A TEDIOUS TRIP FAVORABLY BEGUN.

tient From Inn to Train.

LOON LAKE HOUSE, N. Y., Sept. 20 -At 10 o'clock this morning everything was in readiness for the removal of Mrs. Harrison to Washington. The President gently informed her that she would be taken there to-day, and she at once brightened up and expressed her great joy at the prospect of going back to that city. Dr. Gardner, who had just concluded an examination of his patient, was very much encouraged at her condition. He said she had passed a very comfortable night, sleeping most of the time, and seemed to be stronger this morning. The physician said he realized fully the great risk attending the removal, but he was more confident than ever that she would be able to stand it, and possibly be better for having made the change.

The day was bright and clear and cold, and altogether favorable for the journey. At 11 A. M. Mrs. Harrison's perilous journey was begun by her transfer to the long mountain wagen by which she was to be conveyed to the nearest railroad station, three miles distant. She was raised tenderly from the couch on which she has passed so many weary hours, and placed on passed so many weary hours, and placed on a stretcher covered with rugs, blankets and pillows. Four strong men then carried her to the wagon. The President and Dr. Gardner walked on either side, each holding one of the patient's hands. The professional nurse was close behind, and was followed by the rest of the household. Gentleness and Care Used.

The stretcher was carefully placed in the wagon, on a large and comfortable cot. Dr. Gardner, the nurse, and the President were the only other occupants of the wagon, in addition to the driver. The other members of the family followed in tallyho coaches and other vehicles. The same considera-tion accorded the afflicted family since its first arrival here was observed to day, and first arrival here was observed to-day, and the transfer was accomplished quietly and without the slightest obtrusiveness on the part of the guests of the place.

The start from here was made under the most auspicious conditions, including a cloudless sky and a fresh, invigorating sir, laden with the health giving odors of the pine and balsam. The trip from the cottage to the train in waiting at Loon Lake station was successfully made. Fred W. Chase, proprietor of the hotel, furnished his best trained horses and the most careful laborate of his station was successfully made. driver of his stable for the wagon carrying the distinguished invalid, and he walked behind it the entire way, to render any assistance that might be necessary. The President and nurse sat beside Mrs. Harrison in the wagon. Dr. Gardner stood on the step at the rear, and Mrs. Harrison's maid, Josephine, sat on the seat with the driver. The horses proceeded in a walk, and the wagon president and president and the wagon. and the wagon springs were so perfectly adjusted that the many rough spots on the road were scarcely felt by the occupants. No Discomfort for the Patient.

Mrs. Harrison seemed to suffer no discomfort from the unusual experience, and it was found necessary to make only one stop on the route, and that was a very short one.

The party made the trip in about 45 minutes, and on reaching the station found all the rest of the family and a few triends awaiting their arrival. The wagon was carefully backed up to the rear of the train, and willing hands were found to assist the President and Dr. Gardner in carrying its burden into the car which had been specially prepared for the reception. Mrs. Harrison smiled a feeble recognition of the service and held out her hand to Mr. Boyd, who had helped to place her on the couch. He was very much touched at the greeting, and was compelled to leave the car to hide his

The same feeling of sadness pervaded were red from constant weeping. It was a sad sight to the spectators, and there were many expressions of sympathy for the Chief Magistrate and his greatly afflicted wite. She had arrived at the same place three months ago sick, it is true, but strong enough to walk to the carriage which con-veyed her to this beautiful place. To-day she appeared as a weak, helpless invalid in the throes of a dread disease which is slowly but surely sapping her life's blood

The Beginning of the Tedious Trip.

The Beginning of the Tedious Trip.

It was exactly 12:15 o'clock when the train moved slowly away on its long and tedious journey to the national capital. The train is a "Pennsylvania special," and is the best that could be procured for the purpose. It is a vestibule train, composed of the "Esperanza," a combination baggage and parlor car; the "Newport," a hotel aleeper, and the "Sybaris," an observation car. The "Sybaris," which is at the rear of the train, is occupied by Mrs. Harrison. A large, comfortable bed had been set up in the open portion generally used as a sitting the open portion generally used as a sitting room. It is provided with everything that could possibly contribute to the ease and comfort of the occupants.

The train will run at the rate of 35 miles an hour and is expected to reach Washington at about 8:30 o'clock to-morrow morning. The route selected is by way of Malone, Mooer's Junction, Plattsburg, Albany, Jersey City, Philadelphia and Baltimore. The party consists of the following named persons: The President and Mrs. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McKee, Russell Harrison, Mrs. Dimmick, Lieutenant and Mrs. Parker, Private Secretary Halford, Dr. Gardner, Miss Marie Kempe, Benjamin and Mary McKee, George W. Boyd, Miss Davis, the nurse; the President's valet, Charlie, and Mrs. Harrison's maid, Josephine.

Just before the departure of the train from Loon Lake Dr. Gardner said: "Mrs. Harrison has borne the journey to this point remarkably well—much better, indeed, than we anticipated. This drive was regarded as one of the most dangerous pieces of the trip, and that she made it so well gives as much well gives us much encouragement in regard to the remainder of the journey." A telegram from Saratoga Springs says: When the Presidental train passed through here at 8 o'clock this evening, Mrs. Harrison was resting quietly and apparently did not experience any fatigue. The train

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

In Woolen Dress Goods can surpass in beauty the ones we are showing today. Who can express their winsomeness and beauty? We can'tcan't even give an idea of the styles. They're too various.

Serges, Mohairs, Rough Effects, etc., run in riotous confusion of design and colorings in crescents, stars, stripes, triangles, cross effects-in fact, every design imaginable and a few more beside. You'd think some were not designed at all. Just put in the machinery and trust to luck for the design. Yet this apparent carelessness is a deeply studied effect design. The result is exquisite.

Could give you heaps of long sounding names. They'd mean nothing to you. Here are few sample ones:

Fabrics. Colors. Stefanos, Cochee, Damases, Sang. Craquelles, Liban. Cocottes. Douanier.

What do these names mean to you? Nothing. The goods by any other name would look as sweet. Come and see them for yourself. It's the only way to tell anything about them.
