr. Mansfield says is getting to be so well understood as a truth on the other side that this season we shall have less foreign talent within our borders have less foreign talent within our borders than for many years past. I believe that the public, that is, I mean, the mass of theatergoers who really make an actor's success in this country, is absolutely impartial about nationality, providing only that the English language is spoken. A good actor, no matter where he was born, secures an audience us soon as he demonstrates that he can act, and have a play which moves, melts or amuses his auditors. strates that he can act, and have a play which moves, melts or amuses his auditors. Supposing Edwin Booth were to appear again, what foreign star could expect to draw the gigantic crowds this greatest of all transdians, a thoroughbred American, would attact? A manager of national reputation, an Englishman by birth, by the way, remarked to me the other day that the greatest money making scheme he knew would be to bring Mary Anderson back to the American stage. "The man who brings her back," said he "will make an immense fortune." The experience of all managers, in the last two years especially, has been that standard American stars were the most profitable.

The Alvin Theater. The popular farce comedians, Hallen and Hart, will begin a week's engagement at the Alvin Theater to-morrow night. They are to bring forward for the first time here as entirely new play. It is said to be of a finer grain and purpose than their familiar skit, "Later On." There is promised the same attractive songs and music, with more abundant and natural humor and a consistent, though airy, story upon which to hang it all. The story of the piece pivots on the it all. The story of the piece pivots on the helpless maneuverings of a well-intentioned old fellow, who is bursting with reform notions. The immoral drift of the world at large and his own little world in particular keeps him in a ferment of unrest which leads to a great many humorous complications. He is the aggressive head of several law and order leagues and reform societies, and is humorously bustling most of the time to elevate and purify the local current of social affairs. Mr. Hart interprets this role, which approaches strict comedy. Mr. Hallen's part is that of an ultra-fashionable sprig, whose years of discretion would not make much of a sum in arithmetic and whose most serious thoughts of life are concentrated upon clothes and the gentler sex. In the company are, besides the principals, John McWade, Molly Fuller, Fannie Bloodgood, Al Wilson, Donald Havold, Emma Seymour, Alice Carle, Adelaide Crawford, Mabel Nichols, Luiu Nichols, Harry Hilton and several others of individual value.

Grand Opera House. "The Vendetta," which comes to this house this week, was seen here last season and made something of a hit. It is a servational melo-drama written by D. K. Higgens.
It will be reinembered probably by mest theater-goers by the scene in which a opilision at sea is depicted with startling realism, but it is fair to say that "The Vendetta" as a drama has the merit of a clearly told story of deep, if ultra-sensational, interest.
The scenic effects, which show many European towns, such as Monte Carlo and Toulon, are said to be better than ever. Manager E. W. Varney has engaged to produce his play Henry Bergman, for the past five years leading support to W. H. Crane, Helen Terry, Helen Carlette, Harry Corson Clarke,
Harry Napler, Henry Testa and many others.
Lithan Western, the musical wonder, will appear during the Monte Carlo scene.

Donnelly and Girard in their well-known farce comedy, "Natural Gas," will be the attraction at this house this week. This piece is now in its fourth or fifth year.

Harry Williams' Academy. Who doesn't know "The Night Owls?" A who doesn't know "The Night Owls?" A variety season without them would be a pie all crust, a landscape without water or something equally uninteresting and monotonous. This year "The Night Owls" promise to give a number of novelties. Five musical students are said to be as clever as any that ever came for Comments. musical students are said to be as clever as any that ever came from Germany, and they will be supplemented by no less than 40 good looking young women who are well versed in the mysterious rites of song and dance, for which "The Night Owls" have long been famous. Miss Pauline Markham is the fair captain of this troup. A parade and spectacular drill of the aforesaid young women in the guise of Rad Hussars is another feature of the performance, which will close with a new burlesque called "Enchantment."

Davis' E en Musea This house offers this week astrong bill. At the request of nearly 100 medical experts and many members of the Pittsburg Medical College, Miss Virginia Knapp, the clever mind reader, has been re-engaged. In the curio hall will be found George Liable, the singer; Charles Duncan, well known as a motto singer; the Vidocques, Edna and John, sketch artists; Leopold and Green, clever musicians; Nellie and John McCarthy, sketch team; Miss Nettie Bond, a London serio-comic; Samson, the most powerful man in the country, and Miss Della Beck will be on hand with her 700 pounds of avoirdupois. The wax groupings, with several additions, will increase the interest already taken in them. In the theater the artists emaged are Collins and Monroe, eccentric Irishmen, and Mille, Zurandoski, the Russian operatic prima donna, and Gallaghe and Griffin in knockabout song and dance. This house offers this week a strong bill.

