"Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:

"I simply express pleasure this evening for this cordial and generous welcome. I can hardly restrain myself from saying to you that I am called here to-night for some good reasons. First, I feel this to be my Democratic home [cheers]; second, I expect to meet here many of my townsmen, whom I am always glad to see. I expect to see not only my townsmen, but my Democratic townsmen. More than all this I have come here with a great deal of pleasant anticipation in meeting and taking by the hand those others who have assembled here to-day from various ports of the country, all actuated by the same principles and purposes that actuate the members of this club. I have come here to see those from abroad, and I hope we will show them how we Democrats live in New York City. Now, gentlemen, we are ready for the task." Quay Expected to Appear at

Mr. Egan said he would go to Washington Thursday; that his return home had no connection with the campaign; that it was not true that he is to try and influence the Irish vote for Harrison; that the Irish vote is not to be controlled by one man, and that he would be sorry to see the Irish element voting solidly for either party. The Club Suicide Moorhead Joined Just Before Dying Is

THE PACE WAS BOUND TO BE . RAPID

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.] NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The body of J. Barlow Moorehead, the young theatrical manager who shot himself through the heart in his room early on Monday morning, will be taken to Philadelphia to-day for interment. Moorehead's suicide "as per club," as he explained himself in the note he left for the Coroner, followed his election to a peculiar club of "rounders" and ballet dancers on the night preceding, and probably the mention of the "club" was a hazy allusion to the proceedings of Saturday night, "part of which he was, and part of which he saw."

A number of young men with a large appetite for pleasure, and no serious vocations to interfere with their fancies, formed some time ago the Numidian Club. The Numidians of Manhattan Island are more ismiliar with the tiger than the famous lion of that ancient Roman provwhich gave them name, yet their officers are known by titles resembling lions. The President of the club is known as "Chief Roarer," and he has lately been holding court in the cafe of the Figaro, adjacent to the Academy of Music, where the "Black Crook" is now performing.

There is where Moorehead comes in. His friend Lennon plays a part in the "Black Crook."

Made Merry With the Dancers

On Saturday night Moorehead met Lennon in the Cafe Figaro. There the Numidians were in session, and there also went Serpentine and Eglautine, the French quadrille dancers who make merry in the "Black Crook" with one foot behind their ears. The Numidians were out in force that night, initiating new members in the cafe. The fee for initiation is a bottle of champagne. Young Mooreis a bottle of champagne. The idea was acted upon and that produced more "initiation." A member has since said that 30 quarts were drank at that session of the club which lasted beyond the hours recognized in the excise laws. When the club determined to go further in search of pleasure, Moorehead was in anything but in the mood of an intending suicide. He made engagements with several Numidians to meet them on Monday.

He had on a new dress suit that Saturday night and when the Numdians joked him about the wine that was spilled upon it, he said he would wear a suit the next night they could whitewash if they pleased. Monday night he was wrapped in an embalmer's robe. When last seen by a member of the club he was very merry.

The young man's friends sooff the idea that he was a member of a suicide club. that he was a member of a suicide club. Actor Nestor Lennon, who says the suicide told him that he was under obligations to a certain club to make away with himself, called at the Coroner's office yesterday and demanded the letter addressed to him found among the dead man's effects. It reads as follows:

Sir Alexander Clark was summoned from London, and he, after examining Lord Tennyson, declared that his condition required the greateste are and watchfulness. A dispatch from Haslemere at 7:30 o'clock last night stated that though Lord Tennyson's condition is critical, some encouraging symptoms are now manifesting themselves; but a telegram at 11 P. Lord Tennyson lies in a room overlooking the front of the house at Aldworth. All carriages are stopped at the lodge gates in order that the poet may not be disturbed by the noise of the wheels. The nearest railway station and telegraph office is four miles distant from the lodge. The Prince of Wales sends frequent telegrams inquiring as to Lord Tennyson's condition.

RICE WINS AGAIN.

Ohio's Supreme Court Gives Him a Verdic Against the Standard Oil Company.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 4 - [Special.] - George Rice scored another victory against the Standard Oil Company in the Supreme Court to-day in the matter of discrimination in freight rates. When General Pease was brought before Judge Baxter, of the United States Circuit Court some years ago, it was Standard Oil Company, by which they exacted of Rice the payment of freight rates double that paid by the Standard Company and paid the excess over to the Standard, and by this contract the Standard made $25 daily off the shipments of Rice.

Judge Baxter found the discrimination so wanton that it could hardly be accepted by an honest man, and that a Judge who would tolerate such a thing ought to be impeached. He removed the receiver of the road and appointed General Wikoff. This contract was the basis of the suit de-cided to-day. Rice began suit to recover the amounts exacted from him as soon as Pease was removed in 1836. The amount which Mr. Rice recovers is that which was exacted from him by the Cleveland and Marietta road and paid over to a sham corporation which was setting for the Standard. Mr. Rice has been battling against this corporation for 25 years and is still quite prosperous.

The Scourge Carries Off a Potato Dealer in New York City.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.-[Special.]-Drs. Briggs and Dunham, the bacteriologists, reported to President Wrison of the Health Department on Monday that they had discovered the spirillum of Asiatic cholera in the case of James Miller, of 255 West Twenty-ninth street, who died on Thursday of last week after a day's illness. Miller was a potato dealer in Ganzvoort market. His house has been quarantined since his death, and every other precaution has been taken.

