SPIDERS IN PALACES

The lower of Perseverance Taught by Solomon's Illustration.

TALMAGE'S LAST SELMON IN ENGLAND

LENDON, Sept. 18.—This ends the closing week of Dr. Talmage's sojourn abroad. His farewell sermon to-day was preached from the text Proverbs xxx., 28: "The spider taketh hold with her hands and is in kings' palaces."

Permitted as I was a few days ago to attend the meeting of the British Scientific Association, at Edinburgh, I found that no paper read had excited more interest than that by Rev. Dr. McCook, of America, on the subject of spiders. It seems that my talented countryman, banished from his pulpit for a short time by ill-health, had in the fields and forests given himself to the study of insects. And surely if it is not beneath the dignity of God to make spiders, it is not beneath the dignity of man to study them. We are all watching for phenomena. A sky full of stars shining from January to Janmany calls out not so many remarks as the blazing of one meteor. A whole flock of robins take not so much of our attention as one blundering but durting into the window on a summer eve.

Unheeded Lessons in Common Things. Things of ordinary sound, and sight, and occurrence, fail to reach us, and yet no sshopper ever springs up in our path, no moth ever dashes into the evening candle, no mote ever floats in the sunbeam that ours through the crack of the window pours through the crack of the window shutter, no harmacle on ship's bull, no burr on a chestnut, no l'arpet clinging to a rock, no rind of an artichoke but would teach us a lesson if we were not so stupid. God in his libble sets forth for our consideration the lib, and the snowflake and the locust, and the stork's nest and the hind's foot, and the libron borcalls, and the ant hills.

In my text inspiration opens before us the gate of a palace, and we are inducted smid the pomp of the throne and the courtier, and gate of a palace, and we are inducted amid the pomp of the throne and the courtier, and white we are looking around upon the magnificence, inspiration points us to a spider plying its shuttle and weaving its net on the wall. It does not call us to regard the grand surroundings of the palace, but to a solemn and carnest consideration of the fact that "the spider taketh hold with her hands, and is in kings' palaces."

It is not yery certain what was the particular species of insect spoken of in the text, but I shall proceed to learn from it the exquisiteness of the Divine mechanism. The King's Chamberlain comes into the palsee, and tooks around and sees the spider on the wall and says: "Away with that intruder," and the servant of Solomon's palace comes with his broom and dashes down the need, saying: "What a loathsome thing it."

But under microscopic inspection I But under microscopic inspection I but under microscopic inspection I is more wondrous of construction than the embroideries on the palace wall, and it vilhoistery about the windows.

The Wonders of the Spider. All the machinery of the earth could not take anything so delicate and beautiful as he prehensile with which that spider lutches its prey, or as any of its eight eyes. e do not have to go so far up to see the ower of God in the tapestry hanging ound the windows of beaven or in the rises or charlots of fire with which the dyday departs, or to look at the mountain singing out its sword-arm from under the untile of darkness until it can strike with a scimetar of the lightning. I love better study God in the shape of a fly's wing, in a formation of a flsh's scale, in the snowy hiteness of a pond lily. I love to track His cotsteps in the mountain moss, and to hear its voice in the hum of the reflects, and scover the rustle of His robe of light in the south wind.

On, tols wonder of Divine power that can und a habitation for God in an apple blosmo, and time a bee's voice until it is fit for a eternal orchestra, and can say to a firer. Let there be light," and from holding incean in the hollow of his hand goes with to find heights, and depths, and high, and breadth of omnipotency in a wind and dispand dispands to the hollow of the stand dispands.

op, and dismounts from the chariot of dewdrop, and dismounts from the charlot of midnight hurricane to cross over on the suspension bridge of a spider's web. You may take your telescope and sweep it across the beavens in order to behold the glory of God; but I shall take the lear holding the spider, and the spider's web, and I shall bring the microscope to my eye, and while I gaze and look, and study, and am confounded, I will kneed down in the grass and cry. Great and marvelous are Thy works, Lord God Almighty?"