The World's Museum Theater, Mahomet, the wonderful horse that understands French, Spanish and English as well as such things as the multiplication table and the time of day will remain at this house next week. The performing goats are also booked to stay over. The youngest necromancer in the world, Master Eddie Albot, and John Edwards' musical family Albot, and John Edwards' musical family are among the other features at the Curio Hall. In the theater the Olympic Specialty Company will give a big entertainment. A few of the acts will be Harry Burns and Nina in their railway concert, called "The Conductors;" Miss Rames, the Southern nightingale; Clyde Philippi, the flying sailor, on the swinging perch; Quinn and Fordes and Carroll and Kane will provide some musical and comedy features as well as dancing.

Forepaugh's Circus Is Here. On Monday and Tuesday Forepaugh's circus will be in Allegheny at the ac customed stand. The quality of the circus is attested by its indorsement in the Eastern papers, the following being a very few brief ex-tracts from an extensive notice in the Boston daily News: "The Forepaugh show opens with The Fall of Nineveh,' by far the best yet of the circus shows. It equals "The Fall of Babylon,' and exceeds "The Fall of Pompeii,' which were stationary exhibitions. The ballet is were stationary exhibitions. The ballet is superior to the much advertised spectacular productions given in theaters. The Fall of Nineveh' has a plot telling of the prophecy of the destruction of the City of Jonah, the attack and victory of Sardanapalus, his triumphal procession, charlot and horse races in his honor, an Oriental slave market and other things. The circus proper, which follows, is bewildering enough. There are three rings and two stages, and to keep one's eyes open for the Dest thing going on keeps one busy, as something is going on in every one of them nearly all the time. Then comes the hippodrome races, which are exciting enough."

Harris' Theater. The successful musical comedy, "Our Irish Visitors," will be seen as this house this ter" is in four acts, with a scene to each act, said to be better than ever. Sam J. Rvan and Lottie Gilson head the company, supported by some clever people. Little Johnnie McKeever, America's younges violinist, will introduce his artistic specialty A Young Actress of Ability.

The rendering of "The Charity Ball" and "The Wife" at the Alvin Theater during the past week has been alluded to critically already in these columns. Mr. Frohmar ought to strengthen the company in one or two places, and as he saw the performance two places, and as he saw the performance on Friday night I guess he knows where the weak spots are. About Miss Drake's bright destiny there can be no doubt. She is the best of the young leading women the last season or two has brought forth. One thing particularly happy about her is that she is free from mannerisms, and is natural in almost all she does in tone, in facial expression, one of her strongest points, and in nesture. The Alvin's Latest Annex.

Manager Davis of the Alvin must have been a Turk in some other stage period of his existence, for his ideas of comfort and elegance in the way of furniture border upon the Oriental. You ought to see the upon the Oriental. You ought to see the superb spartment above the lobby he has fixed up for himself and Manager Hyde. The walls and ceiling are decorated in high relief molding, tinted in agreeably mild colors. The carpets are velvet, the sort you sink into at every step; the desks polished oak, and the chairs richly upholatered affairs of great dignity. The wooden mantel shelves are covered with brica-brac of all kinds; an ostrich's eag, Venetian glass, Dresden china and heaven knows what.

It is my piessant duty to mention this splendid addition to the Alvin Theater, because Mr. Davis with rare kindness to the ofttimes abused critic has devoted a table to him near the throne itself—a case of comforting the chastiser that the chastised is seldom charitable enough to afford.

HETBURN JOHNS. MANAGER VARNEY will put "The Vendetta

on for a run in New York during the month

HARRY CARSON CLARK, of Varney's Ven-detta Company, has signed a five years' con-tract with Manager Varney. A MAN and his wife who walked from Seattle to Chicago are on exhibition in that city, and "Biff" Hall wants to know with which company they went to the coast last

Hoyr's "A Temperance Town," iced the cleverest comedy ever written by this author, will be the attraction follow-ing "Larry the Lord" at the Duquesne Theater. THE first of the popular Wednesday nees at the Duquesne Theater will be given during "Larry the Lord" engagement. These matinees were extremely well patron-ized last season. MRS. JAMES BROWN-POTTER was landed in Boston on Saturday from Europe, and there is quite a fuss among the Hubites because she was not fumigated. She is in good health but looks very thin and frail. THERE are fewer cleverer actors in the character line than Thomas Q. Seabrooke. He has secured in "Isle of Champagne," a comic opera, a great vehicle to introduce his peculiar talents. The new comic opera hit is the joint work of Charles Byrne and Louis Harrison. E. CHONCEY JONES, of the Philadelphia

Grand, will soon publish a volume of his poems, somebody says. One would have thought the amiable and able Mr. Jones too busy and too healthy to write poetry, but a summer opera company has been known to drive men to worse things. THE Manchester Umpire says that John R. Rogers is known in English newspaper offices as "the Holy Terror," which reminds us that the style of manager Minnie Palmer found in her late husband is going or rather gone out of fashion. Roger's equal does not exist to day in the business. KATIR EMETT, in her new play the five-act Irish drams "Killarney," which was written especially for her by Con. J. Mur-phy, will follow Hallen & Hart at the Alvin. Pure Food in Congress

A bill has been introduced into Congress requiring baking powders containing ammonia or alum to be so branded. The bill should pass; then if people dose themselves with "absolutely pure" ammonia or alum when taking their meals, they will do it knowingly, not ignorantly as they do now. Such a law would affect nearly every baking powder in the market except Cleveland's-that does not contain a particle of ammonia or alum. Besides, every ingredient of Cleveland's baking powder is plainly printed on the label, information not given by other manufacturers.

