The Cholera News From New York Alarms All Classes in Washington.

THE COMING G. A. R. CAMP

Liab to Be Abandoned, Many Fearing Its Injudiciousness.

THE SITUATION IS VERY GRAVE

For All the People of the District as Well as the Visitors.

DAMPNESS AND MALARIA RAMPANT

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—Great excitement was caused here today by the announcement that there have been five deaths from Asiatic cholera in New York, the first of them occurring on the 8th instant, and all of them concealed until today. The health authorities of New York are denounced on all sides for this concealment, as it was promised when the cholera first reached the shores of the United States that in case it should effect a landing all the facts should be given to the public at once and constantly.

Surgeon General Wyman expressed much surprise that the cholera should have existed for more than a week in New York without the fact becoming generally known, and could conceive of no reason for concealment unless there were a doubt that the disease was really cholera of the Asiatic kind. Secretary Foster was also greatly astonished when he received the news, but while there was so little known in regard to the disease he would not feel disposed to discuss the matter in a critical way. There was nothing in the reports to indicate that the deaths could be of persons who had recently arrived from foreign ports, or that they would be traced to contact with such persons.

Little Aid From the Government.
It would seem at first jump that the cases were of domestic origin and from causes similar to those which produce the plague in India, Turkey and Russia, but little good food and much bad dirt. What the Government could do to prevent the internal distribution of the disease was problematic, as the interior quarantine would depend chief on the action of the municipal action, but assuredly nothing that the general Government could do to assist the States would be left undone. Meaning no vigilance would be relaxed at the ports or on the Canadian border.

Naturally, the people in the greatest state of alarm are the promoters of the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, which begins next Monday. They have been a long time in the country since the advent of the cholera, fearing that before the date for assembling of the grizzled veterans, the contagion would get a foothold on the soil of the United States. This afternoon the blow fell, and the local enthusiasts are this evening in a condition of mental and moral collapse.

The Vim Taken Out.
On the very evening of the lighting of the campfires, the dread news that the cholera is not only at our doors, but inside of our camp, has taken all the vim out of the district workers and of the advance guard, or skirmish line, of the visitors. They know that the meager reports of this afternoon in regard to the cholera in New York will be supplemented tomorrow morning with hundreds of columns of alarming matter, printed in every part of the country, and what the effect will be no one of them pretends to guess.

They fear that even at this eleventh hour the whole scheme will have to be abandoned. They hold their breath, and are afraid to speak an account of anxiety to know what is to come next. The situation is as grave as it probably can be for the people of the district and for all who contemplate coming on to the great meet. It is expected that there will be at least 150,000 and possibly 200,000 visitors here. The mere thought of the result of the announcement during their stay of the presence of a single case of cholera can be imagined.

Feasibility of a Postponement.
Again, should the cholera break out, other cities would at once quarantine against Washington, and the district would be confronted with the duty of keeping the visitors in a hospital in the city. The possibilities of the situation are such that some of the prime movers in the organization of the great encampment privately admit that to do otherwise than postpone the meeting to another year would be injudicious, in view of the reports of today from New York. The rainy weather has set in. The torrents of last night left the commons and parks, used for tenting grounds and barracks, waterlogging in many places, and to-day portions of them are bogs. The swamps near the monument grounds, where nearly 20,000 persons are to be crowded in flimsy barracks, are filled with water. Vegetation, that has been too dry to decay during the long drought, will in a few days be rotting in stagnant water and filling the air with malarial.

Precautions Before Sentiment.
Some of the less thoughtful ones insist that the encampment season will be at an end before there could be any possibility of an outbreak of the cholera, but these forget that the presence of a single case would be almost as disastrous as the presence of a hundred cases. It is possible that within the next few days a quarantine will be instituted against New York, and with this serious condition besetting the most populous city of the country, it will be an exceedingly serious movement to bring 200,000 strangers into the capital from all parts of the country, New York included, with thousands that must pass through that city to reach Washington.

Every one is slow to say one word that would place an obstacle in the way of the annual meeting, with its accompanying enjoyment of the fast thinning ranks of the veterans of the war, but in a crisis like that which confronts the country and the capital, it is pretty unanimously admitted that no sentiment should be allowed to interfere with the most rigorous precautions against the spread of the contagion that has sneaked into New York, despite the combined efforts of the general and the State governments.

THE READING-PENNS. WAR.

No More Coal Cars of One Road to Be Accepted by the Other.

POTTSVILLE Sept. 14.—Orders have been received by the train master in charge of the mining region branches of the Reading and Lehigh railroad companies not to accept any more empty coal cars from the Pennsylvania company at any of the transfer points.

The only coal now being transferred to the Pennsylvania is contained in a few stray cars, which are loaded before the 12th, and which are just reaching the transfers. Pennsylvania officials say they have received no orders from headquarters, and are offering empty cars to the Reading the same as usual, but they are not being taken from the transfer sidings.

"TID-BITS."

EXPOSITION.—"He is well paid that is well satisfied." No person can visit the Exposition and come away dissatisfied. The management has provided a feast of good things for its patrons.

EXPOSITION.—"I have no other but a woman's reason, I think it is so, because I think it is so." How different when you are in the position of a woman, know from personal knowledge, having been there, that as a pleasant resort, it is as merry as the day is long.

EXPOSITION.—"I shall not take mine ease in nine tenths of our course you should!"

What a position! How different when you are in the position of a woman, know from personal knowledge, having been there, that as a pleasant resort, it is as merry as the day is long.

EXPOSITION.—"For you and I are past our dancing days." That is no reason, however, why you should not attend the Exposition. You will not be called upon to trip the "light fantastic toe," but we promise that you will "dance for joy" for having gone to the Exposition.

(Something new to-morrow.)

THE VETERANS AT WASHINGTON.

Half Rates by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic will be held at Washington, September 12 to 18, 1892. The occasion will undoubtedly attract the largest number of veterans ever assembled on a similar occasion, and the review will be the most imposing demonstration ever witnessed in the country since the historic review of the army in 1863. It will be the event of a life cycle, as never again will there be so large a gathering of old soldiers in any city of the land.

In order that everyone may witness the grand spectacle the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets to Washington from all principal ticket stations on its system, September 12 to 20, valid for return until October 10, 1892, at a single rate, and the same rate will be allowed on these tickets at stations south and east of and including Harrisburg.

Men's Back Gowns—City Worsteds for $7.50.

We have about 1,400 suits and have placed them all in our well-lighted basement. Now anyone that wants a nice back gown to wear to let him walk straight into our basement. These suits are sold all over the city for $18 and $20 here you can have a choice for $7.50. Sale starts Thursday, September 15, at 8 o'clock. In our well-lighted basement, P. C. C. C.