A Lesson of Humble Industry. Again, my text teaches me that insignificauce is no excuse for inaction. This spider said: "I can't weave a web worthy of this great palace; what can I do smid all this gold and embroidery? I am not able to make anything fit for so grand a place, and gold and embroidery? I am not able to make anything fit for so grand a place, and so I will not work my spinning jenny." Not so said the spider. "The spider taketh hold with her hands." Oh, what a lesson that is for you and me! You say it you had some great sermon to preach, if you only had a great any to marshal, if you only had a constitution to write, if there was some tremendous using in the world for you to do—then you would show us. Yes: you would show us. What if the Lovite in the ancient temple had refused to shuff the candle because he could not be a high priest? What if the humming bird should refuse to sing its song into the ear of the honey suckle because it cannot, like the engie, dash its wing into the sun? What if the rain drop should refuse to descend because it he not a Niagara? What if the spider of the text should refuse to move its shuttle because it cannot weave a Solomon's robe? A way with such foily. If you are lazy with the one talent, you would be lazy with the one talent, you would be lazy with the one talent, you would be lazy with the one talent, pinc annot lift the calf he never will have strength to lift the ox. In the Lord's army there is order for promotion; but you cannot be a General until you have been a Captain, a Lieutenant and a Colonel. It is stop by stop, fieth by field, it is stroke by stroke that our Christian character is builted. Therefore he content to do what God commands you to do. God is illical. Therefore be content to od commands you to do. God is sed to do small things.

Repuisiveness No Bar to Aspiration. Again, my text teaches me that repulsive es and loathsomeness will sometimes climb up into very elevated places. You would have tried to have killed the spider that Solomon saw. You would have said: "This is no place for it. If that spider is determined to weave a web, let it do so down in the cellar of this palace, or in some dark ungbon." Ah! the spider of the text could be discouraged. It clambered on and imbed up, higher, and higher, till after awhile it reached the King's vis-

The Church of Christ is a palare. The ing of heaven and earth lives in it. It is a primary palare—the Church of Go is; and at, sometimes, unseemly and loatusome yet, sometimes, unseemly and loatusome things creep up into it—evil-speaking, and rancer, and slander, and backbiting and abuse, crawling up on the walls of the Church, splinning a web from arch to arch, and from the top of one communion tankard to the top of another communion tankard. Churchus palace in which there ought only to be light, and love, and pardon, and grace; yet a spider in the palace! House ought to be a castle. It ought to be yet a spider in the palace!

Home ought to be a castle. It ought to be the residence of everything royal. Kindness love, peace, patience and forbestance ought to be the princes residing there; and yet sometimes dissipation crawls up into that home, and the jealous eye comes up, and the scene of peace and plenty becomes the scene of domestic jargon and dissonance. You say: "What is the matter with the home?" I will tell you what is the matter with it. A spider in the palace.

What Perseverance Will Do.

What Perseverance Will Do. Again, my text teaches me that persever ance will mount into the King's palace. It must have seemed a long distance for that spider to climb in Solomon's splendid residence, but it started at the very foot of the wall and went up over the panels of Lebanon wall and went up over the panels of Lebanon cedar, higher and higher, until it stood higher than the highest throne in all the nations—the throne of Solomon.

And so God has decreed it that many of those who are down in the dust of sin and dishonor shall gradually attain to the King's palace. And God hath decided that though you may be weak of arm, and slow of tongue, and be struck through with a great many mental and moral dejects, by His almighty grace you shall yot arrive in the King's palace—a palace in which God is the King and the angels of heaven are the cup bearers.

The spider crawling up the wall of Solomon's paince was not worth looking after or considering, as compared with the fact that we, who are worms of the dust, may at last ascend into the palace of the King Immortal.

A paince means splendor of apartments.

Now, I do not know where heaven is, and I do not know how it looks, but, if our bodies Prove that There are Infinite Wonders in Despised Objects.

