THE FT. WAYNE RAILROAD HORROR

He Declares the Freight Train Was Running Against Orders.

MORE OF THE VICTIMS IDENTIFIED

O. D. Conklin and A. Bradley, the conductor and engineer of the freight which crashed into a passenger train near Shreve, O., on Wednesday morning, and hurried to death an even dozen persons, are equally responsible for the accident. So said Superintendent Starr to a DISPATCH reporter yesterony. Whether they are criminally guilty or not Mr. Starr is still trying to find out. All day yesterday was spent in investigating the circumstances connected with the wreck.

All of the treight crew, with the exception, of course, of Fireman Hammond, who was killed, were present. They were brought to the superintendent's private office one by one and carefully questioned at length. What evidence was given could not be learned until the investigation is concluded, which it is thought will occur

When Mr. Starr was seen by THE DIS-PATCH representative he stated that the question of responsibility was easily settled. There was no excuse whatever for either the engineer or conductor to allow the freight to move until passenger train No. 8 had passed.

The Rule of the Road.

"There were nine trains to pass the freight before it should have moved. No orders had been issued to the crew. There was no necessity for any orders. When an inferior train is running according to schedule all superior trains have the right of way. If any superior train is late the inferior one under no circumstances should be moved without an order inside of 12 hours. Then any order issued is in the form of an amendent to the schedule, according to which inferior trains are run.
"Here was a case where there was not the slightest necessity for any extra orders. Number 8 was about an hour late and was the last of the nine trains to pass the freight before it could move. Why, or how the conductor and engineer got into their heads that No. 8 had passed, I cannot understand, but by the time I have finished my investi-gation I think we will have all the facts. The statement that one unknown lady had been killed is not true." Denied the Rumor of Drunkenness

Conductor Conklin was found by a DIS-PATCH reporter at the entrance to the Ft. Wayne depot in Allegheny vesterday, the center of a crowd eagerly discussing the wreck and the possible outcome of Mr. Starr's investigation. He declined positively to say one word about his share of the responsibility for the accident, but decided the start of the nied positively that any man of the freight crew was drunk. Engineer Bradley could not be found yesterday. No attempt has been yet made to arrest the men.

The financial loss caused by the wreck is ok vet known. Portions of the remains of the two ladies who were going from Bucyey are Mrs. F. Shalley and her sister, iss Campbell, of Bucyrus. Mrs. Shalley's ild has also been identified. The only mains not recovered yet are those of G. Mann, the postal clerk, of Chicago.

SHE CHANGED HER MIND

scretary Dorente's Story About a Wom and a Baby.

Secretary Dorente, of the Anti-Cruelty siety, and Mrs. George Althart, of 4909 iendship avenue, had a war of words in e office of the Anti-Cruelty Society rs. Althart dropping an infant in a chair nd leaving the office.

Mr. Dorente tells the following story: bout eight months ago the society had a 2-year-old child which Mrs. Althart saw and admired and finally adopted. Last week she brought the baby back and said she did not want it any longer, and Secre-tary Dorente placed it in the Rosalia Home. The next day she came back and begged for the child again, and it was given to her. Wednesday she returned and wished to give the child up. Secretary Dorente refused to take it, and she became angry, and placing the baby in a chair, left the room, Secretary Dorente went before Alderman Cahill and entered suit against her for neglect, and she will be arrested to-day.
