

LADIES AT THE NETS.

Good Tennis Furnished by Them in the Closing Tournament.

A GRAND CLOSING OF THE SEASON.

How the Players Are Working Their Way to the Final Round.

THE TOURNEY OF THE WILKINSBURG A. A.

Yesterday afternoon the courts of the Pittsburgh Club on Cass street were the center of attraction to the admirers of the game.

It is seldom that an opening day attracts as did that of yesterday and the success of the tourney is an assurance that it merits the attention that is being given to it.

Yesterday was not an ideal day for tennis. The temperature was about right for the hard work involved, but there was too much wind, which at times prevented an accuracy of play that is necessary in critical moments.

Good Players at the Nets.

Miss Lewis and Miss McKennan were the first to commence play. Both played an earnest game, but Miss McKennan was the stronger player of the two and won two sets rather easily.

Miss Denniston and Miss Darlington started in shortly after Miss McKennan and Miss Lewis. Miss Denniston played a strong game, allowing Miss Darlington but four games in the two sets.

Miss Ewing, however, took two sets, but not until Miss Denniston had won three games in the first set and six in the second.

Miss Ewing, however, pulled ahead and captured the next two sets and the match. Miss Potter was the only one who worked her way into the first set, and she did it with an ease that makes the chances for any one else winning the first prize look slim.

The first to meet Miss Potter was Miss Hughes, who got over her nerves in the first set, but yesterday she was unable to manage the balls as she desired and Miss Potter was never pressed.

Miss Potter reached the Finals. Unfortunately Miss McKennan could not finish the match, and the last antagonist Miss Potter met over the net was Miss Roberts, who had defeated Miss Murdoch in the first round rather easily.

AFTER CARNEGIE'S STRIKERS.

A Representative of a Cleveland Mill Offers Employment to Some of the Men—They Didn't Accept the Positions—Many Have Secured Places.

A representative of the Union Mills, of Newburg, near Cleveland, O., has been in the city for two days among the thirty-third street strikers endeavoring to get them to go to work to fill vacancies in their works.

The representative of the firm was introduced among the strikers at Thirty-third street, but failed to find anyone willing to leave the fight here for the positions offered.

The Amalgamated officials declared that the positions were perfectly legitimate and it would be all right for anyone who wished to accept them.

"Some of the men have secured better positions than they held before and will never return to the Carnegie mills. We cannot tell the exact number who are now employed until the general roll call is taken."

"Fully a hundred men, possibly two hundred, have obtained positions elsewhere," said R. K. Warren, last night. "Some of the men have secured better positions than they held before and will never return to the Carnegie mills."

"The Press Committee said: 'It is 'hoss and 'hoss' with us and the Cleveland men who are out, for if we send any men there to take their positions it will be only a natural result for them to come here and work against us in the Carnegie mills.'"

There were no new developments yesterday in the coal miners' strike on the Monongahela river.

I. N. Bunton, of Joseph Walton & Co., in talking of the situation last night, said the operators are indifferent as to the result of the strike, there being sufficient coal on hand at present.

Mr. Bunton thinks the demands made upon the men are reasonable, and that the miners will accede to them without giving trouble.