CREDIT IS DUE TO HUMBLE WORK

do not know how it looks, but, if our bodies are to be resurrected in the last day, I think heaven must have a material splender as well as a spiritual grandeur. A palace also means splender of associations. The poor man, the outcast cannot get into Windsor Castle. But in the place of which I speak we may all become residents, and we shall all be Princes and Kin's. We may have been beggars, we may have been wandering and lost as we all have been, but there we shall take our regal power.

The Splendor of the Banquet Board. A palace means splendor of banquet There will be no common ware on that table. There will be no unskilled musicians at that entertainment. There will be no scanty supply of fruit or neverage; but who can tell the untold wealth of that banquet? I supply of fruit or beverage; but who can tell the untold wealth of that banquet? I do not know whether John's description of it is literal or figurative. A great many wise people tell me it is figurative; but prove it. I do not know but that it may be literal. I do not know but that it may be literal. I do not know but that there may be real fruits plucked from the tree of life. I do not know but that Christ referred to the real fuse of the grape when He said that we should drive hew wine in our Father's kingdom, but not the intoxicating stuff of this world's hrewing. I do not say it is so; but I have as much right for thinking it is so as you have for thinking the other way. At any rate it will be a glorious banquet.

Years ago, with lanterns and torches, and a guide, we went down in the Mammoth Cave of Kentucky. You may walk it miles and see no smilight. It is a suspendous place. Some places the roof of the cave is lob feet high. The grottoes filled with weird echoes, cascades 'alling from invisible height to invisible depth, Stalagmites rising up from the floor of the cave—stalactites descending from the roof of the cave, joining each other, and making piliars of the Almighty's sculpturing. There are rosettes of amethyst in hails of gypsum.

As the guide carries his lantern ahead of you, the shadows have an appearance superatural and spectral. The darkness is fearful. Two people, getting lost from their guide only for a tew hours, years ago, were demented, and for years sat in their insanity.

Death Compared to a Vast Cavern.

Then, by kindling one of the lanterns and placing it in a cleft of the rock, there is a re-flection cast on the dome of the cave, and placing it in a cleft of the rock, there is a reflection cast on the dome of the cave, and there are stars coming out in constellations—a brilliant night heavens—and you involuntarily excaim: "Beautiful beautiful!" Then he takes to lantern down in other depths of the cavern and wanders off, until he comes up from behind the rocks gradually, and it seems like the dawn of the morning and it seems like the dawn of the morning and it seems like the morning, and soon the gloom is all gone, and you stand congratulating yourself over the wonderful spectacle.

Well, there are a great many people who look down into the grave as a great cavern. They think it is a thousand miles subterraneous, and all the echoes seem to be the voices of despair, and the cascades seem to be the falling tears that always tail, and the gloom of earth seems coming up in stalagmite, and the gloom of the eternal world seems descending in the stalactite, making pillars of indescribable horror. The grave is no such place as that to me, thank God! Our divine guide takes us down into the great caverns, and we have the lamp to our feet and the light to our path, and all the echoes in the ritts of the rock are anthems, and all the falling waters are fountains of salvation, and, after awhile, we look up, and behold! the cavern of the tomb has become a king's star chamber.

And, while we are looking at the pomp of it, an everlasting morning begins to rise, and all the tears of earth crystallize into stalagmite, rising up in a pillar on the one side, and all the store the salectite, making a pillar on the other side, and you push side, and all the glories of heaven seem to be descending in a stalactite, making a pillar on the other side, and you push against the gate that swings between the pillars, and, as that gate flashes open, you find it is one of the 12 gates which are 12 pearls. Biessed be God, that through this Gospei the mammoth care of the sepulcher has become the illumined star chamber of the King! Oh, the palaces! the eternal palaces! the King's palaces!

Whisky Is to Blam . Whisky is to Blam.

On June 1, 1892, I weighed 107 pounds and was suffering from indigestion. Had tried many physicians and much medicine. My last physician advised me to use a pure rye whisky and recommended Klein's "Silver Age." I have used four bottles since then and am rapidly gaining in flesh and feel in excellent spirits. My weight is 138 pounds. I am convinced that "Silver Age" whisky is pure and good and believe it restored me my pure and good and believe it restored me my nealth. J. J. McLuckles.