The origin of Miller's disease has not been ascertained. The report was given out yesterday. Four inspectors are on duty at the quarantined premises. The Board of Health decided to continue, for another month, the 40 physicians who were appointed a few weeks ago on cholera duty. They will make inspections of tenements and look into the sanitary condition of the houses in their lists. Chemist Martin, of the Health Department, made a report on his weekly analysis of Croton water, which shows that there is still a trace of nitrates in the water. The trace is faint, and the

Luigi Bono, a rag sorter, was found dead this morning, and Deputy Coroner Walsh concluded that he might have died of cholera. The house has been disinfected

DODGED ARREST BY SUICIDE

Brooklyn Presbyterians Postpone Westminster Confession Question

New York, Oct. 4-[Special.]-The Brooklyn Presbytery held its October meeting at the First Church yesterday. The question of revision of the Westminster confession was postponed until December, and the principal business was a vote on the proposition to amend the church law, so as to permit the appointment of desconesses. After a long discussion, the vote stood 24 to 10 in favor of the descon-

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—The following etter from ex-Attorney General Wayne MacVeagh, announcing that he will vote for Grover Cleveland, was given out for publication to-day:

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4, 1892.

John W. Carter, Secretary of Massachusetts Reform Club:

Your cordial invitation to address the citizens of Boston on the issues of the canvass happens to reach me just when professional engagements prevent my naming a time when I can do so, but you are quite right in concluding that I intend to vote for Mr. Cleveland.

Entertaining the convictions J do, no other course is open to me, and I cheerfully accord to the supporters of President Harrison the same sense of public duty by which I claim to be actuated. As both parties have presented unexceptional candidates, there is no reason why the differences which exist upon questions of public policy should be discussed otherwise than in good humor, and with entire respect for each other's opinions.

In the present campaign, what may fairly be called the false alarms of the canvass will prove of little value, because of the general confidence in the safe and conservative character of both candidates. The average voter knows that free trade is impossible in this country, for the conclusive reason that the vast revenues now required to meet the expenses of the Government will necessarily afford a far higher degree of protection to our established and prosperous manufacturers than either Alexander Hamilton or Henry Clay thought desirable in the infancy of our weak and struggling indus-

The average voter also knows that the rredeemable paper currency, in use before the war, has never reappeared. On the other hand, he knows as well that no sysdiscovered that the Cleveland and Marietta | tem of duties on imports, however inequa-Railroad Company had a contract with the ble, can prevent our continued growth in wealth, in manufacturers and in population

> While I am more than ever resolved to hold duty to country far above any ties of party, I find myself at present in general secord with the Democratic party, and willing to trust its course in the future. The insight, the courage and the patriotism the masses of the party exhibited in compelling the nomination of Mr. Cleveland when he was without a single office-holder to support his candidacy seem to me to demand that I should meet them in the same spirit and set with them, as long as they maintain that high standard of policy and of administration. It is the more easy to do so, because the Republican party, securing its return to power four years ago by promising to preserve matters as they were, at once embarked upon what I regard as reckless and revolutionary policy, even overturning all the sateguards of legislation in the House of Representatives in their haste to pass the "Force" bill and the Mc-Kinley bill, both, to my mind, unnecessary and unwise measures.

The Force Bill Brought In. The opposition to the "Force" bill, not only sure to create far greater evils the rights of the States, has become so earnest and widespread that it is said to have been abandoned; but it must not be forgotten that only two years ago such a measure was warmly advocated by Presimeasure was warmly advocated by Prest-dent Harrison, earnestly supported by the Republican party and very narrowly escaped becoming a law.

There is no pretense, however, that the McKinley bill is abandoned. On the con-trary, our express approval of it is de-manded. No doubt that bill, which I can-not but think was an uncalled-for disturb-ance of the then existing tariff, greatly ance of the then existing tariff, greatly benefited a few interests, but certainly it greatly oppressed many others. Of the protected industries themselves, many were then, as now, in far more urgent need of free raw material, than of higher protection; but, with raw materials on the free list, the bill could not have passed, for these having such materials for sale controlled enough votes to defeat it, and they were very likely the sale of their hounties were discontinued. votes to defeat it, and they were very likely to do so if their bounties were discontinued. The manufacturers needing free raw materials were, therefore, obliged to join in the objectionable process of increasing prices by restricting production, thus adding to the number of trusts, by which the price of the necessaries of life is placed at the mercy of unlawful combinations of capital. It is not surprising that labor, believing itself to be oppressed, soon rose in revolt and civil war was actually raged this summer in four different sections of the country. And, of course, the farmers, paying more for what they buy and getting less for what they sell, grow poor day by day and excellent farms will hardly bring the cost of the buildings upon them.

He Sees Some Moral Evils. He Sees Some Moral Evils.

But the economic evils, however great, of the McKinley bill and the unreasonable of the McKinley bill and the unreasonable system of protection it represents, are of far less importance to my mind than the moral evils which follow in their wake. In deciding for what purposes the masses of the people may properly be taxed, it must not be forgotten that taxes have a wonderful capacity for filtering through all intervening obstacles till they reach the bowed back of toil, and resting there; and therefore the giving of bounties, under any bowed back of toil, and resting there; and therefore the giving of bounties, under any form of taxation, is mainly the giving away of the wages of labor. The sad truth that the curse of the poor is their poverty is illustrated in nothing more clearly than in the undue share they suffer of the burdens of taxation.

But saide from this consideration, ought not taxes only be imposed as required for
