Taking Up the Homestead Cases.

The cases against the Homestead people were before the grand jury yesterday, but there will be no returns until next week.

The grand jury sent for John Campbell, Superintendent of the Postal Telegraph Company, yesterday, and asked him to produce certain telegrams that passed between certain individuals during the Homestead trouble. Mr. Campell refused to furnish the telegrams until he went into court and asked Judge Kennedy if he would be compelled to do so. He explained to the Court that the company had certain rules terbidding any of its officials to divulge its business; that these were private messages and he did not desire to violate the rules unless he was compelled to. Judge Kennedy thought he had better furnish copies of the desired messages, and at the request of Mr. Campbell made an order to that effect.

A true bill was found yesterday in the case of Frank E. and Alice C. Dean, charged by Agent Doreste, of the Anti-Cruelty Society, with misdemeaner.

Nearly Frozen to Death.

Last February an 11-year-old girl named Emma Abbey, who was living with the Desns in Spring Garden borough, ran away. It is charged that the defendants made no effort to find the girl. She left their house on a Friday and on Sunday she was found under the porch of 'Squire Mossick's house in the borough. She was poorly clad and almost frozen to death. She was removed to the Allegheny General Hospital where it was found necessary to amputate one foot and part of another. Suit was then entered against the Deans by Agent Dorente.

SUBSCRIBERS ASKED TO PAY UP.

More Money Needed to Pay the Debts of the Pittsburg Company, Limited.

Suits were entered yesterday by Frank W. Smith, Morton Hunter and Theodore Doerflinger, liquidating trustees of the Pittsburg Company, limited, against Mayor H. I. Gourley, ex-Sheriff McCandless, Theo-dore Doerflinger, J. S. Foster and George B. Knox. The papers were filed by F. W. Smith and Morton Hunter as attorneys for the liquidating trustees.

The actions are to recover unnaid subscriptions for capital stock in order to satisfy the claims of creditors. It is stated that the defendats in 1888 formed a limited partnership association named the Pitts-burg Company, Limited. The defendants all subscribed, it is asserted, for shares of the capital stock at their par value of $50 the capital stock at their par value of 500 per share. The company was dissolved in May, 1891, when the plaintiffs were appointed liquidating trustees to wind up its business. The company's available assets, it is now asserted, will not meet its indebtedness, and it is necessary therefore to collect the unpaid subscriptions for the capital stock. To that and the suits were brought. The claims are: J. S. Foster, $1,350; Theodore Doer-flinger, $1,764 50; A. E. McCandless, $450; Mayor Gouriey, $1,000, and George B.

READY

Miss Potter and Miss Chambers to Battle Across Nets To-Day.

SEVERAL HARD FOUGHT SETS. The Mixed Doubles Ready to Be Finished

This Afternoon. THE LAST TOURNAMENTS OF THE SEASON

Miss Chambers yesterday at the open cournament of the Pittsburg Tennis Club, defeated Miss M. Ewing in the semi-finals of the singles and to-day will play against Miss Potter of Wilkinsburg, for the first prize. Miss Ewing, although she played a good game, was not in it with Miss Chambers, but she fought hard and did not give up until the last stroke was made. If the round were to be judged by the first set, Miss Ewing lacked steadiness more than anything else, but she took the second set by hard work and in the third pressed Miss Chambers to the end.

Miss Ewing plays rather a slow game, seldom getting to the net, never taking the ball on the volley unless forced to do so, and sticking close to the base line. It was her inability to reach the balls placed by Miss Chambers are the value. close to her feet or driven along the "alley" that lost her the last set. Miss Ewing, however, has improved greatly during the season, and was very successful in her lobbing.

Miss Potter's Formidable Opponent. In Miss Chambers Miss Potter has a for-midable opponent. Yesterday she was not at her best, since she was suffering from a slight indisposition, but she played a strong game. While she had not to deal with a speedy opponent, she showed on several occasions, when Miss Ewing did make a rapid return, that she is equal to almost any occasion that may arise. She has an excellent stroke, plays with judgment, does not get flustered, judgment, does not get flustered, and covers her court so well that it will be difficult to place the ball beyond her reach. The final match to-day between Miss Potter and Miss Chambers, will, therefore, be the best round of the tournament, and it would not be surprising if it resulted in a close victory. Both of the young ladies play cautiously, both are far above the average lady players of the vicinity and both are anxious to win the pretty watch that has been provided for a first prize by the committee.

There were two defaulting couples in the mixed doubles which were played down to the finals vesterday, but the other contests made up for those that had to be forfeited. made up for those that had to be forleited.
Miss McKennan and Mr. Moorhead worked their way into the finals as also did Miss M. Ewing and Mr. Vaill. In the two rounds which Miss McKennan and Mr. Moorhead won, Miss McKennan played an excellent game. She made several very pretty smashes at the net and was the recipient of frequent applause on the part of the audience which was much larger of the audience, which was much larger than on the first day. Their first opponents were Miss Roberts and Mr. Pier, and they played a good game. Their principal diffi-culty scemed to be in getting the ball over the net. Miss Roberts made several brilliant plays, and it could not be said that the defeat of herself and partner was due to her misplays. In fact, it was noticeable throughout the day that the drives out of court and the netted balls were made by the Miss Ewing and Mr. Vaill Win. In the match between Miss G. Ewing an Mr. Coster and Miss McKennan and Mr. Moorhend, Mr. Coster played a great game and again demonstrated the fact that his play has greatly improved of late.

By the default of their opponents, Miss Chambers and Mr. R. Reed and Miss M. Ewing and Mr. Vaill came together is the semi-finals, and the latter couple won after three sets had been played. Neither of the young ladies were very fresh, having just finished their round in the singles, but they played a strong game. The first set was close, and was won only after the games close, and was won only after the games were deuce by Miss Ewing and Mr. Vaill. Then their opponents took a "love" set, and the third set was close to the end, Miss Ewing and Mr. Vaill winning by a score of 6-4. Mr. Vaill played agreat game and to-day he and Miss Ewing will give Miss McKennan and Mr. Moorhead a hard fight for the first prize. The cames will commende prompts.

The committee has provided a very handsome list of prizes. For the first in the ladies' singles, is a pretty lady's watch. The second prize is a gold top hat pin. In the mixed doubles, the ladies will get a gold top comb and silver clasps for first and second, and the gentlemen will receive a silver hat marker and a silver necktie clasp.
