A dispatch from Quebec recently stated that Ferdinand Allard, a blacksmith of that city, had succeeded in producing a tempered copper as hard as steel. When this dis-patch was shown to Mr, Sager he declared that Allard's process was a mere hammering process.

About a year ago Peter Johnson, of Dassel, Minn., claimed to have discovered a process for tempering copper to the hardness of steel. Nothing has been heard of his invention since.

"Tempered copper will never supplant tempered steel to a general extent, notwithstanding the many advantages which it is said to possess," said the editor of the Iron Age. "There has been talk to the effect that a genuine and successful process for tempering copper would revolutionize the world. Such talk is visionary. Copper costs too much to take the place of steel, except to a limited extent. There was the same talk when aluminium or aluminum was discovered, but aluminium has fallen somewhat flat, and the manufacturers of that metal now have to scramble to get their product on the market even at 50 cents per pound. It has been found by ex-periments that aluminium does not possess enough strength for structural purposes. It is too light to be strong.

Fields for the Tempered Metal.

"I have never seen any of this so-called tempered copper about which there has intely been so much wild talk by semiscientists. Tempered copper, in is way, no doubt, will prove a valuable metal, and the extent of its value can only be determined by experiments, which may reach out in any directions. "Of late, the principal experiments in tempering copper have been conducted by the scientists for the electrical companies, but with what results are not known, because the experiments have been kept a secret. Telephone companies are already what is called a hard-drawn copper wire of great strength, of Yankee manufacture. very soft copper wire would make the best conductor, but it would not be able to sustain its own weight, unless strung between poles set closely together. If a tempered copper wire can be made that will string in long loops, thus saving poles, and will yet be a sufficiently good conductor, a wide field for profitable manufacture will no doubt be opened up. "Highly tempered copper might be used in place of the Babbitt metal over railway axles, which decreases friction to a minunum, were it not for the fact that the Bab bitt possesses what may be called an unetuous property, which I suspect tempered copper would lack.

Tempered copper would have oue deeided advantage-it would not rust, and this advantage would be most valuable in knives, forks and kitchen utensils. But knives, forks and a stanger from the acci-there would be the danger from the acci-ductal contract with acctic acid. In damp weather copper is covered with a green de posit.

Some of Its Probable Uses.

"The chief use of tempered copper would likely be in electrical appliances, and its value there would have to be established by experiments. Tempered copper might be good for armor, but even there very elabprate experiments would be needed to settle its superiority, and the process of tempering copper would first have to be perfected. Tempered copper might be used in vehicles tor boxes or wheels, but so much progress been made in the manufacture of steel sutky wheels that there seems to be little chance to improve on the present wheel, which is so light as to reduce friction to an apparent minimum.

There is one direction in which the tempered copper would undoubtedly be used to advantage, and that is for marine eeble pupil of the Republican party. story of Cleveland's one term is: 'He is not as had as his party.' But he is a demagogue, if with a different lot of questions from other demagogues. His disgraceful episode with the British Minister showed that he was capable of insulting the Na tion's guest as well as the guest of his friend's table.

Hard on Grover and Steve. "He was three years finding out that the tariff was a grievance and when it broke him down he had a protection platform made for this year, which was reported by Vilas and Jones, but the inflammatory convention would not demagogue with him, and declared in favor of scuttling the Nation forthwith. Such a man, with his diseased sensitiveness and fat and dropsical body, may either turn out a Henry VIII. o leave the office to that Illinois windbag Stevenson, whom every business man looks upon with contempt. To turn the country over to the solid South and the foreign anarchists would be to give away our birthright. The election of Harrison will forever end the solid South and raise the section to the dignity of tol-eration of opinion, the want of which has deurived them of new solidles. Nothich has leprived them of new settlers. Nothing out Cleveland's own term has preserved the Democratic party to this time. Its tra-ditions, derived from Jefferson, Jackson and Calhoun, are all at war with the necessities of our day. We want a homo-geneous country, with diversified in-dustries, national money, good order and respect for the laws. By beating Cleveland we beat the last apology for hero that organization of heresies and illiteracies has. It degraded the civil service under Jackson; it never dared to challenge our tariff system till it failed to undermine our public credit and our splendid system of currency. Its attack upon American manufacturers shows how little else was left to complain of; they are attacked be-cause they are successful."

MEXICAN CLERICALS STIREED UP.

mero's Bill Threatens the Seizure of a Vast Amount of Church Property.

MONTEREY, MEXICO, Sept. 19. - The news that Minister of Finance Romero has presented to Congress a measure declaring to be good the titles to land formerly belonging to the Church, but now owned by private citizens, has created a sensation among the members of the Clerical party in this city and throughout the Republic.

There is a vast amount of property still held by the Church in Mexico, which, under the provisions of the new law, is liable to seizure. In San Luis Potosi and Sattillo the Clericals are holding public demonstrations against the proposed law, and every effort will be made to defeat its passage.

Pottsville Man's Throat Cut While Sleep ing in His Own House.

POTTSVILLE, Sept. 19.-Martin Nobling at a late hour last night walked into his wife's bedroom with his throat cut from ear to ear, his windpipe being severed. Nobling had been sleeping from early evening on a lounge on the first floor, and, according to his story, was attacked while lying there y someone unknown to him. A razor covered with blood was found under the lounge, and when he saw it brought out he asked how it came there and requested that it be put away, as it was too dull, and he never used it. His wife claims that insanity is hereditary in the family, but some of the neighbors say that Nobling has several times threatened to kill his wife and a boarder named John Fread, and it is Nobling in his prostrate state swears he was assaulted and cut, Fread has been com-mitted to await the result of the man's in juries. Nobling may die at any moment.

One Democratic Paper Less.

WASHINGTON, PA., Sept. 19.-[Special.] -The Review and Examiner, a Democrati paper published in this city for many years past, has suspended publication. Some months ago it was changed into a semi-weekly, with Mr. Cooper as editor. Lack of business is assigned as a cause for the suspension. This leaves Washington with "only" four dailies, seven weeklies and two monthlies.

An Alleged World's Fair Extortion.

BERLIN, Sept. 19.-The Vissiche Zeitung charges that American railways and express companies are conspiring to compel German exhibitors to pay the exorbitant rate of $3 per hundred weight for the transportaof goods from New York to Chicago, and says that unless this wrong is redressed European exhibitors must withdraw from the Chicago Fair.