The piece is pretty and it is spiendidly mounted and has scored a success in New York, where it was first produced at the Star Theater.

Miss Florence Bindley will present her comedy drama, "The Pay Train," at the Grand Opera House following "The Vendetta." The piece is one of intense interest, while the scenic effects are most realistic. Prominent among the latter is a railroad scene in which a full train of cars crosses the stage at full speed and is uncoupled in sight of the audience.

"Ir you are going to back horses this season," said Bob Graham, "by all means play operatic ones. 'Wang' is a corker: 'Tar and Tartar,' out of sight; 'Robin Hood,' right in it. But say, watch mine, it will be the greatest on earth. Place your money on 'Larry Lord,' a sure winner every time. By the way, have you seen the new operatic comedy?" HALLEN AND HART, it is said, will introduce a new character type to the stage in their new piece, "The Idea," in the person of a Blue Ridge Pennsylvanian, whose rising in-

THE comedians, Hallen and Hart ar spreading abroad a lithograph which daintily hits off the college craze of the day for things athletic, and some of its ludicrous effects. The subject is called "A Coilege Course," and represents the comedian in three humorous attitudes of exercising with miniature clubs. It may be the new piece satirizes this current fad in some droil fashion, and if so it is bound to be humorously appreciated by the average reader and student.

MR. WILLIAM HENRY FROST, of the New York Tribune, has received a letter from Mr. Hugo Lang, closely connected with the man-agement of the Passion Play at Oberammergau, which ought to put a cork in Dame Rumor's mouth as to its possible appearance at the World's Fair in Chicago. "You may at the World's Fair in Chicago. "You may give the most emphatic denial to the statement. Nothing could be further from the intentions and wishes of our people. To me it seems almostamusing, for I would as soon believe to see our Kofel being brought to Chicago. Knowing, however, that outsiders are not in the same position to judge, and that consequently such a statement would find believers, and naturally arouse the indignation of friends of Oberammer gau, I shall thank you to contradict the rumor as a groundless, and I should say, malicious invention. Not before 19.0, and nowhere else, you may rest assured, will the Oberammergauers again represent the Passion Play." For which we may be thankful.

Mr. Dunlar, the New York critic, writes

MR. DUNLAP, the New York critic, writes thus caustically about the attempt to make dramatic capital out of Homestead's un-happy troubles: "Homestead in '92" was instructed by Frank Noreross, an actor with money and pluck enough to hunch his play. He tells the episodes enacted at Homestead, but wanders into chaos almost Homestead, but wanders into chaos almost from the start, and cannot be accepted as a plausible pies for the Homestead strikers. The author has merely strung together a series of incidents, picked up at haphazard from misinformed or prejudiced newspaper reports, and they do not form a play that will even draw top-heavy houses. One of the amusing bits in this unique Labor play is High O'Donnell, audacionaly brought forward as a here by John E. Kellera, who neither looks, nor talks, nor acts like the little hair-oiled labor agitator, but who fired off quite as long speeches. The stage management was excellent, the supers forming themselves into mobs with great agility; the scenery was also very good, but the dialogue execrable."

A WORK OF MANY WEEKS, The Bering Sea Controversy Still in a Tar gled-Up Mess.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.-The secon phase of the Bering Sea arbitration ha been passed in safety, and closed yesterday with an exchange of cases between the agents of the principals. The preparation of the original case for the United States has largely engaged the attention o Secretary J. W. Foster. It embodies most minute historical collation of all the facts connected with the Russian ownership of Alaska, so far as they bear upon the question of maritime jurisdiction in Bering Sea and control of the seal fisheries. There is also an exhaustive analysis of the cor respondence early in the present century between the Governments of Great Britain and Russia, touching the question of juris-diction; a recital of the Russian ukase, reserving the waters of Bering Sea for the exclusive use of Russian fishermen and scalers, and a strong argument to show that the entire right of jurisdiction asserted by Russia was acquired by the United Stater under the terms of the treaty of cessin negotiated by Secretary Seward in 1867.

All the ammunition is not exhausted, ye it may safely be assumed that the representatives of the United States have reserved sufficient material to enable them to make a strong counter case. This will b the next or third phase of the arbitration Senator Morgan, the only one of the two United States arbitrators now in this coun try, has been supplied with a copy of British case, and the representatives of the United States Government have already begun to scrutinize the documents with a view to preparing the counter case, or reply as it may be termed, and this latter work is likely to occupy their attention for many
